Ugly Word, Revolution.
Gronau Flies On.
Three Died, Defiant.
To Help Cotton,

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IT WAS SIMPLE for our government of "best minds" to snub the Russian Government, because it wouldn't repay millions that American bankers lent to the Czar and Kerensky, but there are other "Red" things outside of Russia to worry these best minds.

There is threat of revolution in the Argentine. The president of that South American republic, living in his dwelling, as in a fortified castle, summons warships to his display of military strength.

BRAZIL SENDS news of threatening revolution.

The president of Peru has been kidnaped.

India and Egypt worry the British.

China worries the whole world.

Lower prices for stocks, lack of employment, diminished output, worry us.

The world had its war, its assorted prosperity booms, and now it has the pleasure of paying for both.

MOST SERIOUS for the 59 or 64, that govern by the power of organized money, according to ex-Ambassador Gerard, is the world-wide threat of revolution.

It is hard to believe, but just conceivable, that the number of human beings on earth might become more important than the number of organized dollars.

Mr. Shillito, quoted in the Christian Century, describes Russia's "bold and unfaltering offer of an alternative to the old order." That means government for men, instead of for profits.

Our best minds would do well to think about that.

VON GRONAU, who flew here from Germany unannounced, in an old Dornier plane, is one that does something "the next day." On Thursday he was welcomed officially by New York City. Early yesterday morning he was flying over Albany, headed toward Buffalo on his way to Chicago. He is there, as you read this, and will see the practically entire "Who's who in the air."

THE DEATH ROOM in Sing Sing prison adds a chapter to its long story entitled, "How Men Die."

Jesse Thomas, William P. Force and Claude Udwine all went out of the world over the electric route in 15 minutes.

The police called them "just three tough mugs," and they died tough.

THOMAS, called "Two-Gun," gazing around the death room, remarked, "I will see you all in hell some day," then shouted, "Let it go," and went out.

Force, the second killer, said to the executioner, "What are you so nervous about there, brother? Take it easy."

To spectators, nervously fidgeting, Force said, "You all came to see this. You wanted blood——". The current interrupted him.

Udwine, last of the three, looked at the electric chair with a forced grin, saying, "Well, well, well."

Before the metal death cap was snapped on his head, he said, "This is an exploring trip to me. Let's go." And as the cap was fitted he said, "Just like a football game." Then the current killed him.

Whoever thinks that capital punishment, with bravado displays of this kind, discourages crime, does not know criminals.

ANOTHER "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" movement, like the one started sixteen years ago when cotton fell to ten cents a pound, is suggested. The idea is to buy the cotton, help the farmer now, make a profit later.

Those that bought the cotton at 10 cents a pound, 16 years ago, all made money.

But as Mr. Hamilton, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, says, the "buy-a-bale movement" has an unpleasant suggestion of philanthropy. It sounds like the little flower girl's "buy a posie" appeal.

The South doesn't care for a repetition of that.

ANYBODY BUYING cotton now on a business basis, and storing it, will make money. An essential cannot remain indefinitely below the normal cost of production.

A better way to help cotton would be for American citizens to imitate Mussolini, who in summer time wears all cotton clothing, from his yachting cap to his shoes of cotton cloth.

If Mr. Cresap, of Chicago, who understands clothing, or some other great manufacturer or mail order house would create a suit of men's summer cotton clothing, to sell for about ten dollars a suit or less, and make such suits fashionable through advertising, there would be better prices for cotton and greater comfort for men in summer time.

CHINESE TONG men, quick to learn, adopted our method of hiring somebody else to commit your murders.

Now they borrow the "taking for a ride" idea.

Sing Foo was forced into an automobile, cut and slashed, according to the "hatchet" method, then thrown out dying. That shows willingness to borrow from our civilization.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, great great grandson of Hamilton, killed in a duel, is a candidate for the New York state Senate. He left Harvard five years ago, did newspaper work, tried moving pictures, then banking. In politics he "will

THUG FLEES IN POLICE AUTO

Captured After Clairton Holdup, Man Escapes When Left Alone in Car

One of two bandits, captured by Duquesne police after the hold up of a Clairton gasoline station, escaped in his captor's automobile when he was left alone for a moment in Dravosburg road early this morning.

Following the prisoner's escape, two patrolmen leaped into the bandit car, which was standing nearby, and pursued, but the vehicle ran out of gas near Bettis Field, and late this morning the hoodwinked officers still were searching for their automobile.

TAKE $30 IN HOLDUP

Late last night two bandits entered the Dauler Benzol Company's service station in Clairton, and, after threatening John Brenner, an attendant, with revolvers, escaped with about $30 in cash taken from the register.

An alarm of the holdup was sent out to police of surrounding boroughs, and Patrolmen Walter Danolski and J. C. Heckert, cruising the district in the latter's car, encountered on the outskirts of Duquesne two men in an automobile, whose descriptions tallied with those of the holdup men.

The policemen pulled their car alongside the machine in which the men were riding and forced it to the curb. One of the men fled, but the officers captured his companion.

Grand Duchess Due In N. Y. for Visit

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Grand Duchess Marie of Russia will arrive in New York today on the French liner Paris for an extended stay.

Also on the Paris are Lillian Gish, film star, and Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, the former Irene Castle, of Chicago.

PARK KIDNAPING OF GIRL FOILED

A state-wide search was being made by police today for a motorist who tried to kidnap Catherine Barnett, 13, of 300 Ivondale street, in the Locust bridle path, near Greenfield avenue, Schenley Park.

Her screams and those of her brother, Oscar, 10, and other children who saw the man drag her into his machine brought a man who said he was Louis Ostin, East Liberty Y. M. C. A., to her rescue. As the kidnaper attempted to speed up his car, Ostin leaped into the abductor's machine and dragged the girl out. The stranger's car sped down the path and disappeared. The girl's rescuer vanished after giving police his name. At the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. Ostin was unknown to them.

Catherine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Barnett, did not learn of the incident until informed by newspapermen. The girl came home and ate her supper and left the house for play without mentioning the kidnaping attempt.

Later relating her experience, Catherine said:

"We were playing in the park when the man stopped his machine and asked for a match. As we ran towards the car, the man reached out and dragged me in. I screamed until a man jumped into the car and pulled me out."

Crystal Gazer Slain In Chicago Mystery

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Christ Vlahos, fortune teller and crystal gazer, was slain today under mysterious circumstances and his body hurled from the second floor window of his home and "office."

His body was found on the sidewalk in front of his home, stabbed three times in the chest. A shattered window gave evidence that he had been pitched out by the killer. A crystal ball was found in his rooms.

WIFE'S SLAYER, IN CELL, ENDS LIFE IN BLAST

Texan Who Planted Bomb in Auto to Murder Mate Dies by Same Method

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, who confessed slaying his wife in a devised explosion, ended his own life by the same means today.

The fatal explosion was believed by officers to have been produced by a vial of nitroglycerin which Payne carried suspended about his neck.

Fellow prisoners in the county jail where the attorney awaited trial for the slaying of his wife were dislodged from their cots. A sleeping cell mate was uninjured. Payne died lying face down in his cot.

LEAVES 2 LETTERS

The lawyer's death followed by a few hours his indictment by a grand jury on a first degree murder charge. Late yesterday he was visited by two of his children, whom he greeted with a hysterical display of affection.

The attorney gave a letter to his mother, and one to the mother of his wife into the keeping of a fellow prisoner shortly after midnight. The explosion took place a few minutes later.

He had asked a group of fellow prisoners to leave his cell, telling them they would know what the bottle suspended from his neck contained "in a few minutes."

BOASTED—HINTED END

He had frequently boasted he never would stand trial.

Payne's wife was killed and his 11-year-old son maimed by a dynamite bomb which wrecked the family car June 12.

Weeks later he asked Gene Howe, Amarillo newspaper editor, to investigate the case, saying civil authorities were making no progress.

Howe's investigation led to Payne's arrest. He confessed killing his wife because of love for his stenographer, Miss Verona Thompson. He confessed to four previous attempts to end his wife's life.

They were college sweethearts.

Pittsburgher Dies, Kin Hurt in Wreck

VAUGHN, N. M., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Samuel Johnson, 55, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was killed seven miles west of here in an automobile collision last night. A nephew and the latter's wife were seriously injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, their nephew, Hugh Paeger, and Mrs. Paeger, and their 12-year-old niece, Alice Johnson, left Pittsburgh Sunday morning for their home in Ontario, Cal. They are former Pittsburghers and moved to California two years ago, returning here each year for their vacation.

AIR RACES TAKE 3RD VICTIM IN WEEK

Designer of Freak Aircraft Dies in Plane Plunge; German Fliers Awaited

CURTISS-REYNOLDS AIRPORT, Chicago Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The death toll had increased to three as the national air races zoomed into their eighth day.

The third person to be killed in a week of racing and stunting was George Fernic, aircraft designer of St. George, Staten Island, N. Y., who plunged to his death late yesterday in a plane he built himself.

The ship, of radical design, featuring a short auxiliary wing, fell far from the 40,000 spectators but in the midst of closely parked airplanes. Pilots and mechanics dashed to safety but Fernic's plane smashed a ship which had just been flown in one of the races.

PREVIOUS CRASH KILLS 2

Fernic was dead when doctors reached him. The other fatalities of the week both resulted from the crash of a Navy racing plane near the spectators' stands Wednesday.

A short time before the crash yesterday, the crowds had waved an enthusiastic farewell to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh as they took off for Detroit after a 24-hour visit at the races.

Interest in today's program was divided between the races and the prospect of seeing Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and his companions, who were due to arrive in the Dornier-Wal flying boat in which they flew the Atlantic.

FORD TO COMPETE

The race for ships capable of carrying a "pay load" of 1000 pounds was to be flown this aft-

READY TO TEST 'BLUE LAWS'

Everything is set to test out the ancient "Blue Laws" of this commonwealth as far as the police department and promoters of a Sunday baseball game are concerned.

There is a game scheduled tomorrow afternoon on the baseball diamond under the Bloomfield Bridge, in defiance of the "Blue Laws" and orders from irector of Public Safety James M. Clark and Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, that no amateur sports are to be played on the Sabbath.

As soon as the first ball is tossed out at tomorrow's game the local gendarmes will march onto the field in squad formation and issue their ultimatum that the game must stop.

The names of the promoters and the managers will then be taken and informations made against them, charging violations of the 200-year-old statute. The maximum fine is $4 a head for violators.

Each, if found guilty, has the right of appeal to the county courts from the summary conviction of police magistrates.

Today neither Clark nor Walsh had time for much else than explaining to telephone callers why they would not allow the ball game to be played. Walsh said he is not making any test, but will arrest anybody who plays ball tomorrow.

JOHN WILLIAMS

Williams, one-time constable and Wilmerding politician, who ran into Wilmerding postoffice and escaped shots fired at him today.

WILMERDING OFFICER PUT 'ON SPOT'

Williams Dodges to Safety As Would-Be Assassins Shoot; Jails Suspect

An attempt was made on the life of John Williams, former prohibition officer, ex-lieutenant of the Wilmerding police, and constable today.

He was shot at with both barrels of a sawed-off shotgun as he neared the Wilmerding postoffice on his morning trip to get the mail. The charge of the gun went through a window.

SUSPECT JAILED

A half hour later Williams had a suspect, whom he said he positively identified as the gunman, lodged in the Wilmerding jail.

As Williams was coming down Herman street on the way to the postoffice he noticed a green coupe model automobile approaching the curb. An instant later Williams saw the muzzle of a sawed-off shotgun pointed at him from the car.

He ran for a nearby alley as the would-be assassin fired off the gun at him. The shots struck a plate glass window of the tailoring establishment of Andre Abromavic, 104 Herman avenue.

Williams said he recognized Vincensio Delectora, the husband of the niece of Vincent Moshella, the suspected killer of George Thomas, who was shot to death in a Wilmerding restaurant last Sunday, as the man who held the gun.

CAPTURES SUSPECT

Williams rushed home to get his gun and start on a man hunt. He captured Delectora about a half hour later on the outskirts of the town.

Williams declared that he was on the trail of Thomas' slayers, and attributed fear of capture as the motive for the attempt on his life.

POLITICAL STORM CENTER

Williams for many years has been the storm center of Wilmerding.

It was with the Volpe faction, the most powerful political or-

AIMEE MAY GO TO SANITARIUM

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Plans were said to be under way today to move Aimee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, from her Malibu Beach cottage to a sanitarium.

The evangelist is reported to have suffered a relapse, being unable to retain but little nourishment.

Dr. Edward H. Williams announced early today that the condition of the evangelist was slightly improved.

Mrs. McPherson has been confined to her beach cottage for some time. Her physician announced that she was threatened with a nervous breakdown.

Her mother, Mrs. Kennedy, asserted the evangelist was recovering from the effects of a face-lifting operation.

Mrs. Kennedy, who has just left a Brentwood sanitarium, admitted that she had her face lifted.

The evangelist's mother also asserted her nose had been broken by her daughter during a fistic encounter, which started over Angelus Temple affairs, it was said.

Mrs. McPherson has denied that she ever struck her mother and likewise denied having her face lifted.

Last of Gold Star Parties Due to Sail

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—The last contingent of Gold Star Mothers and Widows to visit the cemeteries of France will leave today on the United States liner Republic. There are 99 members in the final group, making a total 3,671 to visit France this summer.

THREE LOTTERY RAIDS ON HILL

Continuing his crusade against the numbers racketeers in the Hill district, Alderman Martin J. Griffin raided three places this morning.

At 2154 Wylie avenue, John Irvine, Negro, was arrested and a quantity of numbers books and other paraphernalia seized. Unable to furnish the $2,500 bail required, Irvine was committed to jail. He was charged with operating a lottery.

Two other places visited by Griffin's raiding constables, Louis C. Shiring, Jr., and Carl Rubenstein, had folded up their tents before the raiders arrived. The places were a pool room at Chauncey street and Wylie avenue and a confectionery in Center avenue near Kirkpatrick street.

Coolidge Terms Luck Question of Character

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 30.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

There are people who complain that they do not have any luck. These are the persons who think that their destiny is all shaped outside themselves. They are always waiting for something to happen. Not only is nothing very good likely to happen to this class, but if some fortune seems to come it tends to turn out disastrously. They are usually ruined by success.

Calvin Coolidge

Our real luck lies within ourselves. It is a question of character. It depends on whether we follow the inward light of conscience. Such men rise above the realm of temporary circumstance. They are great even in defeat.

Napoleon, following his star, seeking luck outside himself, was great only in victory. In Egypt, at Moscow, at Waterloo, his glory departed. Gen. Lee, sacrificing himself for what he felt was his duty, was no less great after Appomattox. Poverty, obscurity, assassination, only revealed the greatness of Lincoln.

If we cannot entirely control our environment, we can control ourselves and our destiny. The man who is right makes his own luck.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Smith to Give Party Talk Despite Name Omission

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—While political circles buzzed with comment today because the name of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was left off the list of delegates to the state Democratic convention, it was reported the former executive will attend the convention and deliver the address placing Gov. Roosevelt in nomination for a second term.

Confusion caused by the Governor changing residence was said to have caused the ommission.

It was pointed out today the Governor could easily be supplied with a proxy and attend as a delegate.

U. S. FLIER FACES COURT-MARTIAL IN PERU UPHEAVAL

NEW REGIME IMPRISONS LEGUIA

'Quick Justice' Promised for Ex-President, Accused of Misusing Nation's Funds

Associated Press.

The situation in four Spanish-American countries gripped or threatened by revolution is as follows:

LIMA, Peru.—The new government has lodged the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia, and his son, Juan Leguia, in prison. Lieut. Com. Harold D. Grow, American Naval Reserve officer who has been in charge of Peru's air forces, will be court-martialed for his support of Leguia during the revolution.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina.—Two persons, one a high police official, were wounded in street fights between adherents and rivals of President Yrigoyen. Military precautions against an organized revolutionary movement continued.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil.—The government has denied rumors emanating from Uruguayan border towns that a revolution is imminent in the State of Rio Grande do Sul.

SANTA CLARA, Cuba.—An investigation was begun of an alleged seditious plot to storm army posts at Cruces, seizing weapons there and starting a revolt. Twenty men are under arrest.

Deposed President Thrown Into Own Political Prison

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Augusto B. Leguia, 67-year-old deposed president of Peru, taken from his sick bed aboard the cruiser Almirante Grau, was placed today in a prison cell on San Lorenzo Isle, Callao Harbor, to await trial and punishment for the "misdeeds" of his dictatorship.

His son, Juan Leguia, also arrested, was taken to San Lorenzo prison, where Leguia, while president, confined most of his political enemies.

Both were placed under strong guard commanded by Lieut. Alfonso Llosa, one of the men Leguia imprisoned there. He was released this week with advent of the new regime.

ARMY TRIAL FOR GROW

Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sachez Cerro, new military president of the republic, said severe punishment was contemplated for the former president and others adjudged by the military junta he heads of having misused the nation's finances.

Sanchez also said Harold B. Grow, American naval reserve officer who has been in charge of the Peruvian air force, would be prosecuted by court martial for his support of Leguia.

Sanchez accused Lieut. Commander Grow of being a "mercenary" who has been violating the rules of public right, and said:

"In obedience to the orders of the overthrown dictator he intended to fly over Arequipa and bomb the city without regard for the consequences.

"As he violated the rules of the military code we will prosecute him before a court martial."

"QUICK JUSTICE"

Lieutenant Commander Grow was captured by the southern revolutionaries shortly after outbreak of the rebellion at Arequipa a week ago Friday. He has been held in prison while the American embassy negotiated for his release.

Sanchez Cerro, in commenting on Leguia's removal from the Almirante Grau, on which he attempted to make his escape to Panama after his resignation and flight last Monday, said:

"We shall be able to start his prosecution soon and make him feel the weight of justice. All the politicians misusing funds will be punished severely and energetically. We will not exempt anyone from punishment."

The former president has been seriously ill of an uremic attack aboard the Almirante Grau, and has been under medical attention there. He was removed from the cruiser at 4 p. m. yesterday.

PINCHOT FLAYS SERVICE BOARD ON WATER

Tour of Two Cities Reveals 'Deplorable' Condition in Hanover, Mum on Politics

YORK, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, after a visit here yesterday to inspect the city's water system, made a new attack on the public service commission. Pinchot came here from Hanover. After going over the situation here the former Governor said:

"The deplorable state of the water supply at Hanover is an example of 'the public be damned;' the plant facilities and supply of the York Water Company is a contrasting example of the public well served and well pleased."

His praise of the York Water Company as a well-managed public utility was made after he had visited the company's impounding dam, pumping station, filtration plant, reservoirs and park. The former governor was brought here by H. D. Sheppard, chairman of the Hanover water committee, who wanted to show by way of contrast what the water companies in York and Hanover were doing for their respective communities.

After Mr. Pinchot had investigated conditions in the Codorus Creek, which for years has been badly polluted, he said the creek could be made into a fine and clean stream.

IN WALL STREET GRIP

Before leaving for his home, the former governor said:

"What I have seen today is evidence that possession of a public utility offers excuse for neither meager service nor exorbitant charges. My inspection of the plant of the York Water Company, and information given me relative to its operation, convince me it is not true that a locally owned and conducted water company cannot render maximum service at fair rates.

"Harmonious relations existing between consumers, stockholders, management and employes of the York Water Company are in startling contrast to dissatisfaction found in Hanover, McSherrystown and Gettysburg, communities served by subsidiaries of a gigantic Wall Street combination, which with the connivance of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, is wringing heavy tribute from Pennsylvanians, who have no recourse but to pay."

The former governor was entertained at a luncheon at the York County Club by a group of representative business men and politicians of York and Hanover. At no time during his visit was politics discussed publicly.

HIGHWAY OPENED

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—The celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of Stroudsburg was transferred over Foxtown Hill to Delawater Gap, three miles away, for a short time today while the new concrete road through the "point of the gap" was opened by Gov. John S. Fisher, officials of the State Highway Department and men prominent in local affairs.

This million dollar scenic highway is declared to be one of the greatest engineering feats performed since the state began building roads.

AUTOS KILL 2, INJURE 6 IN DISTRICT

Boy Run Down, Fatally Hurt; Second Dies in Crash; Three Drivers Being Held

Two boys are dead today and six persons injured as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

Joseph Serenc, 7, of 521 Reed street, Clairton, was killed when struck by an automobile driven, police say, by Harry Ritenour, of 1113 Walnut street, McKeesport, at Park avenue and Reed street, Clairton. Ritenour, arrested by Clairton police, was to be turned over to the coroner today.

Injuries suffered when a truck in which he was riding was struck by an automobile at St. Clair and Broad streets last night caused the death early today in the Pittsburgh Hospital of Arthur Buscher, 8, of 831 Chianti street, according to the coroner's report. Joseph Celluci, 11, of 921 Chianti street, who was riding with Buscher, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital with injuries of the head. Floyd Kilpatrick, 28, a Negro, of 61 Fullerton street, driver of the automobile that struck the truck, and Patsy Marconi, 22, of 928 Chianti street, operator of the truck, were arrested, police reported.

CAR SKIDS, 3 HURT

Three youths are in the McKeesport Hospital with injuries suffered when an automobile in which they were riding skidded from the Clairton-Dravosburg road, near Coal Valley, and crashed into a pole. The victims are Albert Wilson, 19, of Clairton, driver of the car; John McCormick, 19, and John Bodnar, 20, both of Coal Valley.

Joseph DeSiderio, 21, of 750 Frederick street, McKees Rocks, was seriously injured when an automobile in which he was riding was sideswiped and overturned on the Fleming Park road, Robinson Township, today. He was a passenger in a machine driven by George E. Kunzelman, of 506 Island avenue. Kunzelman and two other occupants escaped injury.

CHILD ESCAPES

Paul Curtaunick, of 737 Highland avenue, Corapolis, driver of the other machine, also escaped injury, although his car went over an embankment after the two machines scraped fenders.

Little 2-year-old Rosemary Kane, 3207 Walden street, North Side, probably owes her life to the alertness of Alfred Dilliott, of 6 Rivet way, who brought his machine to a quick halt in Federal street extension when the child ran into the path of the car last night, receiving minor cuts and bruises. Rosemary was walking with her mother when she suddenly broke away and ran into the street in front of Dilliott's automobile.

ganization of the district, he has had many a fierce political fight.

Williams figured prominently in the investigation of the Constable Harry Davenport slaying several years ago. At that time he offered to take Davenport's place and clean up Wilmerding, and at various times has gathered evidence which has resulted in vote fraud prosecutions.

In the Thomas murder investigation Williams, who is now a private detective, said he was on the trail of Moshelle, the suspected slayer, had been aware that his life would be in grave danger if he came up with the man. For the first time in years, however, he went without a gun and his life was almost forfeited for this carelessness.

ONCE DRY AGENT

Williams had for many years been a prohibition agent. He had made many enemies in his enforcement of the law and had participated in several raids that brought him much opposition from the political factions of Western Pennsylvania. He declared today that he would soon find the driver of the car used in today's slaying attempt. He stated that the license number was known and it would be a matter of only a few hours before the man was apprehended.

IDENTIFIES DELECTORA

Williams identified Delectora as a man who resided only a few doors from him for many years. Stating that he suspected a relationship between him and the slayer of Thomas, Williams said he did not believe the man would do anything to harm him.

Delectora was being questioned by county detectives today in connection with the case.

Wife Hurt Fatally Man Asks $50,000

John Artis, whose wife, Emma Artis, died July 9 as a result of fatal injuries received March 30 when, he claims, she stepped into a hole in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, has sued that city for $50,000 damages.

The plaintiff says the depression in the street was caused by rails of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Attorney W. H. Coleman represents the husband.

THE HEAT WAVE has crossed the ocean. Thirty-five heat victims are reported dead in England.

Ninety-three degrees Fahrenheit in London, hottest in 19 years, appalling Britain, is 10 degrees worse than a temperature of 115 on our Mojave desert, where the air is dry.

This summer Europe was plagued with excessive rain, while we were plagued with drought. Now the rain comes to us, and intense heat goes to them.

THIS IS THE age of rackets. Rackets in milk, whisky, cleaning and dyeing, laundry work, labor unions, and now, latest, an unemployment racket.

New York's free employment agency finds the same faces returning after getting jobs.

The racket is to get your job, sell it to a man out of work, come back and get another.

WEATHER DATA FOR RACE BAGS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Pilots and their aides who will occupy the six balloons in the International Gordon Bennett race which stars here Monday will be supplied with weather information by radio until the last of them lands. Twice a day the radio station at Cleveland Municipal Airport will broadcast this highly important information to the fliers.

The exact time of the take-offs will be determined tonight at a banquet here to be attended by 1,000 guests, including airplane pilots, race officials and others honoring the balloonists. The first of the entries is to soar from the airport about 4 p. m. Monday.

A special message from President Hoover to the race entrants from Belgium, Germany and France, is on exhibition at the race headquarters. The President extended a welcome to the foreign competitors and called the race "highly important to the development of aviation," and said it "also through friendly competition in a splendid sport helps bring these nations more closely together."

The man's skull was fractured, physicians believe.

Two coatless men leaped to the street and began the attack.

Carney defended himself until knocked unconscious by a blow on the head. No effort was made to rob him, and all that was taken was his union button.

2 PITT YOUTHS HURT IN CRASH

Two University of Pittsburgh dental students were seriously injured, one probably fatally, when the light roadster in which they were returning from a party skidded and overturned early today in Federal street.

The injured are Paul Freyvogel, 21, of 3036 Norwood avenue, and August Garish, 21, of 2439 Perrysville avenue. Garish suffered a probable skull fracture and may die. Freyvogel's nose and ankle were broken.

At the Presbyterian Hospital, where both were taken by a taxicab driver, Freyvogel told police that the automobile in which they were riding home from a party with Earl Keller, 526 McClintock avenue, skidded in front of 1307 Federal street, where the street had been sprinkled.

When police arrived the automobile had been removed and the injured were in the hospital.

Keller and T. Grais, the taxicab driver who took the injured to the hospital, will be questioned by police.

Navy League Advises U. S. To Speed Pact Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(Universal.)—The United States should proceed with the naval building and replacement program allowed under the London treaty as soon as that pact becomes effective.

The Navy League of the United States, which vigorously opposed ratification of the treaty, so declared in a statement of its policy, now that the pact has been accepted by the United States. The statement follows:

"When the London naval treaty shall have been ratified by all signatories, and ratification deposited, the size and nature of the United States Navy will come under new restrictions.

"The Navy League therefore advocates, prospectively, the carrying out of an orderly naval building and replacement program within the time limits of the treaty, as well as within its restrictions, along such lines as may most economically and efficiently serve the interests of the United States.

"The league will continue its efforts to broaden popular understanding of the basis of the naval policy of the United States; for the growth of popular appreciation of the interrelationships between assured domestic prosperity and foreign trade, shipping and naval power to safeguard them has been most gratifying."

Hoover and His Cabinet Away for Labor Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Labor Day celebrations over the week-end have the Capital stage virtually to themselves, for although Monday is officialy the beginning of the social season, highest government officials and Washington's socially prominent people have elected to remain away.

President Hoover will remain at his highland camp on the Rapidan River until Labor Day afternoon, and of the cabinet members only Secretary Hyde, drought-bound, remained at his desk today.

Secretary Mellon will spend Labor Day at the home of his daughter, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, on Long Island.

Labor's Secretary Davis will speak tomorrow evening at a union church service in Harrisburg, Pa., and on Monday he will join in celebrations at Brookville and Clearfield, Pa.

But labor leaders are present and celebrating. At Washington Cathedral, high on Mount St. Alban, President Green will speak tomorrow afternoon, and officials of local unions will join in the memorial observances.

OTTAWA, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Bespeaking the co-operation of public organizations and citizens, Senator Gideon D. Robertson, minister of labor, today issued a Labor Day message to the Canadian people. The watchword of the Labor Department, he said, is "service."

PITTSBURGH WOMAN BLOCKS ANDREE DIARY PUBLICATION

NORWEGIANS TO RECEIVE EPIC TALE

Oslo Government Issues Order; Explorers Thought To Have Survived 2 Years

By WILLIAM HILLMAN,
International Service.

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 30.—A Pittsburgh woman today compelled the Norwegian government to issue orders that the diary of Salomon Auguste Andree, who tried to cross the North Pole in a balloon 33 years ago, would not be published before being placed in the hands of the Swedish authorities.

The government also made it plain that the contents of the diary, which is expected to unfold the dramatic tale of the Andree expedition of 1897, are not to be made reference to by the discoverer, Dr. Gunnar Horn, or anyone else, previous to receiving government permission.

This pronouncement momentarily disrupted plans for syndicates to purchase the diary and the story of Dr. Horn, who is now bringing the bodies of Andree and his two companions and the diary to Tromsoe, Norway, from the polar regions aboard the sealer Bratvaag.

FEAR OTHER CLAIMS

The Pittsburgh woman, Mrs. Clara Andree, is a sister-in-law of the man who was first to attempt to fly across the mystic pole. With her protests against disposing of the Andree diary without her consent, the government fears further claims by other distant relatives.

A special message is being dispatched to Dr. Horn, consequently, ordering him to deliver the diary and his account to the government to avoid possible damage suits.

Dr. Adolf Hoel, appointed by the Norwegian government as a member of the expert commission which sails from Tromsoe on Monday aboard the fishery vessel Michael Sars to meet the Bratvaag, is taking the message to Dr. Horn.

LIKELY LIVED TWO YEARS

Dr. Hoel yesterday brought here the dramatic theory that Andree and his two companions lived in a stone hut on Giles Island for two years before the hut cracked under ice pressure and sent them to their doom.

This theory was supported by the evidence of Capt. Gustave Jensen, who spoke with Dr. Gunnar Horn, discoverer of the Andree party's remains. Dr. Adolph Hoel arrived here from Tromsoe, made his report to the government, and immediately returned to Tromsoe, where Dr. Horn has been instructed to bring his finds.

COUDN'T TRAVEL FAR

In an exclusive interview with Universal Service, Dr. Hoel said:

"From evidence received so far, it is not out of possibility that Andree and his two companions lived for two years on Giles Island.

"The broken ice of this section would have made it impossible for them to go any distance. It seems they built a stone hut and depended on their rifles for ice-bear and walrus for food.

"The severe winter completely covered over their hut, and spring laid a cover of ice on it. Another winter's snow then covered the hut, and the stones cracked, sending the three men to certain death.

"It must have been most desperate and the grimmest imprisonment of all history. Perhaps Andree's diary will tell us something of it when Dr. Horn brings the Bratvaag into Tromsoe."

SEALER MAKING TIME

ABOARD S. S. ISBJOERN, Aug. 30.—(By Radio.)—Today found us still plowing northward across the Barents Sea in search of the sealer Bratvaag on which Dr. Gunnar Horn is returning with the bodies of Salomon Auguste Andree and his two companions of the ill-fated pioneer expedition to reach the North Pole by air.

The weather is again fine. All is well aboard and we are making excellent speed.

Sues for $50,000 As Result of Fall

As a result of slipping on a banana peel which, he claims, injured him so badly it has impaired his health, August Schwarz has brought suit against the City of Pittsburgh for $50,000 damages.

KIN CARES FOR 'GUN' ORPHANS

While funeral arrangements were being made today for Mrs. Catherine Romanin, 31, and her husband, Lazarro Romanin, 39, of 331 Bothwell street, murder and suicide victims, their two children, Lena, 11, and Alda, 5, were being cared for by relatives.

Romanin, said to have been jealous over attentions paid his wife in amateur theatrical roles, killed her in an upstairs room in the home of James Troian, 304 Bothwell street, and then took his own life by firing a bullet into his head. Lena, hearing the shots, ran to her home and summoned her mother's sister, Mrs. Josephine Vezetti. Mrs. Vezetti battered down the locked door and found the couple dead.

Lena related to detectives how she sought to stop the argument which preceded the shooting. The father pushed her from the bedroom and locked the door, the girl said.

Mrs. Romanin was a housekeeper for Mrs. Troian, who is visiting in Europe.

Second Suicide Try Reveals Girl Once Held in Killing

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—A young woman held at the county hospital after two attempts to take her life has admitted, authorities said, that she was Miss Betty Queen who, four years ago, was accidentally responsible for the fatal shooting of Margaret Craig of Des Moines, Ia.

Miss Craig, known on the New York stage as Pearl McSherry, was killed at Brown's Mills, N. J., in a cottage which the two girls, with Dorine O'Connor of Centralia, Ill., had rented after closing the season with a Philadelphia stock company. The coroner's jury decided death was the result of Miss Craig's effort to stop Miss Queen from taking her own life. The latter was exonerated.

Miss Craig, it developed, was struck by a bullet discharged when she tried to wrest a pistol from Miss Queen.

STORM WRECKS WIRE SERVICE IN BRITAIN

Lightning and Hail Do Heavy Damage to Countryside After Fatal Heat Wave

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Northern England and Scotland, drenched and battered by a terrific thunder and hail-storm, were comforted by more normal temperatures today after a four-day heat wave that caused 50 deaths.

The furious storm, which blanketed London and the countryside caused extensive damage and practically isolated parts of Scotland from the rest of the British Isles. Telephone and telegraph communications were disrupted.

Balmoral Castle, Scottish retreat of the king and queen, was the center of vivid lightning display. The Duke of York was unable to return to Glamis Castle because of the storm.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald, flying from London to Lossiemouth to spend the week-end with his daughters, was delayed in his trip when the pilot landed the plane at Catterick Airdrome, Yorkshire, to avoid the approaching storm. Premier MacDonald completed his trip by train.

A tragedy occurred at Hastings when an animal trainer of the Bertram Mills circus was torn to pieces by five heat-maddened polar bears as he was feeding the animals. Numerous suicides and prostrations were recorded.

FLEET WATCHES FOR RUM SHIP

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Two dozen Coast Guard boats from Lake Erie ports today were blockading the mouth of the Detroit River to intercept a beer-laden British vessel.

Col. Heinrich A. Pickert, collector of customs here, heard that the steamship Vedas was in Lake Erie, ready to do business. He made a trip on the lake and said he was certain there was no Rum Row near Detroit, but that there might be one in the vicinity of Cleveland.

The Vedas, a 200-foot British ship, laden with 15,000 cases of beer, valued at more than $100,000 at United States prices, was seized August 15 off Middle Sister Island, in Lake Erie, by Canadian customs officers.

A fine of $400 was levied against the Vedas at Windsor, Ontario, for discharging part of its cargo on Lake Erie. Later, the fine was declared illegal by the Canadian department of national revenue.

More than 5,000 persons saw nearly 1,000 members of American Legion drum and bugle corps contest for supremacy last night as the score or more units, in elegant regalia, turned McKeesport's Soldiers' Memorial Field into a battleground of color.

The soldiers, in costumes of many shades and from subdued to brilliant, used drums and trumpets for their weapons. They drilled and played across the brightly illuminated field, fighting for the applause of the 5,000 pairs of hands.

The units came from Greensburg, Uniontown, Swissvale, California, Jeannette, Tarentum, Latrobe and countless other towns in Western Pennsylvania. J. H. Newlin was general chairman, assisted by J. Denny O'Neil, Ed Hoak and a committee.

More than $700 in prizes was given the winning teams.

Uniontown took first honors for the best corps, Latrobe was second, Greensburg third, Mt. Pleasant fourth and Tarentum fifth. Ira Cooley, of Apollo, took first prize as the best strutting drum major.

Gold Fish Saved From Death Due To Drought

WAYNESBURG, Aug. 30.—To save hundreds of gold fish which for years have been pets in a pool in the public parks, the fish have been seined and placed in fresh water containers until sufficient rainfall occurs here to fill the pool.

Drilling operations have been started on a third water well, production of which will be added to the supply for Waynesburg. The well is on the former Waynesburg Brewery property south of town.

Because of the continued drought, all streams in the watershed supplying the town have ceased flowing. Present consumption exceeds supply by approximately 100,000 gallons daily.

Fenton H. Davenport, of Wilkinsburg, alleged promoter, was lodged in the county jail yesterday by Swissvale policee on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

It is alleged he advertised for truck drivers and carpenters and when the applicants interviewed him he promised them permanent positions if they would purchase a $1,000 bond, of an issue by Fenton H. Davenport, Inc. The "corporation's" assets, it is charged, consist of a small chicken farm in Conneautville, Pa., which is said to be heavily mortgaged and practically worthless.

KIDNAP SLAYER ELUDES POLICE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The kidnaper and slayer of 8-year-old Marverine Appel remained at large today while police continued to follow every clue that might lead to solution of the crime.

Rewards totaling $3,100 have been offered for apprehension of the man believed to have enticed the girl into his automobile last Wednesday evening, to have held her prisoner for almost 30 hours, and finally to have attacked and killed her.

Her body, the throat wound with wire and a gash in the head, was found Thursday night two blocks from the home of her mother, Mrs. Eula Appel.

Police had failed today to establish any connection between the kidnaping of Marverine, and an attack yesterday afternoon on Mrs. Joseph Wisnienski, by two men. She fought them off and tore a piece of clothing from one of them, before police arrived.

Several suspected persons were questioned by police, but were later released.

DRYS DESERT M'CORMICK CANDIDACY

Ready to Back Independent For Senator in Illinois; Her Stand 'Unsatisfactory'

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, finding the prohibition stand of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial nominee, "entirely unsatisfactory," announced last night it was ready to support a dry independent candidate.

George B. Safford, league superintendent, issued a statement in which he said the entire influence of his organization would be exerted for "any worthy candidate" brought out by the dry forces.

The state Anti-Saloon League worked actively for Mrs. McCormick when she was campaigning for congresswoman and it supported her passively in her primary campaign against Senator Charles S. Deneen.

THIRD ENTRY FORESEEN

The injection of an independent candidate into the race between Mrs. McCormick and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, was forecast by Safford, although he mentioned no names.

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, of Downers Grove, Illinois' first woman legislator, has been prominently mentioned by the Chicago press as the choice of the dry leaders. Mrs. O'Neill, a Republican, campaigned for Senator Deneen in his losing primary battle with Mrs. McCormick.

HAD ASKED HER TO RUN

She admitted yesterday that dry leaders from all over the state had asked her to enter the senatorial campaign.

Although she reiterated she was personally a dry, Mrs. McCormick also has promised to vote for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment if the majority of the voters favored such action.

The Anti-Saloon League has always been opposed to former Senator Lewis, whose keynote speech at the Democratic State Convention urged repeal of all prohibition legislation.

Red-Head Widow Outwits Elder Levine at Hearing

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 30.—Charges of disorderly conduct, brought by Isaac Levine, father of Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic flier, against Mrs. Eugene Kratz, red-headed World War widow of Budapest and Berlin, were dismissed late yesterday by Alderman H. G. Thomas at a preliminary hearing, and the costs of the case placed on Levine.

Levine charged that the woman had been bothering him since August 1 by demanding that he return $3,000 and two diamond rings which she said he had procured from her in Germany. Levine attempted to prove that he never had known the woman, but when Mrs. Kratz took the stand she told how they had met shortly after Levine's son landed in Germany, following his trip across the ocean, and how Levine had left her in London after getting her money and jewels.

Mrs. Kratz said she came to the United States to get a settlement with Levine and on her arrival learned that he was married. The woman is the mother of two children. She has a breach of promise suit against Levine pending in Youngstown. She said Levine is president of the Sharon Tube Company and has been living in New York, Sharon and Youngstown.

MATHER KNEW EARLY OF STEEL MERGER PLAN

Had Information Before Eaton, Witness Reveals; Judge Probes for Facts

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 30 — Under questioning by Judge David G. Jenkins who sought to clear up certain vital points, William G. Mather, Cleveland financier, testified as a special witness in Common Pleas Court here today to knowledge of the merger negotiations between the Republic Steel and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation, details of which were first revealed by Cyrus S. Eaton, and not of the deal.

Mather, who is president of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, also a associate of Eaton, said he knew of the merger negotiations as early as last February 25, but that he and Henry G. Dalton did not inform Eaton of it until March 7.

LIGHT ON MEETING

Judge Jenkins pressed the witness for details of the famous meeting of March 7 which was held in Mather's office in Cleveland. He questioned Mather closely regarding the conversations that took place at the meeting and as to specific remarks which Eaton had previously testified he made.

Judge Jenkins himself conducted the examination of Mather. He informed opposing attorneys in the start previously that they would be permitted to question the witness later.

Mather said he was first informed of the merger negotiations on February 25 in New York. He said that at the time he remarked to Dalton that he believed the deal would be a favorable one from the standpoint of Sheet and Tube stockholders.

CAN'T RECALL WORDS

Mather was asked by Judge Jenkins if he recalled Eaton mentioning at the meeting of last March 7 that he had other plans for Sheet and Tube.

The financier replied negatively, but said he distinctly remembered that Eaton appeared to be very strongly opposed to the Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem deal.

The direction of Judge Jenkins questioning indicated that he was checking closely on the previous testimony of Eaton. In most instances however Mather was unable to recall the exact conversation that took place at the Cleveland meetings.

LIKENS CHURCH TO POWER LINE

OBERLIN, O., Aug. 30—(AP.)—Spiritual power is much the same as electrical power, the Rt. Rev. Arthur C. Thomson, bishop of Southern Virginia, said in the closing public session of the annual international convention of the Episcopal Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The bishop said:

"Just as we must have a transmission line for carrying electrical current, so we must have a transmission line to bring us spiritual power. God is the central dynamo. He generates the power. The church is the contact through which that current is transmitted to man. To maintain contact with God, to harmonize our minds with his truth, to express toward our fellow men his love; that is the way to the best in life; to powerful living."

Sewanee, Tenn., was selected as the 1931 convention city.

Home Again!

VACATION days are over. Dad is back on the job trying to catch up with his work. Mother is getting the house straightened around and getting the kiddies ready for school. After several weeks in the country, it seems hard for either of them to get quickly settled down to home and city life. What they forgot to do yesterday should be done today. Yet they still forget.

Before they went away, the evening newspaper was an essential and important part of their home life. Dad says, "I'll order the carrier to start delivery again right away," but he forgets it. Night comes and there is no newspaper at the door. Mother says, "I'll call the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow."

But she has to get knickers for the boys, dresses and stockings for the girls, and it slips her mind. And they both miss their newspaper again.

That's why the Sun-Telegraph prints this convenient order blank.

FILL in this blank at once, mail it today and the Sun-Telegraph will come regularly to you, by carrier—rain or shine, hot or cold—no matter what the weather. The Sun-Telegraph carrier boy never misses. He's always on the job.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Girls Return From Summer Camp This Week-End

Now is the time of the great homecoming. And that applies not only to society folk who are at resorts, but to their sons and daughters who have been spending their summer at various camps. The girls' and boys' camps have made themselves very popular this season, I believe, more than any other. And today I can tell you about a large group of girls returning this week-end and the first of the coming week.

The girls have been spending the summer at Keewaydin Camp in Vermont and include Sally Clarkson, daughter of the William Floyd Clarksons, and Jane Eberle, daughter of the William C. Eberles, both of Sewickley, and from Aspinwall, Betty Snowdon, daughter of the junior C. L. Snowdons. And among those from here were Helen and Mary Cocken, daughters of the junior W. York Cockens. Mary Elizabeth Creighton, the daughter of the W. J. Creightons, was another member of the party.

Others included Marguerite and Constance Hillman, daughters of the junior J. H. Hillmans; Henrietta, Polly and Elizabeth, daughters of the George M. Laughlins; Alice McKnight, daughter of the Ray H. McKnights; Gretchen and Frances Steinmeyer, daughters of the Charles Steinmeyers; the R. M. Bushes' daughters, Anne and Charlotte; Helen Mossman, daughter of the Paul B. RELIGION SEEN AS HEALTH AID

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Aug. 30—(AP.)—Religion is a vital factor in the practice of medicine, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., declared in an interview which followed his speech before the surgery section of the British Medical Association. Happiness and health are often as much a state of mind as of body, he said, continuing:

"When a man is about to go on the table in an operating room, if he wishes a visit from a minister in whom he has faith, it gives him confidence no science can furnish."

Heart attacks are one of the most common causes of death among doctors, the Rochester surgeon said in his address to the surgical section. The reason, he said, is that the work of the conscientious surgeon, requiring a high degree of skill and patience, places strain on the heart.

EVENING CREATIONS SEEN IN SCINTILLATING MOOD

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—A bright future may be predicted for scintillating trimming in the evening mode this season. At the first gala festivities of the season where the fashionably elect are appearing in recently created evening costumes, one catches the glimmer of paillettes, of strass and beads. In some cases the gowns are practically covered with paillettes and again there may be express trimming restraint with a single strass ornament used for decorative distinction.

* * *

MATERIALS, too, are destined to glimmer through the Autumn nights. Brocades and lames are used to create luxurious wraps and lustrous satins develop an important number of gowns. Many fur jackets, particularly ermine, are being worn here now. They are seen in various odd lengths, some sleeveless with capes forming sleeves, others are boleros, but draped and fitted effects are general.

* * *

WE HAVE CHOSEN a gown created by Lelong today to show you how effectively the paillette type of evening gowns may be. Here black crin has been chosen for the five graduated flounces which appear on the skirt. The body of the dress is covered with black paillettes.

* * *

A DIFFERENT conception of the use of tiers this season is offered by Worth in this dinner dress of dark blue georgette. Decoration is provided by appliques of large flowers and leaves of red and green on the upper part of the bolero and on the four tiers which form the skirt. The tiers as they are used here suggest an interesting sartorial device for attaining the graceful, gradually extended skirt fulness which characterizes the 1930 evening silhouette.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

The Body in the Basket

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of a murdered man is found in a basket taken from a service truck of the Imperial Laundry. The driver has no conception how it got there. The only clue is a $20 gold piece found beside the body. A former janitor at the Deauville Court Apartment, Thomas Jackson, identifies the body in the basket as that of a tenant, Richard Wythe, a notorious gambler. The police learn of a high-stake poker game in which Wythe had been discovered to be a cheat. One of the players was Clayton Norris. Norris has just been arrested for the embezzlement of $50,000 from his employer. Wythe. Dale learns, was popular with women. He also had a reputation for dealing a crooked game. The reporter visits the scene of the game. He learns some facts about the men who had taken part in it. All of those concerned offer perfect alibis to the police. Jackson is arrested. He was leaving for Arizona with his daughter, who is ill.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER VI.

It was some hours before Robin Dale learned of this. He was, meanwhile, bringing about another important development in the case. Two very definite theories had been formulated by Dale, but as there was no definite proof with either of them, he had not yet offered them to Capt. Blake.

The mystery of Dick Wythe's death had been grabbed by the newspapers, and, after a week's absence of results, they had begun to ride the police. The Daily Journal never followed this practice, which was, of course, a great help to Robin Dale's standing with the department, from the commissioner down.

Dale was, on the day of Jackson's arrest, in the office of the Lahey Realty Corporation, which company had charge of both Deauville Court and Brighton Apartments.

"I am rather anxious to know," Robin Dale said to Mr. Lahey, president of the realty corporation, after he had explained who he was, "if Mr. Carroll, one of your tenants at Deauville Court, had anything to do with Jackson, the janitor, leaving his job."

"No, I think not," said Mr. Lahey, after some deliberation. "As I recall it Jackson came here on the morning of the twenty-first and said he would have to finish that day as the doctor had informed him it was necessary for him to take his daughter to a warmer climate immediately."

After that visit Robin Dale proceeded to the Brighton Apartments and had himself announced at the Saunders apartment. Ernest Saunders and his wife, Grace, were both at home. Dale, of course, had a definite purpose in his visit.

They chatted for awhile, in a general way, about the mystery surrounding Dick Wythe's death, before Dale put his trick into effect. For it was a trick. Prior to his arrival at the apartment the reporter had stopped at a bank and obtained a twenty-dollar gold coin. In the midst of the conversation with the Saunders he bent over, suddenly, and apparently picked a gold coin from the floor.

"Someone's careless about their gold," he said, as he held up the gold piece. "This yours, Mr. Saunders?"

Saunders was perplexed and shook his head. With the apparent discovery of the coin Mrs. Saunders had shown signs of agitation. It was she whom Dale was watching.

"It must be yours, then, Mrs. Saunders," Dale said and handed the coin to her.

She took it without a word, giving tacit acquiescence that it belonged to her. Dale then watched Saunders. A dark cloud rode over his features, and a light dawned in his eyes which made them almost bestial. Without a word he strode from the room. Dale heard sounds from the boudoir . . . then the clinking of gold coins and suddenly Saunders came back into the room holding a palmful of glittering yellow.

Saunders seemed to disregard the presence of Dale. He went straight to his wife, who rose and backed away, involuntarily, greatly frightened.

"Where did you get these?" Saunders demanded.

She made no reply. Dale, having learned all he had come for, edged toward the door. They paid absolutely no attention to him now. Dale opened the door quietly and stepped out into the hall. The last thing he heard was Saunders' voice, just before he closed the door.

"You tramp! I know where they come from."

Dale did not go out the front way. Diagonally across from the ground-floor apartment of Ernest Saunders were the stairs, leading up and down. Dale descended to the basement. Here he found practically the same layout which obtained at Deauville Court. He went out of the basement door, which, during the day, was open, and walked slowly through the alley.

At the service entrance to Deauville Court he paused. This was unquestionably the route taken by Dick Wythe on the night of the murder. Without a doubt he had been at the Saunders apartment. From there, then, it was possible that he could watch his own apartment, keeping informed of Saunders' movements.

At the spot where Dale stood the first act of the crime was probably committed. The rest was simple—inside the basement the slashing with the blunt knife, hiding the body, and then in the morning the ghastly trick of placing it in the basket of the laundry wagon while the driver was about the apartment making his collections.

Dale left the alley on the Fifty-fifth street side and went directly to Capt. Blake's office.

There he learned the startling and unsuspected news of Jackson's arrest.

"I think you'll be able to arrest the guilty one this afternoon, captain," Dale informed him after learning the news.

"Found out something?" asked Capt. Blake.

"I've been following the ladies and found a lot. And, captain, I have a very good reason for wanting everyone at the Wythe apartment late this afternoon. Can it be arranged?"

"I think so," Blake replied. He rarely questioned Dale's motives, having often seen the results they brought.

Dale went to a desk in the office and, for about half an hour, was busily engaged in writing. He had five notes when he finally rose and went to Blake's desk.

"I've written all of them the same note—Saunders and his wife, Carroll, Murdoch, Cochrane, the driver, and Miss Jackson. You'll have Norris and Jackson there? The testimony of any or all of them may be necessary. Here's the note."

Capt. Blake read the sample note. It was very simple. "Will you kindly appear at Richard Wythe's apartment?" it ran, "at 5 o'clock this afternoon?" That was all.

"I want you to sign them, captain. Then have them delivered to the parties in question. I have a reason for not wanting the order telephoned."

Capt. Blake looked at Dale and smiled. But he signed the orders and sent them on their way to delivery within 10 minutes.

"See you at 5, captain," said Dale as he left.

At 5, Ernest Saunders and his wife were the last to arrive. Carroll, Murdoch and the driver, Cochrane, were already in the Wythe apartment. Captain Blake and Jardin had brought young Norris and Jackson. Stella Jackson was not obliged to go in. Dale, waiting in the lobby for the various people, had told her she might wait in the lobby, sparing her the gruesome details, until she might be needed. Dale, when they were all assembled, entered the apartment prepared to name the murderer!

(Who was guilty? What gave Dale the final clue to the murderer? What was the motive for the crime? How was the deed committed? Dale built up a chain of evidence; can you do it? Read the solution in the Sun-Telegraph a week from today.)

SOLUTION TO

Five $1,000 Bills

By ARTHUR HOERL.

As Robin Dale went through the door of Ruth Hackett's apartment he met George Hackett coming in.

"I want you to go with me, George . . . you will know where I will find the man I want."

They went out together and as they searched for the man Robin Dale wanted, the reporter told him what had happened.

Two hours later Robin Dale entered the police station and literally dragged a man into Capt. Morgan's office. Both men looked as if they had been through a terrific struggle. When prisoner lifted his head Capt. Morgan looked upon the battered features of Allan Tenant!

"I was near being a criminal myself tonight, Capt. Morgan . . . but for young Hackett I would have killed this despicable murderer. He strangled a poor, innocent girl to death tonight. But he's ready to confess now.

"I'll tell the story for him. He was an accomplice in the the theft at the bank, an accomplice with Oliver Weadon. He forced Weadon into it when he discovered that the cashier had been gambling and losing heavily, using a little of the bank's funds. Tenant drove away in Dinkie Roberts' taxicab. In the cab, possibly in a discussion over the splitting of the loot, Tenant killed Weadon. Previously, to cover his own trail and part of his deeply-laid plot, he had Weadon actually write the notes to George Hackett and Big Boy Bradshaw. As he anticipated, Roberts tried to blackmail him. That's how the taxi was in front of the bank. But Tenant knew what would happen to Roberts when Bradshaw was informed that he was a stool-pigeon. That would be one out of the way. If Bradshaw suspected the truth (for Tenant also gambled at Bradshaw's place) he had already put young Hackett on the way to getting Bradshaw out of the way.

"These things all worked out as Tenant had planned except that George Hackett, unfortunately for Tenant, picked the wrong day to avenge his wrong.

"Still there was no proof against Tenant until Miss Hackett discovered that the last two missing $1,000 bills had been returned to the bank! There was only one person could do this. She undoubtedly had other evidence against Tenant . . . that's what she called me about this evening and was on the verge of telling me when Tenant, finding that the two $1,000 bills had disappeared from the bank, went to confront her. In the struggle he tore the bills in half and in his frenzy to escape left the two halves clutched in her hand.

"It was these last two bills which fitted the last link into the chain and made the whole diabolical scheme plain to see. I'll turn him over to you, Capt. Morgan . . . I've got to go and look after the—the one who gave her life. . . ."

Dale turned and went slowly out of the office. He never spoke of Ruth to anyone after that bitter night, but, perhaps, it is the memory of her that spurs him on . . . this memory which he has kept always to himself.

We do not have the faculty of remembering stories, good or bad. But we have found a solution for this weakness in our repertoire when we're called upon at gatherings to tell a story, we tell the story of the three bears. We tell it just as it was told in the story books years ago. And it is so naive and innocent and clean that it is a success. Fancy the novelty of a good, clean story these days!

Of course all this has made us the popular party man. No gathering is a success without Pfarr. Hostesses, trading suggestions with one another, invariably urge, "Get Pfarr to tell his story of the three bears."

And now, we are proud and happy to announce, we have recorded the story of the three bears. Miss Mary Gould, who conducts the Pittsburgh Music & Speaking Recording Company, invited us to make a record and what, thought we, could be more appropriate than the story of the three bears? From now on, when we are suddenly taken down with appendicitis or measles and are forced to cancel an engagement, we shall telegraph the hostess:

MRS MIKE YRGH
WORTHINGTON ON THE ALLEGHENY
SORRY CANT COME MEASLES BUT AM SENDING MY RECORD

Thus shall the party life of Pittsburgh be saved from boredom.

* * *

Miss Gould incidentally conducts an unusual correspondence with the inventor of the recording apparatus. When she needs to write she makes instead, a record of her message, and mails the record. Radio announcers and entertainers often record their voices and then listen to the recordings time and again to check themselves. If, for example, Louis Kaufman is slurring his s's or speaking like Floyd Gibbons, he can discover these mistakes by a voice test. (Mr. Kaufman, of course, does not make these mistakes).

Recently the buyer for a Pittsburgh store, awakening in Paris on his birthday anniversary, was surprised to find in the mail a record which contained birthday greetings from his employes in Pittsburgh.

Chester Morris to Get The Girl After This, Says Mr. West

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.

No more will Chester Morris play the heavy who loses the girl at the end of the film.

Roland West, who has the young actor under contract, is the authority for this statement. He shows me dozens of letters from women fans urging that Chester be made into a leading man.

In response to this reaction he has bought a story, False Dawn, from Adela Rogers St. Johns. It will feature Chester as a romantic hero.

West does not [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] himself [illegible] already [illegible] upon [illegible] Death Takes a Holiday for his next. It is said Arlen plans to have Chester also have the lead in this too. But the stage play will be changed to make [illegible]

Chester Morris

West tells me that his protege's whole expression is being changed by the addition of a mustache. In all probability Chester will wear it from now on.

TRIBUTE TO LON

Tuesday night, in a local fight stadium, there was an impromptu memorial to Lon Chaney. It started when the announcer called attention to the vacant seat a ringside which the actor regularly occupied during his life.

With all the lights out, Alan Hale then climbed into the ring, illumined his face with a flashlight and recited a poem in memory to his friend.

The response of the crowd was a touching tribute from men to the memory of a man's man.

STORY FOR GRANT

Though production is slack at Warner Brothers just now, the company is buying stories with an eye to next year's program.

Latest to be purchased is "God's Gift to Women." From the typewriter of Frederick Hazlitt Brennan. As the hero is a small town slicker with a gift for gab, there seems reason to suspect that Warners have Grant Withers in mind for the role.

Grant Withers

The author is the son of a Missouri minister, and up until a few years ago was a newspaperman in St. Louis. He has been a steady contributor of late to a national weekly.

THE PALE GARBO PUTS "ROMANCE" IN THE PENN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Greta Garbo, the pale one, is in the Penn. Her new talkie is the film version of the stage play "Romance." And it is romance!

This time she has the role of an Italian opera singer. She trades her Swedish accent for an Italian one. And she does a good job of it.

She travels in an atmosphere of the fashionable New York of a half century ago. She wears curls and crinolines. In appearance she is a long way from the Woman of Affairs. But she still has affairs. She's the same old Garbo in the clinches.

However, the Garbo is more than an exhibition on how to make love. She is an actress. Also, she understands showmanship. She knows how to get theatrical with slapping effect. She is the type she has the pose and the gestures. Where another might look silly staring dramatically out of windows at falling snow or standing like a statue before a fireplace, the Garbo succeeds in becoming an ornament of emotional grandeur.

THE BIG CLINCH

The plot details a romantic interlude in the life of a young clergyman. And Garbo is the personification of the interlude.

Young Clergyman finds there have been other men. Yet he loves her tremendously. Her face is on every snowflake. Which means her face is all about him for it is snowing a young snowstorm. So he goes to save her soul. He kneels to pray. But he lands in her arms. The big clinch has arrived. Fireman, save my child.

Now comes the parting. The heroine of the Garbo has awakened to a new life. She sends Clergyman back to his church. But her arms aren't empty. She has memories. And isn't this the pretty sentiment?

ONLY A FRIEND

Lewis Stone has a prominent part in the film. He was once the man in the heroine's life. Later, he is philosopher enough to be content with just being a friend.

Mr. Stone does a convincing characterization. He is a real actor. He has been known to "steal" pictures from some of the stars. However, the Garbo retains her right to stardom in this one.

The young clergyman role is taken by Gavin Gordon, a recruit from the footlights. And he does well enough.

The stage presentation is "Get Happy." It has the banjo-playing Bobby Gillette as m. c. It has Jack Pepper, who clowns the songs, as its big feature. And it has some other entertainers, including the blonde, May Joyce, who is personality singer, and a couple slapstick comedians. About a dozen Chester Hale girls are present.

Wild Oscar performs at the organ and David Pesetski performs in the orchestra pit.

Leavings

Whispered vows in a star-swept night,
Ships of dreams that we sent to sea,
Now as we reckon our sorry plight
These are nothing but memory;
What became of the castles tall,
Built by words that were soft and sweet,
Castles we claimed could never fall?—
Crumpled now at our very feet.

Love goes over and love goes past,
Strange how phrases turn drab and cool;
We have come to the end at last,
Knowing well that we've played the fool.
Time to part from remembered lanes,
Time to seek for some fairer trails;
Grief and heartbreak alone remains—
Grim reminders as rapture fails.

PARDON HER SHOVE

The Queen of the Winchell tribe, June by name, seldom makes the round of the town with her Good Provider. She prefers books if her children are not getting in her hair, that is.

The other Sabbath midnight however, she was prevailed on to accompany us to here, there and Harlem. The proceedings could not arouse or excite her but she carried her boredom with grace.

At about 5:30 in the yawning she ordered the third cup of java. "If you keep drinking coffee," we scolded, "how do you expect to sleep?"

How do you stay awake," she snapped, "if you don't drink it?"

IN FEWER WORDS

Suggested nickname for Broadway: The Bridge of 1's.

HEHEHEH

Take it from Benny Rubin. He would have you believe that while he was standing in front of a Broadway theater the other noon he forgot himself for a moment and placed his hand on a hip.

And an adagio dancer jumped through!

HOW EMBARRASSING

A reader sends this story to caution those who take themselves too seriously. Caruso, it appears, once was traveling in the Mid-West during a storm and was forced to seek shelter in a farmhouse. When the woman of the house failed to recognize him, Caruso asked her if she knew him.

"Nope, I don't," she noped.

"I am Enrico Caruso!" he snapped.

"Oh, yeah?" she rejoined. Then she telephoned her husband.

"Guess who just came in to see us. Robinson Crusoe!"

CONFESSION

I met a stork and said to him,
"Oh, whither do you go?"
It answered me, "See Winchell;
he's
The only one who'd know!"

Oh, Hi: that isn't it, at all!
The thing to you is Greek, yet!
I merely know a lot of folks
Who cannot keep a secret!*

A FORM OF CRITICISM

The actors nowadays need not fear the critics so much as the electricians who juggle the bulbs on the theatre fronts. Take the sign on the Capitol Theater the other night. It read:

TROUBLE IS BROUN!

The race for Congress in the 17th District between Heywood Broun (Socialist) and Ruth Pratt and Judge Brodsky is exciting hundreds of locals who believe that the columnist-actor-author candidate is going to win.

Two days ago heavy money was wagered (5 to 1) that Broun would transfer his other suit to Washington soon and yesterday the odds were 3 to 1.

His admirers also point out that if he is elected he will not prove to be a Cong-yesman.

PAREE GETS YOU

Ray Long, the Cosmopolitan mag chief, was doing Paris with Leon Gordon, the artist, a few weeks ago. After being cabbed about the town they drove up to the Hotel Crillon. Long paused at the curb to pay the cabman. Gordon was getting restless. "Aw, come on!" yelled Gordon.

"Wait just a minute," cried Long. "I don't want to ruin Paris!"

"It's 2,000 years old," hiccoughed Leon, "and he doesn't want to ruin it!"

SWIFTIES

Harold Ross, the New Yorker editor, is funny that way. He doesn't want his name in the papers. He was so saying last night and the only place he wants his tag, he added, is on his tombstone, with the sentimental inscription: "Just Say You Saw Me."

Much better was Dorothy Parker's self-prepared epitaph: "Excuse My Dust!"

For ours we prefer: "Excuse My Lust."

MR. COHEN GOES TO THE PLAY

The Journal of Commerce's drama and chin-ema oracle, Mr. Julius Cohen, has the following to say about D. W. Griffith's newest achievement, "Lincoln": "Walter Huston must be proud. Griffith should be proud. Lincoln will be proud . . ."

And they shot Lincoln!

Pittsburgher Keeps Place on Faculty

WAYNESBURG, Aug. 30.—Announcement was made that McClurg Miller, Pittsburgh musician, will be retained on the staff of the Waynesburg college musical faculty for the coming year as a vocal instructor.

MR. PENNER ON STAGE, FARCE ON SCREEN IN ENRIGHT

By KAYE GODARD

The Enright features a farcical production, "Oh Sailor Behave," on its screen. It stars the comedy team of Olsen and Johnson.

The progress of the picture is interrupted at frequent intervals for the audience to hear snatches of songs, which aren't so bad as songs, but which don't fit in the story very happily.

Olsen and Johnson clown their way through the show, sporting around in Naples, and end up on board a battle ship, cleaning the deck. Lowell Sherman is discovered playing a minor but his acting is, as always, superbly nonchalant and easy.

MR. PENNER CAPERS

In the stage show Vanessi and Joe Penner tie for the top place. Vanessi shows the new dance craze, Rumba rhythm, which turns out to be a mixture of a hula hula and a glorified shimmy. Penner is welcomed with enthusiasm. He cuts capers all over the stage and finally breaks away from the audience.

The Enright rockets, who are trained by Ruth Miller, a former member, come out with some more good chorus work and rhythmic stepping.

AT THE ORGAN

Johnny Mitchell's organ presentation is called "School Daze" and is designed along exceedingly humorous lines. Johnny himself arises out of the depths of the orchestra pit, all decked out in a cap and gown, which give him a scholastical appearance. He conducts his class with all due seriousness, beginning with the ever popular "School Days" and ending with nothing less than "Till We Meet Again."

Tape Now Records 'Phone Messages

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—If a German can't locate a party on the telephone, he will be able to leave a message for him. The government telephone monopoly has developed a method of recording spoken messages on a ticker tape. When it will be put into general use is uncertain.

Kennywood Season Will End Labor Day

The second annual Kennywood Park Mardi Gras will close tonight. Music for dancing will be played this afternoon and evening by Johnny Brown and His Great White Fleet Orchestra. Kennywood's season will close with the annual Labor Day celebration Monday. It will reopen next April.

GANGSTER GUNS BARK AGAIN ON SCREEN IN SHERIDAN

By CHARLES A. EARLEY

Universal's latest production, "Outside the Law," starring Mary Nolan, the former Imogene Wilson, is current in the RKO Sheridan Square. It is ordinary screen entertainment.

Another of those gangster yarns so current from Hollywood a few years ago, "Outside the Law" appears as a voice from Limbo and lets the movie-going public know that scenario writers and directors have not forgotten the potentialities of rattling guns, gangsters and policemen.

Miss Nolan as a bank robber's "moll" with her boy friend, portrayed by Owen Moore, play the game of hide and seek with the police after "pulling" a slick job. For weeks they conceal themselves in an apartment, not knowing a policeman occupies the one adjoining. The policeman has a little boy and eventually they come to love him. But this isn't all. Lots of things happen. And to top matters off the child leads them right into the hands of the judge. A smash ending, however, lets everyone know "they lived happily ever after."

The picture shows restrained direction. Tod Browning made it.

Despite the star position accorded the tempestuous Nolan, Moore gives the best performance. Edward G. Robinson gives both good support.

Short film entertainment includes a sound cartoon and various "shots" of the recent A. A. U. contests at the Stadium.

"QUEEN HIGH" BRINGS LAUGHS, SONGS TO ALDINE

"Queen High," taken from the musical comedy of the same name, shows in the Aldine. It is a rollicking comedy filled with peppy songs and the same old musical comedy atmosphere.

Charles Ruggles, as one of the partners of a firm which deals in ladies' garters, gives a riotous performance. The part of the other member of the firm is played by Frank Morgan, who also acts creditably.

The arguments and fights in which the partners are involved grow hotter and more ferocious until the day when a lawyer is called in. He deals them each a hand of poker and draws up a contract which states that the loser of the game is to be the butler of the winner for a year. The following events are laughable and eventually difficulties are overcome and the show ends with a big splash.

The love theme is also much in evidence and the parts of the two most closely connected with it are played in a gay manner by Ginger Rodgers and Stanley Smith.

Gene Dennis, the girl psychic, is appearing in person as an added feature to the film program.

Short screen subjects include one of those "Silly Symphonies" and an entertaining skit, the Song Writers Revue.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question:—Some English people are worried because their throne is without a male heir presumptive. Is that anything to worry about?

Dick Jennings

DICK JENNINGS, student, Oakland—No, it isn't. A female heir to the throne ought to be all right — women have been successful in executive positions here so why not in England?

Emanuel Rose

EMANUEL ROSE, construction company president, East Liberty. — That situation shouldn't cause any worry. It might, if it continues, be of a beneficial nature to England and not a detriment. Anyway it's nothing to worry over.

Miss OBrien

MISS LUCY O'BRIEN, waitress, South Side. —Well, it may be a cause for excitement but there isn't anything that can be done about it, so why should people waste their time worrying.

Miss Erickson

MISS RUTH ERICKSON, typist, Carrick—Of course it isn't. That's a silly thing to get worried about. If, by chance, there should never be a male heir to the throne I don't see why a woman wouldn't be all right.

R. L. HANST

R. L. HANST, advertising manager, Mt. Oliver. Monarchies are a thing of the past. A democracy is the right form of government now and perhaps this situation will show that to England.

Paul Stewart

PAUL STEWART, salesman, Beaver. — There isn't any cause for alarm there that I can see. The Prince of Wales will probably marry soon in spite of the fact that he has remained single for such a long time.

Will Rogers Says:

TAHOE TAVERN, Cal., Aug. 30.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Did you read about the nominations in the state of Idaho? You remember Senator Borah used to be quite a favorite up there? Well, I never saw a man going back so fast as he is. Why the other day there was actually half of one county that wasn't for him for a unanimous nomination. The Democrats nominated no opponent against him. They shouldn't, for he is the best Democrat in America. But that half a county being against him just shows you can't be at the top always.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Raquel Is Left Alone in Parisian Hotel

CHAPTER XL.

"Ah, Monsieur Alphonse, we have been expecting you." Raquel could have cried out with delight.

This hotel clerk spoke English. He could understand, if it became necessary to make herself understood. He had appraised her. Was smiling at Alphonse with something more than appreciation of patronage.

"I have reserved for you the suite you like best," he said. "At the back of the house. You will find it quiet."

He continued to address Alphonse.

Raquel's head lifted. Her black eyes blazed. Her white teeth were bared and gleaming.

She meant to ask for whom the suite was reserved.

With a little movement that might have been accident, but which was intent, Alphonse intercepted her.

"Mademoiselle thanks you," he said affably. "She is alone. You will assign an English maid to her room please. Her personal maid arrives later."

The clerk busied himself with a register.

"And monsieur's suite?" he inquired solicitously, after a moment.

Shown to Suite

"I shall not require one. I am stopping in my apartment. Here is the number," scribbling some figures and letters on a card from the desk. "Put it where it will not be lost. That is good. Merci. Mademoiselle Rojos will communicate with you when there is anything she wants. See that you give her every attention."

"You may be sure she will be quite safe, Monsieur."

The man in the tiny elevator to which they were shown had lost an arm. His breast held a double row of medals hung on colored ribbons.

Later Raquel was to learn he was one of the "blesses." The shell-shattered remnant of a war that had put its blight upon a world because a king in Potsdam suffered from delusions of power.

They were shown into a large drawing room. Done in the elegance of the French, which managed, somehow, to supply the comfort that its look of fragility denied.

There were two bedrooms.

One dainty and feminine, with Cupids flinging rose garlands over the Aubusson carpet and fluted draperies of deep rose against gray and ivory walls. The French can never forget their greatest periods of decorative art.

The second chamber was plainer. There was something of severity about it.

Raquel hesitated on its threshold. She felt as she had that day she ran, not knowing where nor caring, from the Church of the Blessed Virgin, where her marriage bans had just been published. Burning hot. Icy cold. Her black eyes had widened until they were two volcanic pools of red flame with black smoke swirling around their banks. The heat of those two flaming pools caused Alphonse to draw back. Their breath scorched him.

"This chamber will do very well—for your maid," he said, unable to escape the fascination of those scorching eyes.

Alphonse Leaves

"Yes?" she said, managing to keep her voice steady. "I didn't know I was to have a maid."

"It will be necessary."

Had she been too hasty in her conclusions? Had she attributed to Alphonse such evil intent as he did not harbor? She must have. He was clever. He would do nothing so crude, so crass. So was getting to be like Greta—finding mountains in mole-hills.

Yet—the clerk at the desk. He had appraised her boldly. His way with Alphonse. Insinuating.

"I shall leave you now, Mademoiselle," Alphonse was saying. "You will ring when you want anything. I return for you at eight. We go then to dine in the Bois. Your trunks will be up shortly. Select a gown with color. Color is better for the outdoors. You must look your best on your first appearance in Paris."

She followed him to the door.

"Au 'voir," he said gravely. He did not offer to kiss her hand.

Raquel closed the door. Locked it.

She stood before a mirror studying herself. The fires of her wrath had taken toll of her Beauty. Her pallor had lost its creaminess. It was dead white. The pools of flame that were her eyes no longer blazed. They swam in tumbling clouds of black smoke.

She walked to a window, pulled aside the heavy draperies. Below her was a narrow street. People were passing back and forth. Their carriage was strangely unfamiliar. They walked jauntily, with a spring that was almost a swagger.

"I'm in Paris. This is Paris." She walked quickly across the room, back to the window, stopping on the way to pick up a small china tray from a table and examining it closely. The unfamiliar figures were still passing back and forth in the narrow street beneath the window.

Greta Calls

"No," she assured herself firmly. "I am not dreaming. This is France. Paris, France. And I'm here in this room."

The whir of telephone bell in the room of roses gave a final touch of reality to the scene. Raquel ran to answer. As she hoped, it was Greta's voice that came rippling across the wire.

"Hello, old dear? Everything okay?"

"Yes." Eagerly. "And you?"

"Swell. you oughta see my room. Got everything in it but an ice-box."

"Your room? You have only one?"

"Sure. How many did you think I'd have? I left my family home."

"I don't know—only—there are three for me."

"Three! Holy cats!"

"A bedroom, a drawing room and a room for a maid."

"A room for your maid? That's a hot one. Why don't she live in the servants' quarters?"

"I—I—"

A pause. Then Greta's laugh rang out.

"Ain't Alphonse the sly fox?" said Greta. "He's going to get you a guardian. A trusty who will spy on you and pass him the goings-on. It's plain as a couple of noses on your face."

Raquel's mind leaped to Greta's solution. It was more acceptable, by far, than the other. Let this silly man set a spy to live with her. There was nothing she had to conceal—in the present. And her past was locked away where no sneak-thief could find it.

"Did Alphonse leave any instructions about what we are to wear?" asked Greta.

"No, except that we are to look our best."

"Then I'll dash over and we'll go over the list together."

"Oh please do," Raquel implored.

"Be there in a twink. Order up a flock of champagne cocktails for me, will you, dearie? They have the best in Paris at that bar close to the elevator."

VERSATILE LADY

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

Versatile Lady, the girl and woman we have with us today, ladies and gentlemen! Fair lady of a hundred selves.

"All things to all men!" You've heard that phrase of course—much pondered upon in secret by women, both plain and glorified. "I'd like to be that," breathes Sally Jane, looking fearfully about for the big ears of her Father and Mother. "To be that storied woman!" thinks plain Martha with a lap-full of socks and stockings to mend and the clock, all black and white, holding its hands at 11 P. M., and the man to whom she started out at ecstatic 18 to be these "all things," fast asleep. She thinks it deep down, hidden under all the other thoughts that the world may know about if it likes.

"All things to the world!" This famed creature has never been real—off the pages of fiction and mythology. History seems to rather teem with her—: we have grown used to believing Cleopatra the ravishing, enchanting example of a woman who was all women of all types in one. Yet she lacked the mother-side; for she killed herself and left a little son to the terrible mercies of an enemy-world. The most-pictured talked-of siren of the world, wise, beautiful, subtle, intelligent, was not "ALL THINGS."

Now to leave off dead soberness, and to be half serious and half in fun. What we want to say is that the lady who is an array of ladies all rolled into one comes very nearly this fall of Nineteen-Thirty, materializing before your very popping eyes! For when can you remember to have seen so many different styles of girls and women, all in a summer day and eye? She's all YOUR girl—but she wears her skirts at half a dozen different lengths, wears half a dozen different moods in frocks, and changes her character to fit them. She is an athletic nymph in shorts in the morning, an elegant young woman in the afternoon, and a demure darling in floating, flowered mists to her silver heels at night. AND the silver heels is all you see of the fabled "Queen's legs" IN the evening.

She is all frankness and slaying play-clothes at early day, all manner and elegant detail after lunch, and all mystery and charm under the moon.

This goes for the girl who works alongside the man. She swims with him in what once was an "infant's suit." She works beside him in a smart, subdued "ohn-sohm." And she meets him for a show in the most feminine of outfits that the most old-fashioned man could ask her. Versatile Lady?

Harry Cautions Madge to Watch Mary

"I'm anxious to hear your data on the detective," I told Harry Underwood as we stood upon the veranda of the Hasbrouck home in the Catskill Mountains. "But I'm more anxious to know how you eluded him. One minute he was close upon our trail. The next he was stopped by a policeman, though he was breaking no traffic law, and we did not see him again. I couldn't help thinking that you were responsible in some way, although how you could have been I don't know."

"You're a sapient dame," Mr. Underwood said in the flippant tone which he always uses when he is talking of any personal exploit, "but your imagination isn't following its usual hectic flight. Cast your mental eye over my wide acquaintance both with cops and gunmen and then consider what a wonderful invention the gifted Mr. Bell gave to the world a few decades ago."

"You telephoned that officer," I exclaimed, "describing the man and his car, and asked him to hold the detective on some pretext while you changed your route and got out of his reach."

"Whether you're guessing or deducing," Mr. Underwood drawled, "you're right on both counts. You see the policeman at that station is a mighty good friend of mine. I saved him from an awful jam once and he's never forgotten it. I don't know what pretext my pal held him on, but if it were anything from driving past a red light to arson or murder I'll bet a case could be made out against him. My cop wasn't running any risk in holding him out."

"Then there's no danger of his coming up here now," I said breathlessly.

"I didn't admit that," he said slowly, "but you don't need to worry. That's why I'm talking to you now."

I swung toward him startled. "Tell me what you want me to do," I said.

"Keep watch over Mary," was his astounding reply.

"Mary!" I gasped. "You don't mean you think Jack Leslie—"

"No," he said thoughtfully, "I don't believe that lad has the resources to hire private detectives, although he might be behind it at that. But my instincts are pointing to somebody else whom I'm not going to name just at present for fear you'll have me sent to Bellevue as soon as we get back home."

"No one could be as dangerous as Leslie," I said with real relief at his last assertion.

"If my theory is right she won't be in any danger at all," he said, "but it will be imperative that you or Lil, or this Mrs. Hasbrouck here—she seems an awfully good scout—should know where Mary is every second of the time. If you can, promise me that I can go back to New York with a mind at ease—about this flat-footed dick."

"Of course I can promise you that, and keep it. I do not need to explain things to Mrs. Hasbrouck, or I can invent some plausible excuse, and she is a most resourceful lady. She can play chaperon to Mary if both Lillian and I are away from her at the same time. Do you want Mary to know anything about it?"

"Yes—and no," he returned. "I want her to be on her guard, but I don't want to give her the dope that's circulating in my so-called brain. Tell her that I've a vague hunch that Jack Leslie is circulating around this territory. That ought to keep her within bounds. But don't scare her too much."

"I won't," I promised, although I did not see how I was to keep from frightening Mary if I had to deliver that message. "But I want a promise from you, Lillian told me how important it was that you should get back to New York tonight. I want your promise that you will make that bus."

"That depends upon how soon you get back from the Cosgroves," he said. "I want some dope about the situation over there that only you can give me. I want to know what sort of reception Lil's going to get from this Mrs. Cosgrove and if she'll need me with her. I'd rather be broiled on a gridiron than go over there—but if Lil needs me—"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

This Married Life

Marriage is the point at which a man stops "babying" a woman, and expects her to begin "mothering" him.

* * *

The breakfast-nook has taken the place of the big old-fashioned dining room; but there is still space enough in it for the big, old-fashioned before-breakfast family row.

* * *

When a man waits until after forty-five to begin looking for romance, he is likely to discover that his eyes are so dim, that he can't tell the real thing from all the cheap, little imitations that are offered him.

* * *

Funny, how a man can sit on the front piazza, all day long, just thinking and thinking that he'll trim the hedge or spray the roses—and then go off to bed, feeling as though he had done a hard day's work.

* * *

Marriage doesn't actually change a man's nature, it merely removes his romantic disguise and permits him to act perfectly natural.

A man may wear a green necktie, break most of the Commandments, and make only $30 a week, and still be an "ideal husband," if he never forgets to send his wife flowers on their wedding-anniversary, never insists on seeing her before breakfast, and never kisses her as though it were a "chore."

* * *

After a man has spent an evening describing the wholesome, natural, intelligent sort of girl he is looking for, it is something of a shock to meet him later with the highly-tinted little moron he enjoys playing around with.

* * *

Of course, a woman should always look as charming as possible; but, after all, it isn't a man's eyes but his ears that grow weary, after marriage.

* * *

Lots of men do not feel that the Sabbath has been properly observed unless they have played at least a couple of rounds of golf, before lunch.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Obstruction of Veins or Arteries.

Quite wonderful is the system of arteries and veins, serving as carriers of the blood to and from the heart. The blood goes by way of the arteries from the heart and to heart it returns through the veins. Every moment of the 24 hours the vessels are doing their work, slowing down to a slight extent during sleep.

DR. COPELAND

Both arteries and veins possess all the elements entering into the construction of other parts of the anatomy. The larger arteries and veins, with nerves and muscles, are supplied with blood by the lesser or secondary arteries and veins. All the blood vessels are capable of doing their very important work until something happens to prevent.

When an inflammation of the structure of a vein or veins takes place it is called "phlebitis." When inflammation sets in there is an oozing of a fluid, which is a product of the inflammation, and this covers the inner lining of the vein. It accumulates until it blocks the passage of the blood stream, when a clot forms.

The effect of this process is the production of a swelling of the limb or part involved. Pain and tenderness are noted. The inflamed vein feels hard and knotted to the touch. It seems almost like a piece of rope. When it is deep-seated it is impossible to detect inflammation of a vein.

At times the clot which forms in the vein may become infected. Pus forms, and if the vein is entirely stopped up by it an abscess may form and discharge. Then the trouble is over. But if the pus gets into the blood stream it is carried throughout the body, producing a general blood poisoning, which is dangerous.

The causes of phlebitis are many. It may follow an injury or an operation. Following childbirth there may be some trouble of the veins. Influenza and typhoid fever sometimes have phlebitis as a complication.

Treatment depends on the cause and the size of the vein involved. It is important to protect the part from movement and injury. In a week or so the clot is absorbed and all is well.

If the trouble is in the leg the limb should be elevated a few inches above the body position and the patient kept quiet. After the fever and acute symptoms have disappeared gentle massage may be had. Later on an elastic bandage can be used.

In the case of phlebitis where pus forms an operation is required. Every case should have the attention of a physician.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Would He Have Gone Bad After the Proper Training?

What's the young crook's side of the story? Here it is.

Why does a youngster—sound in limb and brain—go wrong? Here's why, according to one of them.

An outlandish jumble of badness and braggadocio you'll say. A vicious young smarty strutting his stuff. Maybe. But before you do your judging, read his story.

It is only an indictment of a bad boy?

Or is it also an indictment of a country which, while boasting of the finest and freest educational system in the world, nevertheless permits its boys and girls to grow up without any trade training? Think it over, as you read it.

Dear Sally Martin:

I don't know why I'm writing you this letter. Maybe it's because I'm not so hard as I think I am. At any rate, I want to tell my story to someone.

Two years ago I was just like other fellows—clean and square and anxious to get ahead. I'm changed now. I'm tough. Bad all through, I guess. But there are other changes too. When I was good I was broke and out of a job most of the time. Now I have plenty of money and nothing but excitement and high life. Before, I had a few friends as poor and worried as myself. Now I have a regular hangout with real chums to pal with—chums, I know, who'd say—"Here, Jack. Here's my last dime—but it's yours."

The world would call us a crooked bunch and we are. There's Hal, Bud and Eddie, all hard as nails, but straight to their own kind. Jim and Spike have gone over the road. Maybe some of us will meet them soon. Maybe some of us will meet Dick, who got himself killed.

Yes, I know what you're saying. The same old line they all pull—the road is short. The prison looms ahead. Crime doesn't pay.

Well, suppose it doesn't? None of us are afraid. Prison can't scare us no matter how bad it is, it can't be as bad as the lousy life we were living two years ago.

Maybe you wonder how we got this way. Bud and Jim were alone in the world. Me, Eddie and Hal lived with our families out on the Coast. (I am writing this from Chicago.) We were all young fellows, around twenty. None of us had any regular trade. We were all jobless—couldn't find any regular work and didn't know how to do anything in particular if we had. We sponged off our families and they were as sick of it as we were. But still, we were honest. We were square to the world but the world wasn't square to us. Everyone turned us down when we asked for work. Agencies strung us along. Want ads were the bunk. Loafing is great for a while, but after a time it gets your goat. So Eddie and Hal and me, we teamed up and came East, where we met Jim and Bud and Dick. Spike came in later.

We thought Chicago was going to be different, but it wasn't. There wasn't any more chance for us there than anywhere else. Porters' jobs. Dishwashing for a few days, then out again in the streets. Do you call those jobs for regular fellows?

So we made our own chance. Now we are living as good as any, and better than most. We have the best of everything. You'd say, we've gone wrong. I suppose we have. But it sure has paid. And you can't often say as much as that for living straight.

So far most of us have steered clear of the police. Of course, when it comes, we'll take it on the chin and get put away. But while it lasts we're sitting pretty. And we've got more morals than you think. Bud is aiming to quit after he gets enough. Hal is even better than that. He is awful quiet. He keeps a list of the jobs we pull off and says some day he is going to pay back every "loan" he has made to date.

"It's great, all right. But sometimes I get to thinking of my mother. I wonder if she would forgive me if she knew. Gosh! JACK."

Well, what's your verdict?

Would this boy be a decent citizen instead of a gangster if you and I, through the schools we maintain, had fitted him to cope with the world? Would he have turned wolf if instead of washing our hands of him after high school, and leaving him to the dubious luck of "slave markets," we had kept a friendly hand on his shoulder until he was placed?

Or would he have gone bad anyway?

What do you think?

Horoscopes

Sunday, August 31

Sunday's horoscope is prophetic of a sudden and quite unforseen state of affairs which may prove to be radical as well as far-reaching in its effect on the life and its environment and contacts. It promises an abrupt upheaval, which, however, promises to open up splendid prospects and desirable adventures, but these may give rise to profound introspection or serious consideration as affecting the private affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of quite unexpected change or removal, with the interests and private affairs suddenly projected into new directions and personal contacts and environment. The personal reactions to this upheaval may tend toward serious contemplation or introspection.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity, skill and original creative genius, at the same time having an inner vision steady and profound. It should make a spectacular success of its life.

Monday, September 1

Monday's astrological forecast stresses affairs artistic, social, domestic and romantic, although business may be expected to run along in accustomed grooves. There is hint of minor changes or journeys, but these may be auxiliary to the development of the aforesaid personal activities. The mental attitude may be uplifted and aspiring, with a leaning toward poetry, music and mysticism.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the domestic, affectional, social and artistic activities may be uppermost in the attention. In this connection there may be change or travel, although business is under fairly safe auspices. The trend of mind may, however, be to the cultural, utopian or mystical rather than the solidly practical.

A child born on this day should be kindly, lovable, popular in its personal life, leaning toward the higher and finer expressions of art, music, literature and mysticism.

Household Hints

When opening a cocoa or baking powder can, first tap the can on the table a few times on the bottom. Then remove label and open and you will have no waste in spilling.

A shirtwaist box or wooden chest may be covered with a gay cretonne cover and serve as a holder for the youngster's toys. It is a great aid in keeping the child's room in order and when the child is taught to put them back after playing, mother's troubles are about over.

GENERAL TRADE IMPROVES HERE

Cooler Weather Stimulates Wearing Apparel Demand; Crude Oil Prices Higher

There has been a moderate improvement in business circles here with retail trade stimulated by demand for fall wearing apparel due to the early opening of schools and the cooler weather which is prevailing, according to R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Weekly Review. Jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel, dry goods and shoes report demand somewhat better and look for further improvement. Sales as a whole, however, continue somewhat lower than a year ago.

Sales of groceries and provisions continue in fair volume, although prices are averaging from 10 per cent to 15 per cent lower than last year at this time. There is a moderate demand for hardware, while the demand for lumber and other building materials continues quiet.

COLLECTIONS UP

Demand for sanitary and heating equipment is still very quiet, although showing a very moderate improvement. Crude oil production shows some increase throughout the country, although Pennsylvania grades are being produced at about the rate prevailing for several weeks and several grades have been advanced 25 cents and 35 cents per barrell.

While some jobbers report a slight improvement in collections, the general average continues to be slow.

West Texas Road Delays Extension

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Gulf & West Texas Railway has petitioned Interstate Commerce Commission for a time extension of from three to six months within which to begin and complete construction of a new line in Texas. Construction was to have begun by October 1, 1930, and completed on or before September 30, 1932.

PIPING STREAM FOR MILLION-DOLLAR IMPROVEMENT

GRADING AT NEW ALLEGHENY COUNTY MEMORIAL PARK

GETS LEASES ON OIL LAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Freeport Texas Company has acquired leases on about 2,000 acres on the Stratton Ridge salt dome, Brazoria County, Texas, where sulphur prospecting will be started at once with three rigs. This is one of the largest salt domes on the Gulf Coast, located midway between the company's two sulphur producing properties at Hoskins Mound and Bryan Mound which are 20 miles apart.

This is the third of a series of sulphus explorations now being undertaken by Freeport Texas Company. Drilling operations for sulphur at Humble Salt Dome, Harris County, Texas, and at properties leased from Shell Petroleum Corporation at Black Bayou, Cameron Parish, Louisiana, are also being conducted by the company.

Stroton Ridge Dome is advantageously located for economical sulphur development, being near existing highways, gas lines and power system and only eight miles from the port of Freeport through which most of the company's present sulphur output is shipped.

Fireproofing Earnings Maintained

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NATIONAL FIREPROOFING Corporation continues to operate its plants in excess of 80 per cent of capacity. Operations at several points are booked for the balance of this year. Sales of specialty products have been particularly successful. The demand for Vitritile, which was introduced only two years ago, has been large. Markets for this product for exterior as well as interior use are being developed.

Gains in sales of specialty products have compensated for the slow rate of general building activity. A large demand for conduit tile from public utilities has also contributed to sales volume although this type of business may drop below 1929 in the latter months of the year.

The introduction of new products has been under consideration. Production on these, however, may not be started until the market for recently launched products has been fully developed.

Makes Tile Products

THE COMPANY MAKES a complete line of hollow fireproof building tile, underground conduit, silo tile and other special clay products. It operates 22 plants located in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Close to these plants the company has clay deposits to provide a supply of material for 60 years operations. The production amounts to over 1,000,000 tons a year.

Manufacturing efficiency has been greatly increased during recent years. The addition of new products has also materially improved the company's position from the standpoint of both sales and earnings.

Earnings Maintained

EARNINGS WERE GREATER than last year up to July 1. Officials expect some decline to be shown during the second half of the year. Profits for 1930 are expected to be nearly as great as in 1929. In that year net profit after all charges amounted to $1,368,829. After deduction of preferred dividends this was equivalent to $10.03 a share on 89,226 shares of common stock. In 1928 net profit was $513,084 or $3.25 a share on 158,010 shares of $50 par 7 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock outstanding at that time. In 1927 net profit was only $179,414 or $1.13 a share on the preferred stock.

The capitalization has since been simplified. New 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock has been exchanged for the old non-cumulative preferred stock on a share for share basis. The new preferred is convertible into common on a share for share basis until December 31, 1935. This change eliminated the possibility of any legal disputes over the right of the old non-cumulative preferred stock to unpaid dividend of previous years.

Common On $3 Basis

THE COMMON STOCK has been placed on a $3 annual dividend basis. An initial dividend of 75 cents a share was declared payable on May 1. This was followed by a dividend of the same amount payable August 1.

The continuation of sales and earnings at a high rate indicates that the company will be able to continue this rate in spite of the unsatisfactory conditions of general business.

George H. Snyder's column on business and financial topics will not appear during his vacation. The column will be resumed on Tuesday, September 16.

Continental Can Starts New Plant

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Work of clearing the site for the new Camden, N. J., plant of Continental Can Company, Inc., has been completed and construction will begin at once. The new plant, which will employ between 500 and 600 men, will have a total floor space of approximately 1,250,000 square feet and will be one of the largest of the 35 plants which Continental Can Company has in various parts of the United States and Cuba. Completion is scheduled for early spring.

The Camden plant will produce "open top" cans for packing fruits, vegetables, soups and other foods. The plant is close to the areas of Southern New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, which produce enormous quantities of peas, tomatoes and other canning crops.

STEEL SCRAP PRICES UP

Following increasing firmness in the scrap market in the Pittsburgh district during the past several weeks, an almost general advance in heavy melting steel scrap has taken place.

The movements of scrap and steel prices are at present contradictory, as declines were noted in several finished products at Pittsburgh, Chicago and New York. However, in confirmation of the scrap movement there is the unwillingness on the part of mills to quote far ahead, present concessions being granted for immediate business.

Also, the Iron Age has reported that at least one producer had notified customers that it would advance bar, shape and plate prices in the middle of next month. Nevertheless, further tests will be necessary to confirm the direction of scrap prices, which still are well below those of a year ago.

COAST STOCKS OF OIL OFF

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Gasoline stocks in Pacific Coast territory decreased 487,263 barrels during July and at the end of the month amounted to 14,491,269 barrels, the Bureau of Mines reports. Heavy crude and fuel oil stocks totaled 104,170,002 barrels, a decrease of 836,654 barrels during July and stocks of refinable crude dropped 85,064 barrels to 39,387,730 barrels.

Fifty refineries operating 63.2 per cent of capacity ran 566,001 barrels of crude oil to stills daily during July, a decrease of 38,064 barrels a day from June.

Total shipments of all oils amounted to 7,962,831 barrels during July, a decrease of 890,856 barrels from June, due chiefly to a decrease in gasoline shipments of 872,951 barrels to 435,843 barrels.

Amalgamated Silk Petitions Receiver

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Acting on a resolution of the board of directors at a meeting held August 28, Amalgamated Silk Corporation, filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in federal court. Company was formed to take over the assets of D. G. Dery Corporation, silk manufacturers, which went into the hands of receivers in 1923. The petition makes no statement of assets or liabilities, but schedules will be filed in 10 days.

Chicago Discount Rate Unchanged

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Following the meeting of Chicago Federal Reserve Bank directors, no announcement was made on the rediscount rate, which is 3½ per cent.

NEW CEMETERY ENGINEERING FEAT

Record Contract Let by County Memorial Park; Landscaping Completed

Construction of the Allegheny County Memorial Park, landscaping of which is nearing completion, has been a major engineering problem. The contract for draining, grading, roads, water system and other improvements to the 100-acre tract amounted to $1,050,000, said to be the largest single contract for similar work ever let. An additional contract for the combined chapel and administration building and the chimes tower will be placed later. These structures are estimated to cost about $500,000.

The first 30 acres will be under grass this fall if the weather is satisfactory. The remaining area will be seeded next spring. The grading, drains and water system are practically completed in a large portion of the park.

CHIMES TOWER

The work requires 11 miles of water pipe and 11 miles of drain tile. It has been necessary to enclose a stream in concrete pipe at a depth of eight feet.

Before starting grading all the top soil was removed and this is now being replaced in preparation for seeding with grass. The first surface of the roads in the west side of the property has been completed and the curbs have been set. The final surface will be put on thh roads after the completion of the construction work.

The chimes tower will be 150 feet high. It will have 75 bells and is said to be the largest in America.

UNIQUE TYPE

It will be an entirely novel type of cemetery. There will be no monuments or headstones to mar park atmosphere. The graves will be marked with bronze tablets set flush with the grass.

Instead of following the usual method of developing small parts of the cemetery at a time, better results are being secured by doing all the development work at once. Plans also call for the sale of all the lots by the time work is completed.

TRUST FUND

Up to the present 45 per cent of the lots have been sold to 2,800 owners. Most of the sales have been made in groups of three lots. The owners have the privilege of later reselling all or part of their holdings to take advantage of any increase in their market value. The company agrees to establish a resale department through which such resales may be made.

State laws require that 10 per cent of the sale price of cemetery lots be set aside for perpetual maintenance of the property. Allegheny County Memorial Park is setting aside 15 per cent in a fund of which the Colonial Trust Company is trustee. This will provide for perpetual care of the individual lots as well as the park property. When sales are completed the trust fund will amount to about $1,000,000.

New Manager for General Bronze Co.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Eugene Tetzlaff, vice president and a director of General Bronze Corporation, has been placed in charge of the western division of the company with headquarters in Chicago, and will supervise its three plants in Chicago, Minneapolis and Milwaukee.

Mr. Tetzlaff formerly was president of the Flour City Ornamental Iron Company, of Minneapolis, which last year was merged into General Bronze Corporation as one of the eight constituent companies now comprising that organization.

Builders' Exhibit Adds Many New Products

New products have added to the appeal of the Architects and Builders' Exhibit, 514 Seventh avenue. The exhibit does not sell materials or quote prices. No sales pressure is used on visitors. The purpose of the display is to aid those interested in building or remodeling in selecting the materials most suited for their particular problems.

Under one roof are displays of many new materials and appliances the average person has not seen. Visitors have expressed their appreciation of this public convenience.

Among the new products on display are automatic stokers to feed coal or coke into any furnace for domestic use, a model steel frame house showing all details of construction, coal, coke and gas furnaces, waters heaters, plastic paints, hardwood floors and floor coverings, incinerators, ornamental iron, electric refrigerators, brick, plumbing, hardware, tile, zinc and clay tile, the new model metal sink and terrazzo.

Exhibits have been opened throughout the United States during the past 18 years. Pittsburgh was a little slow in adopting the idea, which has spread from Boston to Los Angeles, but while Pittsburgh is conservative it has the reputation for progress and stability.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

GAIN REPORTED IN STEEL OUTPUT

Increase Held Probably Seasonal in Character; Drought Retards Trade

By B. E. V. LUTY

Widely circulated reports are that steel production has increased in the last two weeks. Previously, since Feburary, reports had been of declining production except for an increase during part of April, which did not keep the month as a whole from showing a decrease, and except that reports in July indicated a stationary rate within the month.

During this long decline people have been awaiting an upturn, which certainly would occur eventually, but when? The popular idea, supported by precedent, is that steel moves in swings of several months duration at least. Accordingly the reported upturn is taken very seriously and obviously there is no more important duty than to analyze the situation from the viewpoint as to whether an upturn has really occurred and if so whether it is the inauguration of a long swing.

TEST STATEMENTS

First there is a matter of testing the credibility of the witness as they sometimes do in court trials at Youngstown. This is hearsay evidence, i. e., a report is made of what the mills are doing, and thus there are two questions, are the mills doing it, and is their doing it reasonably conclusive indication that they will continue doing it?

It is sometimes said that such reports do not need to be precisely accurate, for they 'give a general idea all right.' Even that is only partially true for men are quite apt to take the percentage as a measure of general trade activity, whereas steel making capacity increased 13 per cent in the last four calendar years and the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production indicates clearly that the average increase in industries generally has been only 1 per cent per annum. Thus the steel percentage would come down year by year if trade was expanding in its regular way and steel tonnage was keeping pace.

LATE UPTURN

Next as to the credibility of steel production, whatever it may actually be, as an index to the future. Production does fluctuate from week to week on account of special rush orders and a small change for a week or two may not be significant, but from precedent there is reason to expect a steel increase immediately after July. Thus this reported improvement is belated, but one may as well give it the benefit of the doubt and say improvement is all the more likely in the circumstances, having in mind also the theory that the recent drought scare, now dissipated, may have operated to postpone some business for a time.

It is quite clear that any improvement in steel at this time of year is purely a seasonal improvement. Many lines of business have seasonal variation and an up or down movement of purely seasonal character in any trade is no indication as to a swing in general underlying business conditions, referring in other words to a trade depression waxing or waning.

Cotton Movement To Mills Declines

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The New York Cotton Exchange estimates the forwardings of American cotton, excluding linters, to mills of the world for the week at 115,000 to 125,000 bales, compared with 148,000 bales last week and 189,000 a year ago.

M'KEE-OLIVER MAKES PLANT ADDITIONS

New Cutting Machinery Speeds Up Production; Keyseating Developed

McKee-Oliver, Inc., has completed additions to the warehouse which was recently erected at 1326 West Carson street. The additions are in the form of extensions to crane ways, structure to carry roof for the structural and plate yard, and installation of new cutting machinery.

New sheet and plate shears and the very latest cold sawing equipment are proving advantageous in filling the ever increasing demand of steel users for cut material. Sheets, cold finished steel, plates, structurals, bars, angles, concrete bars, Cumberland shafting, tool steel and steels for special requirements in stock sizes or cut to specifications are the principal products of this company.

Aside from warehouse shipments, McKee-Oliver is the mill representative for the Lukens Steel Company, Moltrup Steel Products Company, Franklin Steel Works, Cumberland Steel Company and Buckeye Rolling Mill Company.

One of the lines which the firm developed is keyseating shafts for line shafts and machinery purposes.

STEEL PICKS UP IN 2 VALLEYS

SHARON, Aug. 30.—Despite the holiday period, an increase in mill operations in the Shenango Valley is expected next week. The 36 hot mills of the Farrell Works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company will start operations Tuesday morning. For several of the mills have been in operation. The new schedule will not call for additional men but will mean a full week for all employes.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 30.—Indications today pointed to broader production next week by Mahoning Valley iron and steel companies, with unfilled tonnage in flat-rolled steels showing some betterment. At Girard, many workers thrown out of employment by suspension of the A. M. Byers Company's Ohio properties, will be absorbed by the new electric welding mill under construction by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, and by the new bar mill being built at the McDonald works, nearby, of the Carnegie Steel Company. Steel plants and sheet mills will register gains next week, following suspension for Labor Day.

Light Companies Profit From Tiny Golf

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Miniature golf courses are swelling the revenues of the electric light companies. Golf driving ranges and other sports fields are also being illuminated for night playing.

The Public Service Electric and Gas Company, of New Jersey is serving 451 miniature links in its territory. The first lights were turned on the golf courses last May.

Regular games are being played at night at the Jersey City and Newark baseball fields of the International League. Tennis, swimming, quoits, football and clock golf, are some of the other sports now popular under electric lights.

Ed. Werner Adds New Department

Protection against moths has been added to the services provided by the Ed. Werner Transfer and Storage organization. Upholstery draperies, rugs and other articles can be protected against damage from moths whether in homes or in storage by treatment with Cenolin.

Insurance covering a period of four years against damage by moths is provided for every article treated by this process. Cenolin is non-poisonous and does not stain or spot any fabric. Cenolin is a combination of the ingredients of certain dyes with the color removed. Materials treated with it are unpalatable as well as poisonous to moth larvae. Following the treatment, the Cenolin becomes part of the fabric just as the dye.

The exceptionally lasting qualities of Cenolin and its scientific application make it possible for the storage organization of Ed. Werner to insure such materials against moth damage for a period of four years.

The process has undergone scientific tests as well as practical application in making fabrics impervious to moth damage. Ordinary methods of moth protection, such as the use of camphor, are of doubtful value, according to the results of experiments. Cenolin makes fabrics undigestible to the moth worms and also makes them poisonous to the insects, although the substance is harmless to other forms of life.

Canolin not ony protects against moths but also restores the original life to the fabric.

TRADE INDICES TURN UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Nearly every important weekly business indicator has turned upward this week, while a year ago almost all were sliding steadily down. The business index, turning slowly from the low level reached during the first two weeks of the month, has risen to 89 per cent, as compared with 87.2 per cent last week, and 111.1 per cent in the corresponding week last year, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

After about two weeks delay due to drought scare, the signals of the beginning of definite business recovery begin to flicker faintly amid the encircling gloom. Steel activity, coal production and carloadings are up more than seasonally; electric power output is increasing slowly; building is resisting seasonal decline; general trade volume is rising nearer to normal levels; and commodity prices have ceased their rapid decline.

Whether this upturn is to carry trade beyond the seasonal hump during September and bring business back to normal by the end of October depends now on two things only: whether the Federal Reserve Bank will keep the credit clock wound up by buying bills and securities steadily, and whether business brains will jump energetically into the job after Labor Day. From now on business will be better, or much worse, as we choose.

Wheat Production Estimated Higher

ROME, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The International Institute of Agriculture has announced that the world's 1930 production of wheat will be 712,000,00 hundredweight, compared with 677,000,000 last year.

Real Estate

A property with lot 50x100 feet in Fifth street, Aspinwall, has been transferred by Samuel R. Gillespie to Florence M. Kerr for a private consideration.

Frank A. Kalus, builder, has sold to Carl Valenti, at private terms, a new dwelling house occupying a lot 34x120 feet in Fairlawn avenue, Thirteenth ward.

Emelie Bayer, of 1224 Dorment avenue, has sold to Edward A. Burns a residence property with lot 59x120. No selling price was made public.

Valuation of new buildings erected in Pittsburgh in the last 19 months total $36,937,384, according to figures compiled by H. W. Correll, statistician, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. The trend toward home building was striking in the chamber's report, which showed that in dwellings alone Pittsburgh invested $15,410,650.

Building permits follow:

Seventh Ward—M. Herscher, frame addition, 630 Bellefonte street, $1,800.

Eighth Ward — Baldwin Land Company, service station, 4725 Center avenue, $9,000.

Thirty-first Ward—C. Hayden, concrete block garage, 34 Jacob street, $300.

Seventh Ward — J. H. Smith, garden wall, 607 Pitcairn place, $2,500. O. O. Amos, two brick garages, 5503-07 Fifth avenue, $2,000.

Nineteenth Ward—S. Easton, brick and tile dwelling and garage, 382 LaMarido street, $5,500.

Fourteenth Ward—J. M. Dean, concrete block garage, 6240 Caton street, $1,00.

Builders Advance New Credit Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Foreshadowing a new era of responsibility and stabilization in the construction industry, approved cooperative plans to place the financing of construction more directly upon the financial institutions of the country and to outlaw prevalent credit abuses were announced by the board of directors of the Allied Construction Industries of America at its meeting here this week.

In view of the economic importance of the plan to the entire business structure of the nation, members of the board, including Edward J. Harding, assistant general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America; Frank Dunning, manager of the National Builders' Supply Association, and Edward McDonnell of the Contracting Plasterers' International Association, with H. E. Foreman, secretary of the board, conferred at length with officials of the Department of Justice in charge of federal anti-trust law matters.

TEXAS PLANTS MORE CROPS

HARLINGEN, Tex., Aug. 30.—Increased acreages in all fall vegetables are in prospect, according to information assembled by Texas vegetable and fruit buyers and railway officials. Fall crops may be relied upon by growers to provide profits which failed to materialize from cotton, due to the price slump in that commodity.

Although cabbage acreage last year was comparatively large, an increase of 2,000 acres or more is in the offing. Cabbage proved to be one of the most profitable crops of the valley last winter.

The largest acreage increase is looked for in tomatoes. Acreage last fall was estimated at 2,000. This season's survey indicated 6,000 to 10,000 acres may be planted. Increases in other vegetables are likely to range from 25 per cent to 50 per cent. Movement of the fruit crop will not begin for nearly two months. Production last year totaled 4,950 cars of grapefruit and other citrus fruits and the 1930-31 crop will be slightly lower because of the unfavorable weather.

Utility Company Forms New Unit

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Portland General Electric Company has been formed by the Pacific Northwest Public Service Company. The former will operate and take over electric properties of the latter.

The present step is part of a plan whereby Pacific Northwest Public Service Company will segregate its electric, gas and railway properties in separate operating companies. There will be an announcement shortly as to refunding of certain high-coupon rate bond issues.

GLASS TRADE STILL DULL

Relatively little improvement was shown the past week in either shipments or sales of flat glass products and factory operating schedules, reflecting the subnormal demand, continue at a low level, according to American Glass Review. The month as a whole has probably witnessed less activity than any August of recent years in this branch of the industry, with little in this week's developments to indicate that any appreciable stimulus in demand is near at hand.

While both production and shipments at the window glass factories continue on a curtailed basis, decidedly so as contrasted with normal years of the past, the output for August is expected to be somewhat in excess of July, when it dropped to a new many months' low mark. Shipments will also show a slight gain, it is believed, although not sufficient to lend much encouragement to the outlook.

With the advent of the fall season it is only logical to assume that demand for this commodity will show a gradual improvement. Unless the coming weeks develop a more pronounced revival of building activities than is now indicated, however, a normal consumption of window glass during the ordinarily busy fall season is not to be expected.

Big Gold Shipment Is Sent to France

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—A shipment of $3,500,000 in gold to France has been announced by Lazard Freres, international banking house. The gold, which goes on the liner Europa, is the first movement of gold from New York to France since the week ended August 13 and will bring the total shipments from this port to Paris since the second week in July to $64,810,000.

Chain Division Sold By Goodyear Co.

AKRON, Aug. 30.—Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has sold its rubber chain division to U. S. Chain and Forging Company, of Pittsburgh. The purchase price was not announced.

LIBERTY DAIRY EARNINGS LARGER

Profits for Quarter Said To Be Double Those Of Same 1929 Period

Improvement in earnings on Liberty Dairy is reflected in the report for the first quarter ended July 31, 1930, the first three months of the company's fiscal year. For that period operating profit amounted to $203,932 and net for dividends after depreciation and interests was $155,194.

This was equal to $1.64 per share on the 82,392 common shares after payment of dividends on the first and second preferred stocks. At the end of the quarter there were 8,704 shares of first preferred stock and 2,433 shares of second preferred stock, both $100 par value, outstanding.

OFFICIALS REMAIN

These earnings are understood to have been more than double those for the comparative period of 1929.

Officials of Liberty Dairy Products Corporation, of which Paul E. Reinhold is president, will continue in charge of the local company. Stockholders of Liberty Dairy two weeks ago approved the merger of the company with Beatrice Creamery Company.

SEVEN PLANTS

Reinhold, even before becoming associated with Liberty Dairy, was a well-known figure in the local dairy industry. Along with his father, Ernest Reinhold, he established the Reinhold Ice and Ice Cream Company at Oakmont in 1916. This company acquired the Kittanning Pure Milk Company in 1926.

The properties of the corporation comprise seven modern pasteurizing and ice cream plants, in addition to 11 country receiving and manufacturing plants. The company also owns a 500-acre certified farm at Braeburn.

It Turns Its Big Ambitions Into Realities

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE FAR WEST Aug 30 Los Angeles and Detroit are the modern wonder cities of America. Industry has been mainly responsible. Without industrial growth great cities cannot mushup their population.

THE PHENOMENAL rise of Los Angeles has been helped enormously by the establishment of many manufacturing establishments but by enterprising development of its tourist patronage, its agricultural resources and, not least, its oil industry.

Mr Forbes

Try to grasp this record of expansion of net income in Southern California, of which Los Angeles is the heart:

From tourists, in 1920 $62,000,000, in 1928 $317,000,000; from agriculture in 1920 $152,000,000, in 1928 $255,000,000; from minerals (including oil) in 1920 $172,000,000, in 1928 $396,000,000; from manufactures in 1920 $158,000,000, in 1928 $613,000,000.

In eight years the net income from these four sources rose from $544,000,000 to $1,581,000,000.

"EVERY THIRTY minutes of the year a ship moves in or out of Los Angeles Harbor. Never in the commercial history of the world has there been anything to compare with the tremendous increase in tonnage handled through this port in 10 years. 3,528,280 tons in 1920, 26,099,245 in 1929. Value of cargoes handled last year averaged $118,528 each hour, $2,844,680 each day, $1,038,308,246 for the year. Foreign commerce between Los Angeles and 60 nations of the world increased 200 per cent in tonnage in six years."

These statements proclaimed to the world in full page advertisements by the Los Angeles Realty Board, constitute ample answer to those elsewhere who tried to ridicule the strenuous efforts of Los Angeles to build up its marine activities.

Then this:

"Los Angeles Harbor has 40 miles of waterfront and is second only to New York among American ocean ports. Plans under way for immense enlargement of the harbor—95 per cent owned by the City of Los Angeles and meeting an important annual revenue—point to a day not far distant when this will be the world's greatest port."

SAGE BRISBANE emphasizes that whatever men can imagine they can finally accomplish. Los Angeles has been more sneered at than any other city in the United States for its loudly-proclaimed ambitions. But no city in the history of the world ever made ambitions come true so rapidly or so astoundingly. Talk with its livest citizens and you'll discover that they vision a Los Angeles of the future eclipsing even New York. That may remind you of one of Lon Chaney's notable pictures, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." Don't forget, however, that heretofore the laugh has not been on Los Angeles but on its scoffing critics.

How's this for looking and planning ahead?

"WATER FOR 10,000,000 people in Los Angeles is assured. Development of Los Angeles from pueblo days to the fastest-growing major city in the world in 1930 has depended always on one factor, water. William Mulholland explored the Owens River Valley, found there the needed water and formulated a daring plan for the longest municipal aqueduct in the world—a gigantic water carrier piercing mountains with 53 miles of tunnels, conquering a desert and capable of supplying 2,000,000 people. At camps stationed along its 250 miles of length 5,000 men worked five years to complete it in 1913. Within three years our water supply will be sufficient for 2,500,000 people. It will be ample until completion of the Boulder Dam and construction of the gigantic Los Angeles aqueduct, from the Colorado River provides water for an additional 7,500,000 people in the Los Angeles area.

"Ample water for a population of 10,000,000 is now assured."

THE COST of water?

"The average maximum domestic water rate of the 183 largest cities of the United States is 18 cents per 100 cubic feet; in Los Angeles, 13 cents—5 cents per ton of water consumed."

ONE FINDS a visit to this unique community a positive tonic, especially in these days of overmuch gloom elsewhere.

MOTOR SCOUT FINDS DETOUR

It's just 60 miles from Liberty avenue and Sixth street to Mercer the speedometer of the scout car sent over the Perry highway by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh yesterday disclosed, now that the detour between Portersville and Mercer on U. S. Highway No. 19 is lifted. This shortens the distance by almost 11 miles. Still there are two obstacles to the free flow of traffic on the newly-opened section of the Perry highway, two bridge runarounds a half mile and a fifth of a mile long between Portersville and Leesburg and these and work going on along the sides of the road make careful driving necessary.

One detour was placed and another lifted on the National Highway U. S. 40 this week end. The Washington-Claysville detour was thrown open this morning, although work still is proceeding on berms, shoulders and culverts, making care necessary. The new detour on U. S. 40 is between Brownsville and Uniontown, a 19-mile stretch of improved road that takes cars through Merrittstown.

Two detours on Route No. 31 in Somerset County have been removed, throwing the old Glades road, a scenic ride, open to traffic.

There is some one-way traffic over half-width construction on the Lincoln highway at Schellberg, Everett and Breezewood.

Canvasback Duck Speediest on Wing

Ducks can approximate the flying speed of the ordinary passenger airplane, although the faster ships outrun them. The speediest duck is the canvasback, which travels at an estimated rate of 145 feet a second, or nearly 100 miles an hour, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

LUCKY GIRL
BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Illness Brings Financial Problem to Cathie

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. In the office she meets Gordon Moore, and is instantly attracted to him, and he to her. He easily persuades her to spend the rest of the day "celebrating" her securing a position with Farnsworth, and his securing a contract for an important engineering project. At the end of an innocent and delightful day of lunching and sightseeing with him, Cathie finds herself deposited at her door and nonchalently bidden goodby. She manages to seem as nonchalent as Moore, and only when she is safely inside the house and inside her own room does she cry over her shattered romance. When Frank Prout, known to the family as her "boy friend" telephones asking to see her she says no. In the office several days later she learns from a gossipy office boy that Farnsworth's attractive secretary, Marsha Darrow, is not only "setting her cap" for him, but carrying on a flirtation with Moore. Cathie is forced to remain in the background, unnoticed by Moore while Marsha Darrow gets ready to go to dinner with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

Marsha Darrow was late to work next morning.

"Where's Miss Darrow?" Mr. Farnsworth demanded, looking at his watch when he came in, at 9:30.

"I don't know," Cathie said. But she knew. Miss Darrow was late because she'd been out with Gordon Moore. And when she did arrive, about 10, heavy-eyed and cross, Cathie found herself watching, fascinated, as she hung up her wrap, and settled herself at the desk at last.

Miss Darrow used a typewriter with rubber keys, to protect her long, rose-lacquered nails. Cathie looked at Miss Darrow's hands, and then at her own and made a mental note to see about liquid polish. There was no denying it, Miss Darrow was pretty. Her face was a little thin, and there was a hard look around her mouth, but no doubt that made her more interesting to men.

Cathie wondered about that. Was it that knowing look that made the young engineers all stop to talk to her? Was that why Gordon Moore liked her? Cathie wondered, trying to analyze the girl's charm. And there was something else she would have liked to ask . . . did Moore ask for her? Even if he forgot her name he might have remembered SOMETHING about her. Enough to say, "Remember me to that new girl you have in the office!" or "How's that new girl turning out?"

Mother Ill
Tells Cathie That She Is Well

But the days went by and Marsha Darrow said nothing, and soon Cathie had something else to think about.

For Mary Paige, who had never been ill a day in her life, was sick.

She had not looked well, for some time. Cathie had noticed that. "Aren't you feeling well, ma?" she had asked over and over. "Well, of course! Why not?" Ma had invariably answered, bustling around the kitchen as she spoke. Now that she no longer went out to work she took pride and pleasure in cooking special meals for the girls when they came home tired at night.

Mary Paige's biscuits, roaring hot, filled with melting butter were something to remember. She could make hamburger and lettuce salad seem like a banquet. And there were special little dishes she made out of apples and brown sugar. And sometimes cornbread, light as sunlight, ready to crumble into nothingness in your mouth . . .

One night Ruth and Cathie met at the corner, and walked up to the house together. They saw it was dark before they got there. They looked at it—the little high-shouldered greyish-white cottage with the strip of lawn and the row of calla lillies along the side, and the fuschia, bright red and blue, growing right up to the front window . . . and not a light inside.

Girls Worried
Mother Goes Ahead With Work

"Ma must have gone down town," Ruth said, in a funny voice.

Cathie nodded. She wanted to run—to get in quickly—to see . . . She knew that Ruth wanted to run, too, but somehow they couldn't. They walked slowly around to the back door, talking—they didn't know what about. But on the back stairs Cathie couldn't hold back any longer. She found the kitchen empty and ran, breathlessly, to the front bedroom and sure enough there was Mary Paige, lying on her bed.

She got up stiffly when the girls rushed in.

"I must have dropped off," she said.

That was all she would say, but her broad, usually rosy face was pale, and her heavy, dark-streaked gray hair lay back from her forehead, dank and hot.

The girls wanted her to stay in bed, to get a doctor, but she wouldn't listen. She said she was all right again and insisted upon going on with the plans for Jean's birthday party, the next afternoon.

Jean's Party
Mary Is Forced to Take Rest

"I could tell Mr. Browning and get home right after school," Ruth offered, doubtfully. She was secretary to the principal and worked all the long afternoons, after her class work was over.

Mary Paige wouldn't hear of it. "I'm as well as I ever was. But maybe I'll run down and see Doolin tomorrow," she said, holding her side. And the next day she put it off until Tuesday, "After the child's party."

Jean had eight young girls in to play bridge. "Fifteen-year-olds apeing their elders," she snorted when Jean first suggested it, but she didn't say no when the girls wanted to borrow two card tables from the Whites, on the corner, and at the last minute she took down the lace curtains and washed them, though they did not need it at all.

"Just tea with lemon and cloves, and bread and butter sandwiches cut thin, Ma!" Jean said. She had been reading about fashionable teas in a book, but Mary Paige knew that Emma Woburn had creamed crab and hot biscuits and a mousse at her birthday party. So she toiled down to the market and bought a hen which she cut up for creamed chicken. Then she made biscuits and fixed the top with orange sugar (Emma Woburn didn't have THAT!) and the dessert was going to be home-preserved peaches with whipped cream and chopped nuts.

And when everything was going fine and you could hear them all enjoying themselves in the parlor, and nobody noticing the hole in the seat of the rocker, and only the biscuits to pop into the oven, Mary Paige sat down. She sat in the old brown chair by the stove, and held her side with her hands. In her sweet, clear voice she said: "Cathie, watch the biscuits . . . I'm a bit faint, with the heat of the stove and all."

A Problem
Mother Has to Go To Hospital

When Dr. Doolin came she insisted that they bring him around the back way, so as not to spoil the party, and Cathie served the refreshments just as if nothing had happened.

"It's the hospital for her, and a long siege," Dr. Doolin admitted, after they had got her to bed. He spoke gruffly, as he always did when he was moved.

"And is there . . . is there any hope?" Cathie quavered.

But he wouldn't say.

Ruth put her head down on the kitchen table. "I can't bear it," she moaned. "I can't. I've been through too much. And now this. With Eddie in South America, and Jean having a party . . . ooh, I don't know how I'll raise the money, I don't, I don't."

Cathie listened. Listened to the sound of Ruth crying hopelessly, to the sound of the bridge party in the front room, to the sick woman's labored breathing. It was a nightmare. She'd wake up pretty soon.

Jean came into the kitchen, starry-eyed. "Cathie, dear, is there any more hot chocolate, and whip cream for the chocolate. The girls just loved the chicken. Oh, what's the matter with Ruth?"

"Headache," Ruth said from between dry lips.

"Where's ma?"

"In her room, resting." Surely Jean would hear the breathing . . . funny how sleeping drafts make people breathe . . But no, Jean didn't hear anything. She took her tray of refilled cups hurried back to her guests.

"I won't have ma go to the county hospital, not if I have to beg on the streets," Ruth lifted her head to whisper.

"Shh—the children will hear!"

"But we've got to plan. I want ma taken care of right. I suppose you could borrow a month or so ahead on your salary? I won't be able to, on account of it being city money."

Cathie nodded. She supposed so.

"I hate to ask you," Ruth said.

"Well, we've got to get the money somewhere. Besides, Mr. Farnsworth is awfully nice."

"Nice!" Ruth sat up sharply, her hair all awry. "Nice! That's why I hate to have you do it. That's why you have to be careful!" Oh, Cathie, you're such a baby. Mind how you go about asking him. Don't you do anything you shouldn't to—to get the money. I won't have it, not even for ma—not if I have to beg on the streets first—"

Cathie turned scarlet. "Don't be silly," she said awkwardly.

"I'm not silly. I'd rather go to Mr. Browning and ask him the name of a loan broker, than have you—"

"Shh—don't talk so loud, Ruth!"

The little girls were saying goodbye. You could hear their laughter, their happy farewells. Cathie suddenly felt very old. Older than her mother, sleeping trustfully on her bed, older than Ruth, with her funny ideas about bosses wanting to take advantage of young girls.

"Oh, stop crying, Ruth!" she cried almost sharply. "I'll ask Mr. Farnsworth all right. I'll ask him tomorrow. I'll have the money, don't worry, I'll get it. Ma'll be all right."

And then, without any warning she put her head on the other side of the table and cried. Not like Ruth was crying. Hard, rasping, coughing sobs.

NORFOLK GROSS INCOME IS REDUCED

Net Operating Revenue Held Up by Reduction in Maintenance Expenses

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Norfolk and Western is reporting better net earnings than two years ago, with the increase for the first seven months of 1930 over 1928 totaling $3,597,960.

Unofficial estimates that the road for the whole of 1930 will be able to do at least as well as in 1928, when $21.25 a share was earned on the common stock, apparently have substantial foundation.

In July, though gross railway operating revenue of $8,538,139 was $473,312 less than the $9,011,451 for that month in 1928, the road took expenses in hand and brought them down to $4,818,348, or $822,625 lower than two years ago. They are also $100,612 lower than in June, this year.

JULY GROSS LOWER

July gross was 5.2 per cent below that month in 1928, and the increase in net railway operating revenue was accomplished by reducing maintenance of way and structures, maintenance equipment and cost of conducting transportation.

Norfolk and Western can do this without jeopardizing physical condition of the transportation plant, since it has been so liberal in its outlays for a long period. A recent calculation showed that in the last five years, Norfolk and Western, leading most of the roads of the country, had earned a surplus beyond dividend disbursements amounting to $65 a share.

Current period will not mean a "lean year" for the road as it should rank near third best in point of net income, although substantial under 1929, when $29.06 a share was earned.

COAL MOVEMENTS

August is likely to show operating results similar to those in July. For 19 days of August, gross was $4,830,700, a decrease of $1,123,100, or 19 per cent under August, 1929, but an increase of $192,500, or 4 per cent, over July, 1930. July figures were a decrease of 17.5 per cent under July, 1929.

Coal movement over the lines of the company as yet shows no marked change, but operators look for a seasonal pickup in nearby months. Local coal business as a whole has been good, though not quite up to 1929. Recent movement in that direction has overcome a substantial decrease in tonnage earlier in the year, so that at July 31 the total shipments on this business were 4,133,493 tons, a decrease of only 263,445 under the 1929 season to that date.

DU PONTS FIGHT PROHIBITION

WILMINGTON, Del.—(INS.)—The duPonts and Bayards, of Delaware, chief among the blue blooded families of the "Blue Hen's Chickens," have joined hands in politics for the anti-dry cause.

The duPonts always have been Republicans, staunch and reliable. The Bayards have been the bulwarks of the Democratic party in Delaware, but Pierre S. duPont and his two brothers, Lammot and Irenee have left the arid Republican ranks and through the Association against the Prohibition Amendment are grooming former Senator Thomas F. Bayard for the U. S. Senate, much to the chagrin of the said leaders of both parties.

Bayard already has served as U. S. Senator from Delaware for several terms. His father and grandfather before him were U.

Bombing of Plants From Air Threatened

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Letters threatening to bomb Wilmington's industrial plants from the air unless work is provided for the city's unemployed before September 15 were turned over to police by the Wilmington Evening Journal.

The letters, hand-printed in ink on cheap stationery, were signed, "Unemployed Citizens."

'Join Big Parade' Slogan of Legion

BOSTON, (INS.)—The slogan, "Join the Big Parade to the American Legion National Convention, Boston, October 6 to 9," is being circulated throughout the country by Legion convention officials in an effort to arouse interest in the coming convention.

All mail leaving large business houses and concerns in the city are placing the slogan at the bottom of letters and parcels.

SIGNS INDICATE BETTER TIMES

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—Signs of better times were recently reported as follows by the heating research bureau of the C. A. Dunham Company:

1—The world-wide decline in interest rates, which should aid construction.

2 Greater operating efficiency, with reduced production costs.

3—Reduced inventories, which were not excessive six months ago.

4—Liquidation of business debts, which also were not excessive.

5—Somewhat improved demand for bonds, helping building programs.

6—Passage of the tariff bill.

7—An end to overproduction of automobiles.

8—A feeling that commodity prices are nearing stabilization.

Liquor in Car, Man Arrested by Agents

W. P. Bush, 62, of Gross street, was taken into custody, it was reported, after his automobile figured in an accident on the Freeport road, near Springdale, yesterday. Several prohibition agents who happened by said they found a half pint of whisky in the car and turned it over to the State Highway Patrol.

700 Climbers Prove Long's Peak Popular

LOVELAND, Col.—(INS.)—Long's Peak—once a spot that was accessible only to the most seasoned mountain climbers — has been reached by more than 700 persons thus far this season, Harold Dunning, Loveland climber, who has reached the summit 38 times, announced that an average of 20 persons daily have registered in the mountain club register on the peak.

Platoon System Regulates Hours

The platoon system of police forces is a system of distributing the police force of a city and of regulating the hours on duty of each policeman so that the city will be at all times equally protected. When the men work in shifts of 12 hours, it is called the two-platoon system; when in shifts of 8 hours, three-platoon system.

Tribes Seek Return To Italian Colony

TRIPOLI, North Africa.—(AP.)—The Tribesmen who fled across the French border into Algeria following the Italian advance into Fezzan, have petitioned to be permitted to return, now that the Italians are in control.

Marshal Badoglio, governor of Tripoli, has acceded to their request, and the government of Algeria has promised to co-operate.

Toledo to Be Host To 20 Conventions

TOLEDO, O.—(INS.)—Twenty conventions will be held in Toledo in the next two months, according to a report of L. W. Lehmkuhle, secretary of the convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce here.

FOREIGNERS GET TAX VOTE

Foreign residents of Yokohoma have been declared eligible to vote in the elections held every year for members of the house tax investigation commission, which fixes taxes for all residences in the port city.

According to the law all house owners are eligible to vote for members of the commission. For years the matter of foreign ballots was not brought up, but recently the question was raised and last December it was announced that foreign owners of houses could take part in the election. It has not been determined whether foreigners can serve on the commission, but the mere fact that they can take part in an election is something without precedent in Japan.

These elections, which [illegible] under the city of Yohohama, do not have to comply with the national election law. Candidates for the committee may solicit votes, take constituency members on automobile or riksha rides; in fact, do everything but openly buy votes. If houses are registered in the name of a minor, as is sometimes done to avoid taxes, the minor is the one who has to vote; that is, if he is old enough to go through the necessary forms of filling in a ballot.

AIR MAIL BAGS FIREPROOF

DENVER.—(INS.) — Fireproof mailbags, the result of several years' work on the part of the Postoffice Department and air mail contractors, will be placed in service soon on the Pueblo-Denver-Cheyenne route, officials of the Western Air Express announced recently.

The new bags will lessen the risk of airmail pilots insofar as they will be able to jump from burning planes instead of staying with their ships in an effort to make a safe landing and save the mail.

The new pouch is made of asbestos with a covering of canvas on both the inside and outside. It is steel riveted on the sides and bottom and has a triple closing device which prevents flames from reaching the contents through the neck of the sack.

The bags weigh 15 pounds.

TEST SUCCEEDS BUT TOO LATE

HONOLULU, T. H.—Back in November, 1928, the city engineer of Honolulu, H. A. R. Austin, undertook some experiments in the ocean currents off Honolulu Harbor. The purpose was to determine whether if the city's garbage and refuse were dumped at sea it would be carried away from the island of Oahu by the currents or brought back to land.

One of the experiments was with bottles, into which Engineer Austin put messages asking any one who found them to return them to him with a note of the circumstances of the finding.

Just one bottle was returned—exactly a year and three months after it was dropped into the water. It was picked up in Lamon Bay, off Mauban, Tayabas, East Luzon, in the Philippines. This is about 5,000 miles from Honolulu.

By the time the bottle got here the city engineer was no longer in office and the city had built an incinerator to burn the refuse instead of dumping it. However, the experiment succeeded.

Rare Painting Believed Raphael

SEVILLE.—(INS.)—A painting which several experts attribute to Raphael has recently been discovered in one of the old churches here. It represents the Virgin Mary with Jesus and St. John and is in a remarkable state of conservation.

The picture was given to the church in 1761 by a grande dame of the Spanish nobility, Dona Maria Anna Perez de Garato Ochoa, who wrote in her testament:

"I bequeath to the Church St. Antoine of Seville a painting representing the Virgin with Jesus and St. John, excellent work of Raphael de Torbino."

MARK SCHOOL'S 165TH YEAR

PHILADELPHIA.—(INS.)—The one hundred and sixty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Medicine, the first medical school established on the American continent, will be celebrated by the University on October 10 and 11.

The anniversary program will include recognition of a number of recent important developments in the medical field at the university.

Featuring the opening day's ceremonies on October 10 will be a university convocation, where honorary degrees will be conferred by the University upon a number of men who are internationally known in the field of medicine.

Included among these will be Sir Walter Fletcher, of London, executive secretary of the Research Council of Great Britain, and one of the outstanding medical figures in the British Empire, and Prof. A. V. Hill, of the Institute of Physiology, University College, London. Both of these distinguished British medical men will deliver addresses during the anniversary celebration.

WOMEN OF 22 NATIONS MEET

HONOLULU.—(AP.) — Women from 22 nations bordering the Pacific Ocean are expected to attend the second Pan-Pacific women's conference in Honolulu August 9 to 23.

Education, health, industry, social service and government will be discussed by leaders in their respective fields. Mrs. A. H. Reeve, of Philadelphia, president of the International Federation of Home and School, probably will be international chairman.

The largest delegations are expected from Japan, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Hawaii, while the Philippines, Java, Samoa, China and the Fiji Islands also will be represented.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—New bond offerings this week totaled $67,907,000, compared with $28,539,500 last week and $6,691,400 in the like week last year.

DELIVER MEAT BY TROLLEY

WASHINGTON.—(INS.)—The trolleys in Pernambuco, Brazil, supply a real public service, Frederick Simpich, in charge of the National Geographic Society's survey party, wrote the headquarters here that meat is delivered to the butcher shops there on trailers attached to street cars.

Among the other "queer things" he chronicled were the smell of an anti-freeze mixture in the Pernambuco taxicabs. They are operated on a mixture of alcohol and kerosene, he wrote, instead of on gasoline. He declared:

"The law makes them put in the kerosene so chauffeurs won't drink the fuel tanks dry."

Another sight Simpich reported was six piano movers in action.

With their path cleared by their leader who walked ahead of them, six men, with thick and strained necks, walked at moderate gait along the sidewalk with a huge piano balanced atop their heads. A faulty move of a single head would mean disaster.

Australia Bushmen Report Oil Find

PERTH, Australia, — (AP.) — Bush blacks have brought a strange oil tale to the mining town of Kanowna.

They say that in the rugged Warburton ranges, in country never visited by white men, there is a place where thick liquid oozes from a cliff and the liquid bursts into flame if a fire stick is applied.

A prospecting party set out for the ranges with 12 camels and provisions for eight months.

Teeth Cavities Laid To Germ Diseases

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP.)—Cavities in teeth are germ diseases which can be stopped by proper diet, according to experiments at the University of Michigan.

Children given this special diet for a year developed no new cavities, and unfilled cavities did not show any increase in size.

Dr. R. W. Bunting, professor of oral pathology who directed the experiments, attributes cavities to Bacillus acidolphus.

Ask Police to Hunt For Fake Collector

Adjt. W. B. Fowle, campaign director of the Salvation Army, has asked police to look for a man who has been soliciting funds in Brookline for the Home Service Fund. He has no connection with the Army, the officer said.

MACHINE DOES WORK OF 150

Sugar plantation men of Hawaii are interested in a report from Louisiana that a new cane harvester has been developed by Dr. Carl G. Muench and that it will do the work of 150 skilled field hands.

This machine, having been tried out in the Everglades canefield, is being perfected and several complete harvesters have been ordered.

The harvesting of cane is one of the serious problems of Hawaiian producers and one of the heaviest items of expense. Cane in the Hawaiian fields nearly always bends just above the roots and often lies at an angle with the ground, making its cutting difficult.

Cane cutting in Hawaii is done by manual labor, which necessitates the use of a large number of field hands, and is comparatively slow and laborious.

Reports that the Muench invention is working out successfully in Florida, both for cutting the stalks and for stripping the leaves from them, will be followed eagerly by the Hawaiian planters.

Slick Guardianship Appointment Asked

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Petition for their appointment as guardians for three children of the late Thomas B. Slick, independent oil operator, to administer their share of the $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 estate which he left, was filed in Oklahoma County Court by Mrs. Berneice Slick, their mother, and Charles F. Urschel.

Thomas B. Slick, Jr., who is over 14 years old and can legally select a guardian, filed papers nominating his mother and Urschel and asked their appointment by the court. Hearings on the petitions were set for September 9.

Music in High Favor
Producing Noises
Sousa on Radio
Room for Biography

By LOUIS REID

The presentation of plays which can compare to that of the Broadway stage remains the last barrier for broadcasters to overcome in their ceaseless search for entertainment.

Louis Reid

For several years they have been firm in the belief that the showmanship of Broadway was not essential to the new medium of radio. New ideas, new procedures of production would be required.

* * *

At last however, they realize showmanship is just as vital to radio as to the theater and they are making plans to enlist leading producers just as they have enlisted leading actors in the work of providing more excitement to the armchairs.

Musical Programs Win Widest Favor

Musical programs always will win the greater favor of the radio public over plays but there must be pauses between musical programs if listeners are not to be set to yawning. It is these pauses, given over to vivid productions of the best of dramatic literataure, which the magnificoes of the michrophone hope to make especially attractive on their menus.

* * *

Meanwhile, musical comedy—the musical comedy of Victor Herbert, Gilbert and Sullivan, Lehar—continues to find a conspicuous place on the loudspeakers. It is ably directed and sung for the most part by men and women who have had long training in the Broadway pastures. Its niche on the air channels is secure.

Also secure is the place of the tunes from Tin Pan Alley. You cannot escape them any more than you can escape the hat check bandits in the restaurants.

* * *

The most graceful greeting at present on the microphone is Health Commissioner Wynne's "Good afternoon, radio audience—and good health to you."

I cannot recall ever having heard on the loudspeakers the "Gaby Glide," the ingratuating melody with which the late Gaby Deslys danced her way to Winter Garden glory.

* * *

Out of pity I have made it a custom to tune off when the average soprano reaches the last bars of "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

City Street Noises Easily Reproduced

Among the most agreeable tasks the broadcasters is to convey realistically the noises of the city. Street scenes are produced with such props as a street car bell, a klaxon, a police whistle, the beat to cocoanut shells upon a board. To make a water-front sketch authentic the radio men use a boat chain, a ratchet and a foghorn. The sound of water swishing against a pier or a boat is suggested either by dried peas in a corn hopper or by blowing through a straw into a glass of water.

* * *

Something of the vanished glory of broadway is recaptured occasionally for the divans by the radio appearances of George Rector, the most famous restaurant name in New York's history.

* * *

Despite the dimming of the years and the shocking transformation of Broadway to a street of fruit juice stands and drug store lunch counters, the House of Rector still holds a secure place in the memories of the bon vivants of the town.

* * *

Rector fils, now a director of cuisine for a transcontinental railroad, is an able raconteur. In his radio talks he tells not only of his experience in his restaurants in New York, but describes unusual dishes of foreign lands.

* * *

John Philip Sousa is expected shortly to bring his baton back to the microphones. Sousa has played before more people, they say, than any other director in the history of band music. Once in Glasgow his audience numbered 153,000 people.

* * *

Radio Is Calling For Biographers

There ought to be room on the microphones for famous incidents in the lives of great Americans. The most fascinating chapters of American biography and history are concerned with such incidents. With one or two exceptions, however, they have been strangely missing from the air.

And when the broadcasters finish with the formidable figures of the past they might tap those of the present for the armchairs—the figures, let's say, of John D., Henry Ford, John McGraw, Orville Wright and Andrew Volstead.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

The Swiss bell ringer on Hank Simmons' Show Boat will earn his money tonight. "Midnight Alarm" is the 9 o'clock attraction on WJAS.

* * *

Percy Grainger's delightful "Country Gardens" is on Helen Kremer's piano recital from WCAE at 7:30.

* * *

KDKA has a new program at 9 o'clock by Edwin Stanley, organist. WJAS is to take Chicago Variety over the network for the first time at 10 p. m.

* * *

The "Pop" Concert on WCAE at 8 is to feature a mixed chorus and an augmented male chorus in "Hills of Home" and "The Viking Song." "Largo" from "New World Symphony" and "Anitra's Dance" from "Peer Gynt" are orchestra numbers.

* * *

We think the cast in Miniature Theater, KDKA at 10:30, is the best on the air. Certainly the continuity of this Saturday evening sketch is cleverly written. If you like radio drama well done listen tonight.

* * *

A very clever parlor trick that will mystify your friends will be explained by Tampa the Magician over WCAE at 5:30 this afternoon. Hear Tampa, then see the trick illustrated tomorrow in "We Now Present."

* * *

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, who received $7,500 last week at the Penn, were booked by Walter Myers for $75 a night eight years ago? The occasion was a dance in Wilkinsburg.

THAT passing the microphone around like a soup-plate is barred at KDKA? At banquets and special affairs celebrities are asked to speak into a stationary microphone. Movement of the mike causes distortion.

THAT the entire staff of WTAM including announcers, engineers and office boys are to give a special "Surprise Half Hour" tomorrow morning at 12:15? It's the first of a series of "home talent" nights.

THAT entertainers are not allowed to "ad lib" on KDKA or WCAE? They must present a written continuity before being allowed to go on the air.

THAT there's a loyalty about radio station employes greater than that in most business organizations except, perhaps, newspapers? They follow zealously every move made by the opposition and even office boys contribute to the suggestion boxes.

* * *

"Twenty Fingers of Sweetness," one of the leading local attractions in the Radio Show Favorites Poll, conducted by the Sun-Telegraph, have been signed by Jim Simpson. Local stars are getting a great play in the poll, with Jessica Dragonette easily the leader over other network stars, even Amos 'n' Andy.

RETURN POSTAL MAN FOR TRIAL

Philip Timmis, 69, former postmaster at Whitaker, after being a fugitive from justice for eight years, was brought back from Cleveland, O., to face a charge of embezzlement in the Federal District Court. An indictment was returned against him May 4, 1922, accusing him of embezzling $1,126.01 in postal funds. He was said to have disappeared April 4, 1922.

For years the postal authorities continued a search for him and recently Postoffice Inspector J. P. Nolan learned he was living with a daughter of Seventeenth street, Cleveland, where he was known as "Timmins," and earning a living as a carpenter. At the time of his disappearance his wife reported him missing to the postal authorities and a subsequent checkup of his postoffice accounts divulged the alleged shortage.

At the time of his arrest in Cleveland, he attributed the shortage to bookkeeping, saying he "never was much of a bookkeeper, only a carpenter."

Suit Based on Hyde Speech Dismissed

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—A $3,000,000 libel suit brought four years ago by Walter S. Dickey, then owner of the Kansas City Journal-Post, against Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, and five officials of the Kansas City Star, has been dismissed for want of prosecution.

The plaintiff charged the esteem in which he was held by friends and neighbors was damaged by publication in the Star of a speech alleged to have been made by Secretary Hyde, former governor of Missouri.

Banker Gets Broken Ribs in Collision

SHARON, Aug. 30.—When two automobiles crashed on the Sharon-Five Points road, five people were injured.

N. E. Peters, cashier of the Greenville National Bank, suffered two fractured ribs. Owen Phipps, manager of the Greenville Commercial College, and Robert Steinbrook, employe of the Greenville Bank, suffered bruises, as did the occupants of the other car, Freeman Barrett, laundry owner, and his wife.

Dressmaker Strike End Believed Near

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—A settlement of the children's dressmakers' and raincoat-workers' strike, involving more than 3,000 workers, was predicted today for early next week. Action to settle the strike will be taken Tuesday. Higher wages will be granted, it was claimed by strike leaders.

Storm Halts Plane Of British Premier

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald, attempting to return by airplane from London to his Scottish home at Lossiemouth, was forced by a violent storm this evening to turn back and land at Catterick airdrome, Yorkshire. He boarded a train for Scotland.

Home Week Deficit At Franklin $22

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 30.—Franklin's fourth Old Home Week has officially closed its books, with a scant deficit of $22, which the directors will take care of at their next meeting.

40 Wouldn't Be Too Many Thieves For This Job

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The police strongly suspect Ali Baba and his forty thieves had something to do with the city's "biggest" robbery.

The beam of a steam shovel, 40 feet long and weighing ten tons, was stolen from a sewer construction job in the Drexel Hill section. A steel bucket, weighing three-quarters of a ton, and a cable, weighing about a thousand pounds, also were carted off.

Pames M. Kohler, an executive of the Delaware County Construction Company, reported the theft to police.

RUM, BEER, CAR TAKEN IN RAIDS

Wilkinsburg, Clairton, Sewickley and downtown Pittsburgh were invaded by prohibition agents who demolished a wildcat brewery, a moonshine plant and seized a liquor-laden automobile yesterday.

Detecting an odor of beer from a one-story garage at West and Kelly streets, Wilkinsburg, the agents stepped in and found 2,000 gallons of beer and 500 gallons of beer mash, they reported, the owner of the plant was being sought.

A 150-gallon still seized, agents said, in the home of Abraham Shaheen, 50, of 210 Mitchell avenue, Clairton, resulted in his arrest.

Caught, according to agents, transporting 10 gallons of moonshine in an automobile at Cherry way and Smithfield street, Joe Hannan, 48, of 1 Congress street, was held in $1,000 bail.

Whisky and home brew were reported confiscated in raids on dwellings at 306 Centennial avenue, and at 365 Ferry street, Sewickley. Margaret Merkle was released on her own recognizance in the raid of the Centennial avenue residence, raiders asserted.

GERMANS READY FOR NEXT HOP

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Strengthened by installation of a new rear strut, the Dornier-Wal flying boat, the Whale, was ready today to continue its flight to Chicago.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, the plane's pilot, and the other three members of the German trans-Atlantic crew, spent the night at Niagara Falls.

During the flight from New York yesterday the flying boat weakened a rear strut and caused Capt. von Gronau anxiety until officials of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation assured him the parts could be replaced within a few hours. The parts were made and installed last night.

FALLING PLANE SCALPS WOMEN

WILLWOOD, N. J., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Two women were partly scalped when a student pilot lost control of his plane and it crashed into the top of an automobile parked at Wildwood Gables.

The women are Mrs. Mary White, 54, Camden, N. J., and Mrs. Emma Laute, Mantua, N. J. Each lost a portion of her scalp, but at a hospital it was said they probably would recover.

The airplane was piloted by David McKibben III, of North Wildwood, with Park Reed, pilot, from whom he was taking lessons, also aboard. The fliers escaped without serious injury and were held in $1,500 bail each.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Rock County authorities began an investigation today into the airplane crash which late yesterday killed William Hinkle, 33, a student pilot, and Thieron Miller, 23. Both were burned to death when the plane burst into flames as it struck the ground.

POSSE TRAILS RUM SLAYER

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Vic Sutherland, 67, alleged Marcola (Ore.) moonshiner, wanted for the murder of Joe Saunders, deputy game warden, and Oscar Duley, Eugene policeman, was believed hiding today somewhere in the fastness of the Mohawk Valley near here.

A large posse, armed with rifles and machine guns, prepared to renew its search for him.

Duley was wounded fatally Thursday night when he halted a liquor-laden automobile driven by Sutherland. About an hour later Game Warden Saunders and Deputy Sheriffs Lee Bown and Rodney Roach forced open the door of the Sutherland residence in search for the alleged killer.

A hail of bullets greeted the officers. Saunders fell dead, shot through the heart. Bown and Roach were seriously wounded. Sutherland escaped.

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Posses continued a search today for alleged rum runners who last night shot and killed Elmer L. MAY BREAK MARK FOR TWO-YEAR WINS

WESLEY FERRELL, Cleveland pitching ace, with 12 straight victories to his credit, may not equal nor beat the American League record of 16 successive wins, set by Walter Johnson and Joe Wood in 1912, but if he can grab off four more decisions between now and the finish of the season, even though they are not consecutive, he will hang up a new mark of a different sort. He will have won more ball games than any other pitcher ever did in his first two years in the big show. That record is now held by Grover Cleveland Alexander, who won 47 and lost 30 games in his first two seasons with the Phillies, for a percentage of .610.

Wesley Ferrell

Last year Ferrell won 21 and lost 10, and up to date this season he has won 23 and lost 9, making his complete record 44 victories against only 19 defeats, a percentage of .698. He is practically certain to wind up the two years with a better percentage than Alex made, and has a fair chance to beat Old Pete's total of 47 wins. Before Ferrell reached the 44 mark, Charley Root, of the Cubs, was credited with the closest approach to Alexander's figures. Root won 44 and lost 32 during his first two campaigns.

AMONG THE OTHER star pitchers of the past and present, Cy Young and Eddie Plank made the best records in games won during their first and second years. Young won 37 and lost 29, while Plank won 37 and lost 36. Dazzy Vance won 36 and lost 27, Remy Kremer won 35 and lost 18, Christy Mathewson won 33 and lost 35, Walter Johnson won 27 and lost 39, Joe Wood won 23 and lost 20, Lefty Grove won 23 and lost 25, and Burleigh Grimes won 22 and lost 25.

Ferrell has been particularly good against the strong clubs. In two seasons he has beaten the A's nine times in 11 games. This year he has taken the Mackmen for five out of six, the Senators for three in a row, the Yankees for three out of five, the Tigers for three out of six, the Browns for two out of three, the White Sox for three out of four, and the Red Sox for four out of five. He showed his class against the Yanks a few days ago, with runners on second and third, none out, and Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri and Cooke coming up. He fanned Ruth for the third time in the game, filled the bases by walking Gehrig when the latter refused to hit at bad balls, fielded Lazzeri's tap for a force-out at the plate, and struck out Cooke to end the inning. Not one of the four Yank sluggers had hit a ball past the pitcher's box. A rather fair sort of pitching.

TWO OF THE mightiest Pirates of other days have accepted invitations to play in an old-timers' game at Boston on Monday, September 8. They are Honus Wagner and Fred Clarke, and they will line up with a team of former major league stars from various clubs against an outfit of old Boston players.

Clarke, making the long trip from his Kansas home to join with Wagner in representing the old Pirate world champions and winners of four pennants, will arrive in Pittsburgh next Thursday morning and leave with Honus for Boston on Saturday night.

Honus Wagner

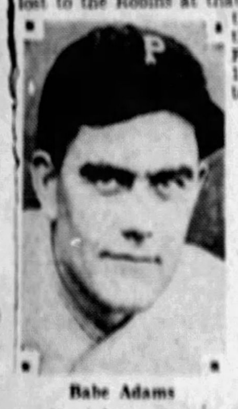
AMONG THE OTHER luminaries of the past appearing in the game will be Ty Cobb, Cy Young, Eddie Collins, Roger Bresnahan, Fred Tenney, Bill Dineen, Freddie Parent, Jack Barry, Joe Tinker, Johnny Evers and Jimmy Archer. Wagner and Clarke always were great favorites in Boston, as elsewhere, even when rivalry between the Hub and Pittsburgh was keenest in 1903, the year in which the Pirates and Red Sox revived the world series, and their coming is being hailed by Boston fans as one of the high spots in connection with the game.

IT MAY BE no great trick to win a golf match when you're far out in front and everything is breaking your way, but it takes a real champion to fight his way from behind and win out in a 36-hole final after being left four down at the end of the first 18.

Carl Kauffmann's great uphill fight to a 3-and-2 victory over Bob Graham, retaining the city public links title, after a discouraging morning round, would have proved Kauffmann the class of the local free linkers even if he had not established that fact by winning the crown three times previously. Only a golfer who is a champion in every quality could have done that, and against a foeman such as Graham. Unquestionably Kauffmann is alone in his field here.

EIGHT GAMES of greater length than the 26-inning battle between the Cubs and Cardinals in Chicago on Thursday have been played in the two big leagues, and the Pittsburgh club was mixed up in no fewer than three of them.

The longest route ever traveled by the Bucs was 22 innings. They lost to the Robins at that distance in Brooklyn on August 22, 1917, the score being 6 to 5. On July 17, 1914, they were defeated by the Giants at Forbes Field, 3 to 1, in 21 innings, and on August 1, 1918, they beat the Braves in Boston, 2 to 0, in the same number of rounds.



Babe Adams

TWO OF THE Pittsburgh club's long games brought major league records that still stand. The first was set by Babe Adams in the Marathon with the Giants here 16 years ago, the longest major league game ever played in this city, when he pitched the entire 21 innings without giving a base on balls, the distance record for control in a single contest. Adams lost his game to Rube Marquard in the twenty-first round, when, with two out, Larry Doyle punched a home run through Joe Kelly in center field after Rob Bescher had singled. The other record was established in the 2-to-0 21-inning game in Boston in 1918, when the clubs went through 20 innings without scoring, the longest stretch ever played in one game before one side or the other made a run. Erskine Mayer and Wilbur Cooper pitched that game for Pittsburgh, and Art Nehf went the whole route for Boston. Cooper's life on a force-out, singles by Tommy Leach and Max Carey and a double by Billy Southworth broke it up.

THOSE CUBS HAVE been doing some remarkable fighting in coming from behind and breaking down big leads to deadlock games or pull them out of the fire, but the terrific going may exact a heavy toll from the club in general as well as from the pitching staff. With the latter crippled by injuries to Charley Root and Fred Blake and the other flingers in danger of being overworked, there is a dangerous stretch of schedule ahead of the Bruins even before they start on their hard Eastern trip.

Following the tough series with the Cards, the league leaders must play three games in Cincinnati on Monday and Tuesday, and they haven't had much luck in that town. Then they've got to play four games with the Pirates here and one in Chicago next Sunday, which spells more trouble. Meanwhile the Cards must play three games here with the Pirates on Monday and Tuesday, and they've been able to beat the Bucs only four times in 16 meetings so far, following with four games against the Reds.

The 1930 baseball championship of the International Printers' Union will be decided today as the annual title tournament of the Typos convention comes to a close after a week's stand here.

In the semi-final games this morning, Pitt and Chicago and Washington and Cincinnati will clash. The local Typos meet Chicago at Magee Field at 10 o'clock and Washington, defending champions, engage Cincinnati at Frick Park. The winners will tangle this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at Magee Field.

Local fans got a big kick out of the Pittsburgh Chapter's 3 to 2 victory over New York at Frick Park yesterday. Manager Skeets Nelligen, of the home team, turning in a Frank Merriwell act by hitting a home run in the ninth to win the game.

Detroit and Cincinnati put on a long winded slugfest at Magee playgrounds, Cincy finally won the game 17 to 13. The fans were plenty tired when the last put out was made.

CHAMPS VICTORS

Washington, defending its championship, secured sweet revenge by handing Chicago its first defeat in the series. The Senators hit the ball hard in the second game at Magee Field and won by a 15-to-4 score.

Today is another day with the baseball followers of the Printers tourney, but yesterday was the final day of the golfing championship over the classy links at Alcoma Country Club, and when the 72 holes of medal play was over, Charlie Radabaugh of Detroit had the 1930 championship trophy tucked under his belt. His score was 326 for the 72 holes.

Ed Gableman, of Cincinnati, the 18-year-old apprentice, who was the favorite to cop the event, was second with 328. Gabelman had led the parade three days but a wonderful last round copped the trophy for the Detroiter.

DETROIT COPS TITLE

The team championship also went to Detroit, Radabaugh and Ryan of the Michigan city teamed well enough to have an aggregate score of 695. The scores:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE BIRTH OF A MOUNTAIN—Mount Izalco, a volcano, of San Salvador, Central America, was "born" February 23, 1770. Since its birth it has never ceased to erupt ashes and stone through its three craters. It is continuously enveloped in a column of fire, and ships can be guided by it at night. Hence its name of the "Lighthouse of Salvador." AN ALBATROSS CANNOT FLY FROM THE DECK OF A SHIP—My statement about the albatross is based on actual experiment. Some ornithologists explain it on the grounds that the wings of the albatross resemble those of an airplane to a greater degree than those of any other bird, and that the albatross requires a long runway before it can rise into the air.

ARNOLD SETS SPEED MARK

ALTOONA, Aug. 30.—Billy Arnold, Indianapolis and Altoona winner, yesterday annexed the world's board track speed record for two-man cars when he qualified for Monday's 200-mile championship race at 124.3 miles an hour. The mark was two miles an hour faster than the 122.3 record he hung up in qualifying for the June classic. At present he holds the coveted pole position in the Labor Day starting lineup.

A high wind which kept qualifiers off the track the greater part of the afternoon probably cheated Arnold out of a higher mark.

It was the Chicago youth's first run on the boards since he won the Flag Day classic in June. His Hartz-Miller special arrived from Indianapolis Thursday and he made 10 practice laps before being clocked.

Stubby Stubblefield, West Coast ace, experienced difficulty for the second day when he broke a block. Thursday the mount threw a rod. With today the last day for qualifying trials, a wild scramble for positions among the 12 starters is anticipated with 13 cars yet to be timed.

Herrera, Strub Fight to Draw

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Tony Herrera, 113½, Chicago, fought a draw here last night in 10 rounds with Maxie Strub, 118, Erie.

Mickey Donato, 115, Ashtabula, O., was given a six-round decision over Johnny Toran, 112, Chicago Negro.

Billy Barringer, 119, Conneaut, O., knocked out Johnny Dack, 124, Erie, in the second round of a scheduled four-round match. Paul Maraski, 154, Erie, knocked out Porky Holstein, 162, Cleveland, O., in the first round of a scheduled four-round match.

The Lincoln Civics, of the Central League, are without a game at home for Sunday afternoon. Managers of first class clubs should call the manager at Emerson 9811.

Famous Coaches Bury Hatchet For Sun-Tele

Friendly enemies on the football field have been brought together by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to "bury the hatchet" and work hand in hand for a common cause—that of keeping Sun-Telegraph readers informed of football activities throughout the nation.

The friendly enemies in question are Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, Knute Rockne, Tad Jones and Bill Alexander, famous coaches all — and all regular contributors to the sports columns of the Sun-Telegraph from next Monday until the football campaign closes.

Warner, former Pitt coach now at Stanford, is to be the first to "take pen in hand." The Warner article which will be published Monday will be the first of a long series of entertaining contributions by Pop. Rockne, Jones and Alexander also will provide Sun-Telegraph readers with football entertainment at regular intervals as the season advances.

FORMER CHAMPS CLASH TODAY

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Two former titleholders faced each other at Hillcrest Country Club today in the final match of the twenty-eighth annual Women's Western Golf Tournament.

Miss Dorothy Page, Madison, Wis., and Mrs. G. W. Tyson, Kansas City, became finalists at the expense of the defending champion and the runner-up of last year's tournament.

Miss Page came from behind to eliminate Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, defending champion, 1 up in the semi-finals yesterday. Mrs. Tyson, national champion in 1927, conquered a coast entrant, Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles, 3 and 2.

HARMSWORTH DUELS OPEN

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—With the British challengers and the United States defenders seemingly equal in speed, nerve promises to play a large part in deciding the winner of the Harmsworth trophy races, the first heat of which will be run on the Detroit River this afternoon. It will require no little nerve to take the several turns on the five-mile course with a minimum deceleration of speed.

On the straightaway stretches the hydroplanes will be approximating 90 miles an hour. Gar Wood, defender of the trophy, has said that the speed reduction making the turns is at least 10 miles an hour.

The British challenging craft, Estelle IV, and Estelle V, are admitted to be the fastest boats Wood has ever been called upon to race against.

Miss Carstairs, attractive young English girl, has monopolized most of the spotlight in the activities preliminary to the race, largely because of her courage in three times challenging the veteran Wood, and her sportsmanship. She pilots her boat with the skill and daring of a seasoned speedboat veteran. She will be at the wheel of Estelle IV today, while Hawker will pilot Estelle V, faster of the two challengers.

Although Wood has entered boats, the Miss Americas V, VIII, and IX, there is a disposition to believe that barring accidents the race will resolve itself into a duel between Wood in Miss America IX and Hawker at the wheel of Estelle V.

First game starts at two o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Forbes Field today is the setting for another doubleheader. Dual attractions are pretty much the vogue with the Pirates these days and the twin bills have been quite profitable to the home boys. The Reds of Cincinnati will help to furnish the excitement this afternoon, the first battle to get under way at 2 o'clock.

Yesterday's contest being postponed on account of rain, the Pirates this morning were in better shape for a pitching standpoint. Manager Ens had his two young southpaws, Larry French and Charlie Wood, in shape to flip the ball, but there was a chance that Ervin Brame would hurl one of the contests, although Brame has had only two days of rest since his ordeal with the Cubs. Moreover, his injured left hand is still in a bad way.

WOOD TO HURL

Charlie Wood is just about a sure shot to twirl one of the games. Manager Dan Howley of the rival nine has Ray Kolp, Epps Rixey and Larry Benton available for sharpshooting duty.

The canceled game of yesterday has been moved back to Tuesday, Sept. 23, when it will help to make up a part of a doubleheader at Forbes Field. The Rhinelanders are due to be in the city at that time for the last series of the season in the Oakland Orchard.

Considering today's contests, the home of the Buccos is carded for only 11 more battles ere the curtain falls. Eight of these will be run off in the next week with the Reds, Cardinals and Cubs furnishing the opposition in the order named. The other three are reserved for the Reds who will be here in late September.

STAFF NEEDS REST

Manager Ens is highly desirous of getting through the next few days in good order. Jewell's slab staff was in a bad way after the doubleheader of Thursday, the day of relaxation yesterday bringing surcease to a curtailed slab squad that has done nobly in the gruelling games of the past 10 or 12 games. In their last dozen contests the Freebooters have walked off with 10 victory laurels, but there has been a heavy drain on the bob-tailed staff of flingers.

Following the completion of today's double-header, the two clubs will move to Cincinnati for one of those jumps distasteful to the average player. A single game is carded for Redland Field tomorrow. This completed, the Oaklanders will hurry back to their favorite ball park to repel the invasion of a very dangerous foeman.

CARDS HERE NEXT

The Cardinals are slated to take on the Buccos twice Monday in the annual Labor Day games. Up to the present the Buccos have been terribly mean with the Redbirds, they winning 12 of the 16 contests fought between the two clubs. But the Cards now are playing their best ball of the season and they will be out for revenge.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Cubs and A's are practically in, but you don't hear the other managers moaning much. This has been one of the best seasons for attendance in years. The turnstiles have been slipping around like roulette wheels and the way the fans lined up at the box-office you would think Lindbergh was pitching against Calvin Coolidge, with Mrs. Gann and Alice fighting for the best seat on the home team's bench. In Brooklyn and Chicago the fans turned out on stormy days just to get the raincheeks for souvenirs. Even in Boston the Red Sox made enough money to buy an extra water pail.

KAUFFMANN WINS SIXTH CITY GOLF TITLE

STAR DEFEATS GRAHAM IN FINALE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

A champion who always proves himself a champion—that's Carl F. Kauffmann, the Schenley Park idol, who yesterday captured his sixth city championship in eight years by making a remarkable comeback to defeat that gallant player, Robert (Bob) Graham, 3 and 2, in their 36-hole finale over the municipal layout.

Unquestionably the finis was written yesterday to the finest city championship tournament in years, a fine strong field competed from the outset, the match play rounds were run off without a single dispute, and the test that told the story yesterday was one of the most sensational matches exhibited here in many a day.

GALLERY ORDERLY

And we've seen many a larger gallery at Oakmont during a national championship, and many a smaller one in West Penn tourney titular finals that could take a lesson from the behavior of the 1,000 folks who trailed Kauffmann and Graham yesterday morning and the 2,000 or more who braved the rain to follow them on their last round in the afternoon. The conduct of the gallery was a commendable tribute to the general handling of the tourney from beginning to end, and in that respect Professional Al McBride and the director, John Jay Burke, get a big hand.

It was the advantage of greater experience, if not greater golf skill that re-crowned Kauffman champion in the face of one of the finest sportsmen ever to oppose him in the municipal finale, the Graham who, in his semi-final match, called a penalty on himself when no one on the course saw his mistake.

Kauffman, ever slow to get started in a battle for crown, was 2 up after the third hole, through nervous putting on the part of Graham, but slowly, and surely relinquished his lead to the husky medalist after that titan-haired young man dropped a pretty chip from off the green on the seventh to score a birdie 2. The lucky break gave Graham needed confidence and he rang up two more birdies in quick succession to the end that as they made the turn in the morning.

GRAHAM TWO UP

Graham was 2 up and out in 33 to Kauffman's 34. They halved three more holes and then Kauffman won one back by grabbing a birdie 3 on the thirteenth—unlucky, what?—after which Graham won three holes in a row with 3s, the last a birdie, to go 4 up, the advantage he held as they went to luncheon. Graham made the homeward trek in 32 for a medal 65, one under par, while Kauffman had needed 34 and his total was 69. Rimmed putts that jumped out of the back door, three of 'em, rather hurt Kauffmann, while his tee shot out-of-bounds on the sixteenth didn't help him any.

The ice water started running through the former National champion's veins, however, as they started the last round and they hadn't played but five holes before the match was even again. Graham, playing under a tension, found that it was no fun to see his perfect putts either stop on the lip of the cup—or bounce out after rimming the orfice. That happened on three holes—and on the fifth, where he missed a putt for a half that amounted to a couple of feet. Kauffmann won first, third, fourth and fifth, before Graham recovered sufficiently to retaliate—and he did by copping the sixth and seventh to go 2 up again.

CHAMP CUTS LEAD

They halved the eighth in 4s, but Kauffmann narrowed the margin by grabbing off the ninth with a birdie 3. Graham was away over his usual medal game, being out in 37 to Carl's 34, although he still maintained a 1 up advantage, which was shortlived.

On the inward trek, Kauffmann started working. Graham found sand on the tenth and lost that to Carl's par 4; Bob drove a ball out of bounds on the eleventh and he lost that to a par 4—which put him 1 down.

They halved the twelfth in 3s—and then came the slaughter of the fatted calf, or what have you?

A birdie 3 and a par 3 were too tough for Graham to handle and as they went to the fifteenth tee, Kauffmann was 2 up. They halved the fifteenth in 4, and the match was ended when Kauffmann calmly dropped his putt for a par 4 to Graham's 5 on the sixteenth, the margin being 3 and 2 in Kauffmann's favor.

SIX IN ROW

Kauffmann first won the title in 1923, beating Buck O'Neil; Bernie McFarland copped it in 1924, Kauffmann beat Pat McDonough to win it in 1925; McDonough eliminated Kauffmann for the bunting in 1926, and then Carl grabbed it the next four years in a row—beating the same Bob Graham in 1927, Francis Lally in 1928, Joe Natalie in 1929—and Graham again.

Kauffmann played like a champion throughout. Graham is to be commended upon his great push through a tougher upper bracket to reach the titular finale.

Cubs Welcome Departure of St. Louis

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Joe McCarthy and his bruised Cubs will be happy when the St. Louis Cardinals and their extra-inning habits leave Chicago.

In the last two days the National League champions, crippled by the absence of four stars, have had to toil for 33 innings in order to end two baseball games. Right on top of defeating the Cubs in 20 innings Thursday, the Cards came right back yesterday and stuck around before losing in 13 innings.

On Thursday Sheriff Blake and Charlie Root, regular starting pitchers, reported to the club physician with injuries. Yesterday Hack Wilson was unable to start because of a strained muscle in his right side, and Gabby Hartnett had a battered finger.

LEVINSKY WINS

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—King Levinsky, Chicago light heavyweight, scored a technical knockout victory over Jack Kraxon, of Champaign, Ill., in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout bout.

KAYOS SWEEP N. S. FIGHT PROGRAM

By JAMES MILLER.

The boys who like their fights short and sweet were accommodated to the proverbial T last night at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., North Side, when all five bouts of the card ended in knockouts.

On top of the double windup, Jack Wilson, North Side middleweight, engaging in his first bout under the management of James (Red) Mason, scored a technical knockout over Al (Red) Jaderberg, of Jamestown, N. Y., in the sixth round. A short right hand punch to the face floored Jaderberg and as the knockdown timekeeper tolled the count of six, Eddie Kennedy, the referee, called a halt to the affair by lifting Jaderberg off the floor and carried him to his corner.

SWEDE DOWN TWICE

Wilson had the red-haired Swede on the floor twice in the second round, but could not keep him down. The first knockdown Wilson scored was with a right to the chin. Jaderberg took the count of nine. Upon reaching his feet Jaderberg ran into another right that sent him sprawling onto the ropes. At the count of six the bell intervened, ending the round.

It was not all roses for Wilson, for the Jamestown fighter used a looping right hand punch that rocked Jack on several occasions. Wilson weighed 156¼ and Jaderberg 159¼.

In the other half of the twin bill, Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, scored his second consecutive knockout, this time at the expense of Paul Oger, stocky welterweight, of Bellaire, O., in the second round, when Oger fell to the floor holding his side and appearing to be in bad shape from right hand punches. He took the count resting on one knee.

Oger went down three times in this round and in each instance from Belmont's right hand that found a nestling spot on Oger's ribs. Oger took the counts of eight and nine the first two times he went down. Belmont, 148¾ and Oger 148.

DeVORE KAYOLD

The second six round bout found Harry DeVore, of Alliance, O., being knocked out by Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill, in the first round.

Brent sent a vicious right to DeVore's chin in the opening round that sunk the Ohioan, who took the count on one knee. DeVore just didn't know what it was all about and when the referee helped him to his feet and started him to his corner he sent up a yell and wanted to fight. The bout lasted just 50 seconds. DeVore was subbing for Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, who is suffering with boils under his right arm.

A fair sized crowd attended the initial outdoor venture of Francis Flynn, who will run fights there till the cold weather forces him indoors at the Moose Temple.

Joe Keally and Frank Ferris were the judges and Eddie Kennedy referred all the fights. Dr. J. A. Munster was the commission physician. Ray Eberle did the announcing.

Flynn intends to use Jimmy Belmont against a good opponent for next week's attraction.

Primo Carnera, the man-mountain of Italy, meets A. Ingow (mystery) Roberts, Jacksonville, in 10 rounds at the Public Auditorium in Atlantic City tonight. The show is being held as a benefit for the Milk and Ice Fund.

The Meyers Bowl card for next Tuesday night is organized around (Red) McCarthy, of Dubuque, meets Clyde Hoff, of Texas in the main bout. Chet Smallwood, of Akron, boxes Eddie Ruthman, of Wheeling, in the eight-rounder semi-final. Kimmy Warner, of Canton, is the headliner in the second six-round affair, with Tiger Joe Clark, of the South Side, boxing Marty Dornick, of McKeesport, in the opening bout.

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro star, claims that Johnny Erickson, New York featherweight, thumbed him in the left eye in their fight at Mickey Park last Thursday night, and he was taken to the Passavant Hospital to have the optic treated. This injury to Rodgers forced Frankie Flynn to call off his Rodgers-Baker Hookdown's fight scheduled for the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. next Friday night.

Chicago Stadium Averts Bankruptcy

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The world's largest sports palace is facing a financial crisis.

Sydney Strotz, president and general manager of the $7,000,000 Chicago Stadium, disclosed yesterday that a recapitulation has been proposed to avert bankruptcy.

The Stadium company was compelled to default on the sinking fund provisions of the first mortgage and was unable to make interest payments, Strotz disclosed. To prevent foreclosure, it is necessary to raise $300,000 immediately.

A stockholders' committee has outlined a plan of refinancing, calling for the sale of second mortgage bonds.

Daily Calls Meeting Of M.-A. Magnates

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 30.—President Elmer Daily, of the Middle-Atlantic League, has called a special executive meeting in Uniontown tomorrow night to consider the Fairmont protest of several Clarksburg games for alleged violation of the rookie rule.

The call for the meeting indicates a heavy fine will be assessed on any club not represented.

Cambria County Fair Opens Monday

EBENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 29.—The six-day fall race meeting of the Cambria County Fair, which opens here Monday, won't lack for horses.

Already there are close to 100 on the grounds, while 38 of the stables that have been racing this week at Cumberland, Md., will ship in late today or early tomorrow morning. The thoroughbreds that performed during the opening of Maryland's fall season are coming by motor van and train and will be safely quartered in stalls before sundown tomorrow.

Race Secretary J. D. Dobson, who has been assisting Edward J. Brennan operate the Cumberland session, arrived yesterday.

Every holder of a track record will be available for next week's meeting, which means that some fast times will be hung out should the weather man be on his good behavior.

Carnera Boxes Bertazolla Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, mammoth Italian, battles Ricardo Bertazolla, also of Italy, over the 15-round route here tonight. Carnera rules an overwhelming favorite to beat Bertazolla, a second-rater, most experts picking the Ambling Alp to win by a knockout inside of five rounds.

NUTHALL, LOTT DEFEATED IN DOUBLES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Betty Nuthall's hope of duplicating the 1924 and 1928 clean sweeps made by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody in the three most important tennis championships open to women, was shattered by the hard driving racquets of Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, and Frank Shields, New York, in one of the semi-finals of the mixed doubles title play yesterday at Longwood.

The Brittish girl became the American women's singles champion and co-holder of doubles title last Sunday at Forest Hills, N. Y., in Mrs. Moody's absence. She teamed in the present tourney with George Lott of Chicago, for the defense of the mixed title they won here last year.

LOSE ON SEMI-FINAL

They galloped through the lower half of the draw without serious opposition until yesterday, when they were outplayed widely by Miss Morrill and Shields, who won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

The other mixed finalists were Edith Cross, of San Francisco, and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex. They entered the championship round by defeating Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, South Boro, and Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., 6-3, 6-4.

Today, Lott and Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., will defend their national doubles championship against the Davis Cup doubles players, Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., who have defeated the former team three times this season, once for the British doubles title at Wimbledon.

Both sets of men's finalists reached the last round Thursday when the champions defeated Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter and Allison and Van Ryn blasted another Texas-New Jersey combination out of their paths, Berkley Bell and Gregory Mangin.

BUCCOS RECALL ANDY BEDNAR

Pitcher Andy Bednar, farmed out to the Wichita Club of the Western League, has been recalled by the Pittsburgh Pirates and will report here tomorrow night, according to an announcement today by Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the local club.

Bednar made a fine showing with the Wichita Club this season, winning 18 games and losing only 7.

EASTERN OFFICIALS.

Walter Okeson has called a meeting for the eastern football officials at New York City for next Saturday and Sunday and has invited Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Big Ten, to come East and tell them how they handle officials so happily in the Middle West.

Knute Rockne

Maj. Griffith should have some very interesting information for his eastern brethren. He is no Prussian war lord, but a very fair, human, tactful person who almost has achieved the distinction of being able to please everyone. He doesn't feel that the game of football belongs to him and the officials, but that perhaps the players, the public and even the down-trodden coaches have a share in it. I am sure that Maj. Griffith's remarks will be quite enlightening to his audience.

The battle surged until the ninth, when with the score tied, Manager Nelligan was due to open the Pittsburgh half of the inning. Skeets hit that first pitch a mile and could have rounded the bases twice before the ball returned to the diamond. Yesterday's scores:

BRUIN STARS AILING

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(INS.)—The Chicago Cubs were further embarrassed in their race for the pennant when it was announced this afternoon that Hack Wilson, slugging outfielder and league-leading home run slugger, would be unable to play for a couple of days. A lame back was given as the reason.

It was also announced Gabby Hartnett would be out for a few days. The Cub backstopper stopped a foul ball with his right thumb during yesterday's 20-inning encounter.

Dr. John Davis, club physician of the Cubs, also announced that Charley Root, one of the leading hurlers, would be available for service Sunday. Root sprained a muscle in his arm in a recent game with the Pirates, but the club physician reported Charley would be back in shape by Sunday.

SEEDED STARS WIN IN W. VA. TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 30.—Survivors of a men's singles field of 74 will battle their way toward advanced rounds of the second annual Morgantown Country Club invitation tennis tournament here today. Despite a trio of interruptions interposed by rain yesterday, no less than 26 tussles were accounted for to reduce the trophy-chasing group to proportions capable of convenient handling.

It is hoped that by the hour of starting men's doubles and women's singles this afternoon, the man-to-man event will be well into the bracket of 16.

SEEDED STARS WIN

Seeded favorites came through the initial day's tilting without exception or even serious opposition. The 1929 winner, B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling, swept ahead at the expense of John Wallace, home performer, 6-1, 6-1. Edgar Alcorn, Mt. Lebanon entrant and the lone Pittsburgher to see action this afternoon, drove through another Morgantowner, Nelson Stewart, in love sets, while Billy Ramsay, slashing Uniontown star, dropped but one game to Hale Posten, likewise a local racqueter. The remaining members of the selected eight will not step to the court till this morning.

Three Steel Citizens moved forward by default, Neal Rumsey, Mount Lebanon southpaw, Billy O'Loughlin and Paul Sullivan, P. A. A. aspirants, easing on as Roy Heusel, Wheeling entry, Bill Weber, Clarksburg stylist, and Bob Brown, West Virginia state intercollegiate champion, proved unable to attend the meeting. O'Loughlin, incidentally, sent word last evening that he, too, must withdraw from the list, an ailing tooth having been extracted from him on Thursday and the operation having been so serious that he is under orders to remain quiet.

LOCALS PLAY TODAY

Other Pittsburghers are due to arrive early this morning, the troop including Frank Smith, Edgewood captain, John Brown, Mount Lebanon luminary, Howard Moore, College avenue leader, K. R. Brooks, of Wilkinsburg, and Miriam Sullivan, P. A. A. feminine driver, who is rated a strong contender for women's honors.

Another powerful squad is slated to blow in from Washington, D. C., before noon. Bob Considine, rangy George Washington University flash, who copped the Western Maryland title at Mountain Lake Park a fortnight ago heads the array, and with him will be those spectacular young capital cracks, Dooley Mitchell, second to Gregory Mangin at Georgetown, and Eddie Yeomans, noted top man of the University of North Carolina, and National Public Parks doubles finalist last week.

ground at present, there may be a further tightening of the race next week, with the Braves rushing right into the first division proceedings.

Three weeks ago today the Pirates were 14½ games behind the Robins. Now they are only three games behind the Cardinals, four behind the Robins and four and a half behind the Giants. They'll have a splendid chance to accomplish something next week which will be the most important period of the season at Forbes Field and one that may turn the race into a more open and more exciting finish than it promised to be only a short while back.

Jim McGirr

THE OLDEST BOXING club in the Pittsburgh district will be the first to open its indoor season. That is the Majestic A. C., of McKeesport, of which Jim McGirr is the head. McGirr, who has been promoting boxing longer than any of the other fistic showmen now active in this section, is all set to begin his sixteenth year in the glove game at the Palisades in the Tube City, and will hold his opening show on Thursday night, September 11. He has arranged an attractive feature number for the inaugural by matching Tommy Malee, of Pittsburgh, and Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, to meet in the 10-round main bout, the weight to be 145 pounds. Rose has an impressive record to recommend him. He holds wins over Harry (Kid) Brown, Eddie (Kid) Wagner, Tug Phillips, Stag Myers, Sammy Price and many others. He has met Vincent Hambright three times, the latest bout having taken place in Cincinnati two months ago, with Rose getting the decision. The promising topliner will be preceded by an eight-round semi-final and two six-round bouts. Promoter McGirr announces a new policy of popular prices for McKeesport shows during the coming season, with balcony seats at the Palisades reduced to 75 cents and reserved seats on the first floor cut to $1.25 and $2.

Lipton to Offer Yachting Trophy

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, British yachtsman and challenger for the America's Cup, today said he would furnish a trophy for competition between the fishermen of Canada and the United States.

Britain's grand old man of yachting conferred on board his steam yacht Erin with Capt. Ben Pine, representative of the Gloucester fishermen. It was decided that the cup would be known as the Sir Thomas Lipton international fishermen's challenge trophy.

Pine will sail the American schooner, the Gertrude L. Thebaud, against the Nova Scotian Bluenose, Capt. Angus Walters, of Lunenburg, N. S., in a series opening at Gloucester October 9.

13-DAY FALL MEET GETS UNDERWAY

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 30.—The hosses go again here today, an eight-race program opening the Golden Jubilee West Virginia State Fair 13-day fall running meet. The list of bang-tails stabled at the Island Oval barns is easily as large and as formidable as the one that carried on through the highly successful spring meeting, auguring well for two weeks of very fine sport.

The boys are laying their nickles aside today for the sixth race, the West Virginia State Fair Inaugural, a claiming race for three-year-olds and up, to be run ocer the six furlong course. A field of 10 has been named to start in the three-quarter mile chase, with wise-eyed ones casting a glance at their bankrolls and then at Kentucky Colonel.

FINE FIELD ENTERED

Top weight in this race will be toted by Dr. Charley, listed to lug 115 pounds. Kentucky Colonel, Miss Sourire and Rock Abbey are all to carry 13 pounds.

In a workout yesterday, Rock Abbey turned in a quarter-mile in 25 seconds and three-eights in 43 2-5. Dr. Charley sprinted a quarter in 25. Swift Current, a stepper that will not turn up as a complete surprise as the winner, was clocked in 53 flat for half a mile.

On form, Kentucky Colonel, Dr. Charley, Swift Current and Rock Abbey appear to hold the edge on the rest of the field, but then, these horses don't read the form sheets or the papers and can't be depended upon to do what they should. Ask Gallant Fox about Jim Dandy if you don't follow me.

The seventh and eighth races, carrying as hefty purses as the Inaugural, have drawn snappy fields. The seventh event, titled the St. Clairville, will see runners of the class of Misnomer, Peter Prim, High Life and Vernon scurring about the track. In the eighth, the Elm Grove, Laftar, a winner at the spring meeting; Otto, Adams Apple, Sunny Golden and Rockland Boy are up.

The first two races are of five furlongs each, and carry $400 added money. The third, fourth and fifth are six furlong chases; the sixth a six and one-half furlong dash and the seventh and eighth a mile and a sixteenth.

MOLLERUP DOGS SET RECORD

A new record for winning was established last night at the New Kensington Kennel Club when Richard Mollerup's dogs scored four victories and one third in five starts. Mollerup, a Chicago delicatessen operator, won the first three races in a row with Bill Chord, By Request and A. V. Hoover. In the fifth race he finished third with Johnnie's Comrade and in the sixth race Pilsager grabbed the purse.

The feature tonight is the seventh race, five-sixteenths of a mile, matching Alloon, Keno Thought, Hunters Home, Blended, Dashing Chorus, Spindle Top, Banjo Encore and Adeline. The latter, a tiny female, was beaten a nose for all the money in the recent Butte (Mont.) Derby.

Football Contest Blank

Can you recall the Pitt football stars of yesteryear? If you are acquainted with the prowess of the gridiron Panthers, why not select an all-time Pitt eleven and win choice tickets to games which Pitt will play in the Stadium this fall?

James J. Long, sports critic and columnist, is to select the team which will be regarded as "official." Match Mr. Long's team and you will receive a season ticket to Pitt's home games; disagree with Mr. Long regarding the merits of one player and you and a friend will be "armed" with Pitt-Notre Dame game credentials. For information regarding other prizes, and comment regarding the feats of Panthers of the distant and not-so-distant past (which will be very helpful to contest entrants) read the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's sports columns each day.

Fill out the attached contest blank today and mail it to the Football Contest Editor.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well, folks, that off day wasn't hard for us to take, the pace we've being goin', especially the pitchers. I guess the Reds were more willin' to play than us yesterday, but one game or so makes no never mind with that gang. It looks like they will finish just where they are now, and that is no moral victory for them Cincy fans.

But at that I guess the fans down there will be yellin' for the opening day tickets before the year is up. Those babies are gluttons for punishment down there.

CUBS REAL FIGHTERS

Well, isn't it about time for all of us to break down and give them Cubs credit for being the best fighters in baseball. You can have McGraw's teams for scrappers, but I'll take McCarthy's crew for my money after what they showed in about a dozen clinches this year.

If you remember back a few weeks ago you'll recall they went into Brooklyn three or four games behind them Dodgers and a five-game series on tap. And what did they do? You tell 'em! Then they measured the Dodgers a little later in Chicago and they stopped the Giants when they was runnin' wild. And on top of all them tough games, includin' some darbs with the Phillies, they run into the durndest series of the season with the Cardinals.

NOSE OUT CARDS

They had to have plenty of stomach to close in on them Redbirds in the ninth yesterday, and then did you see what they did in the eleventh!

I'm not knockin' the American League, but a lot of our gang think that if the Cubs could take on the "A's" when they're in the same stride they showed in a lot of jams with good National League teams, it might be just "too bad" for the Athletics. And don't think there isn't a flock of great teams in our circuit.

R. I. Auto Racer Washington Victor

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 30.—Henry Turgeon, of Pawtucket, R. I., cleverly wheeled a Frontenac into the van to cop first money in the free-for-all for racing automobiles at Arden Downs yesterday afternoon.

Turgeon led the field of 10 from the start, covering the 20-mile distance over the half-mile dirt track in 10:29 4. Mike Hickson, of Pittsburgh, challenged Turgeon all the way, driving a thrilling race for second position.

The races are held under sanction of the controlling board of the American Autobomile Association.

Fourteen drivers qualified to participate in the five speed events staged during the afternoon. Turgeon also led the qualifying field, his time for the single lap being clocked at 31 4-5 seconds.

Moe and Joe—

Favor GALLANT FOX in the fifth race at Saratoga as Their Best Bet, Their Long Shot Special is HARLEM in the sixth race.

Moe and Joe picked two winners yesterday, Spinach, their best bet, won the fourth race at Saratoga, while Finite, the Widener entry, was a winner in the second race.

RAIN HALTS CITY SERIES

Officials of the Homewood and Book Shoe nines, in the throes of the annual City League title series, will get together today to make arrangements to playoff last night's postponed game, the second of the series. Rain and wet grounds forced the postponment of the second fussle.

Today's sandlot card is an attractive one. Swissvale and Verona clash at Edgar Thompson Park, Braddock, this afternoon in a Greater Pittsburgh elimination game.

The Pitcairn R. R. nine will clash with Fort Wayne in a Pennsy region elimination battle at Pitcairn. In the Greater Pittsburgh League, the Dan Heeps meet Edgewood, with the latter facing elimination from the title race if the game is lost.

Last evening, Reliance Life took over National Union in an independent tussle, 5 to 4 in a closely contested game. In the West Penn League, Homestead Aces walloped Whitaker, 7 to 4 and in the Philadelphia Company circuit, Equitable Gas nosed out Byllesby, 1 to 0 when Deasel hurled a three-hit shutout game for the Gassers.

QUAKERS, IRISH SIGN PACT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania and Notre Dame will meet on the gridiron the next four years, Sydney E. Hutchinson, chairman of the Penn council on athletics, announced today. The contract signed last year called for only two home-and-home games, 1930 and 1931, with this year's contest at Franklin Field on November 8.

Hutchinson's announcement was made after a conference with Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, and a number of Pennsylvania football officials.

Rock Bottom Pool Meet Tomorrow

The postponed swimming meet of the Rock Bottom Swimming Club will take place tomorrow afternoon in the Rock Bottom Pool at 3 p. m. All the best men and woman swimmers in this section have entered and there will be some sterling competition. The beauty pageant is attracting much attention.

The P. A. A., Homestead Library, Willows Pool, Civic Aquatic Club, Duquesne Library Club and Pittsburgh Aquatic Club have entered their best men.

Mrs. Hill Defeated In Golf Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 29.—(AP.)—Miss Dorothy Page, Madison, Wis., won her way into the final round of the twenty-eighth annual Women's Western golf tournament today with a 1-up victory over Mrs. C. S. Hill, Kansas City, the defending champion.

Miss Page will meet Mrs. G. W. Tyson, Kansas City, in the final round tomorrow as a result of her 3-and-2 victory over Mrs. Gregg Liful, Los Angeles, in the other semi-final match.

Harrisburg Gives Shortstop Release

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 30—(AP.)—Del Capes, utility infielder and outfielder of the Harrisburg Senators in the New York-Pennsylvania League, was released outright yesterday.

Capes came here at the beginning of the season after playing with Williamsport last season. For a time he was regular shortstop on the Harrisburg team.

GIANTS REGAIN SECOND; CUBS TOP CARDS

(Associated Press)

The struggle for supremacy in the National League is showing few signs of a letup as the four first-division clubs approach the end of their "crucial" series. Brooklyn and New York, with only today's game left, are locked in a fight for second place, while the league-leading Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals are even after two overtime struggles.

The Giants have regained second place, but are not yet back to their starting point of a one and one-half-game margin over the Robins. A 3-to-2 victory yesterday placed them a half game ahead.

GIANTS BEAT ROBINS

New York evaded its sixth successive defeat by pushing over a run in the seventh, tying the score on Allen's home run in the eighth and then bunching two more hits after a Robin error in the same inning.

Chicago made a comeback to triumph over St. Louis, 9 to 8, in a 13-inning struggle that put the Cubs 5½ games ahead of New York and six in front of the Robins. They assaulted Haines and Herman Bell for five hits and as many runs in the ninth to tie the score.

In the eleventh, Jim Bottomley clouted a home run for St. Louis with two on base, but the Cubs made it 8-8 with four effective hits. The end came when Old Hoss Stephenson opened the Cub half of the thirteenth with a triple off Grimes and scored on Lester Bell's single.

TWO TEAMS IDLE

Rain checked the threatening gestures of Pittsburgh against Cincinnati.

Boston and Philadelphia completed the league's schedule for the day with the Braves winning, 9 to 8, in a hectic 11-inning struggle. Eight pitchers saw action. Boston got 20 hits and the Phillies got 16.

In the American League Chicago and Cleveland battled for twelve innings before either scored. Pat Caraway of Chicago continued his shutout hurling through the thirteenth after his batting in the first half of that frame had played an important part in giving the White Sox a 3-to-0 victory. Caraway drove in the first Chicago run with a double in the thirteenth after his rival, Clint Brown, had given Clancy a single and had fumbled Watwood's attempted sacrifice. Mulleavy singled Watwood and Caraway home. Caraway allowed only three hits.

SECOND LONG FRAY

The game was the second extra-inning shutout of the major league season. On May 3, the Cubs beat the Phillies, 1 to 0 in 10 innings.

In the only other American League game the St. Louis Browns trounced Detroit for the third straight time to keep pace with the White Sox. The score was 9 to 6. A six-run splurge in the first inning decided the game almost before it started.

New Castle Auto Race Field Grows

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—The addition of an automobile racing program Labor Day at the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville board speedway, many fans accustomed to obtaining their holiday speed thrills in watching spectacles on the great wooden saucer are expected to be included in the record-breaking turnout predicted for this city's inaugural 100-mile gasoline derby at the local fair grounds Monday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock eastern standard time.

Joe Baker, well-known driver of the Pittsburgh district, especially so because of his reckless performances on the Bridgeville board course, sent in his signed entry yesterday. He was the fourth member of the so-called "Pittsburgh Four Horsemen" to signify his intention of being at New Castle, as the other trio included in its personnel—Jack Casey, Billy Schempp and Lawrence (Mike) Hickson—were among the first entrants.

When the entries closed last midnight, almost two score racing pilots from various parts of the country had filed their official documents insuring their appearance in this city for the elimination trials. Starter Jack Hayes has announced that the qualifications will be commenced at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

GOLF
As Champions Play It

How can a player remedy a pull in his iron shots?

Answered by
AL ESPINOSA

A pull or hook is caused by turning the face of the club under on the backswing. The club face instead of being closed at the top of the swing, should be open.

With the closed face the knuckles of the hands are turned under instead of up, the wrists are turned so that the right hand is on top. Thus the face of the club is toward the ground. The cause of this fault is tenseness of the muscles, and therefore the best cure for hooking is relaxation. If the muscles are free the club will have an open face on the backswing and hooking will be avoided.

GEMS REGAIN M. A. LEAD

With Clarksburg idle because of rain, Fairmont established a precarious hold on first place in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday, defeating Wheeling, 2 to 0, to take a half-game lead over the Generals.

Slaughter limited Wheeling to five safe hits, while Jachym gave up six. The Gems scored both their runs in the fourth inning.

At Charleroi, Cumberland punched out a 7-to-3 triumph, scoring five runs in the first inning. Savino, Colt catcher, walloped a home run. Divinney, Guy second baseman, had three hits.

Johnstown had to travel 11 innings to defeat Jeannette at Jeannette yesterday, 5 to 2. Butler weakened in the eleventh and the Johns tallied three runs. Roberts went the route for Johnstown and held the Jays to seven hits.

Jake Hess Victor In W. Va. Tourney

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Jake Hess, of Fort Worth, Tex., yesterday made himself champion of the Southern West Virginia open tennis tournament, defeating Ted Burwell, of Sewanee, Tenn., in the final round.

In their final round match Hess and Burwell scrapped lustily from first to last but the Texan's reserve strength, especially manifest in the final set, brought him the championship, 6-1, 6-4, 5-7, 8-6. Burwell, last year's champion, lost the first set in which he only won one game, but came back in the second to win four games and then took the third with seven against Hess' five.

Exceptional net work on the part of both men marked the match and both placed their shots with great accuracy. Hess seemed to display more pep, however, throughout the match and made Burwell for the most part appear on the defensive.

Broadway Limited Dies During Race

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Broadway Limited, one of the greatest disappointments on the American turf, dropped dead yesterday trying to make good.

The year old son of Man O' War-Star Light, for which W. T. Waggoner of Port Worth, Tex., owner of the Three D's stable, paid $65,000 as a yearling, fell dead while racing in the second event at Lincoln Fields. His rider, Tommy May, escaped with a few bruises.

Broadway Limited was making his second start since the running of the Kentucky Derby. He was running next to last when he suddenly collapsed as he was turning into the stretch for home. The cause of his death, veterinarians said, was a heart attack and he probably was dead before he crashed heavily to the ground.

Baltimore Team Wins Legion Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Baltimore's entry in the American Legion Junior world's series is supreme in the youngsters' world of sandlot baseball. The boys from Maryland won the Legion championship from New Orleans yesterday, making the most of hits, errors and wild pitching to win, 10 to 4.

That same young Nutty Weiner, who contributed much to his team's five to four victory Thursday, was in there again yesterday afternoon, batting five runs across. He also scored in the fourth.

American Golfer Defeated Abroad

FULWELL, Eng., Aug. 29.—(AP.)—After working his way to the semi-finals of the boys' championship by a fine exhibition of golfing skill, Tony Darnborough, London-born American youth, was eliminated today. James Lindsay, of Falkirk, the titleholder, defeated Darnborough, 7 up and 6 to play.

PIRRONE WINS

DAILY TRUE STORY

One in the Million

"Oh, I'm so glad, dearest!" joyously exclaimed Nanella when Hilbert, also joyously, phoned on Friday morning that he would be down to see her in the evening. They were engaged and every night except Friday they were together. On Friday night Hilbert helped his employer at the office on special work. This week however the officials were out of town attending a convention so the office was to be closed and Hilbert would have the evening to himself.

Nanella spent the afternoon with her mother and left soon after dinner. Passing the neighborhood movie house her eye fastened with interest upon the posters outside. The picture was one she had heard much about and was already seeing Friday evenings being Hilbert's less she usually attended the movies either with him or alone so what harm—this being Friday that she should be standing before the movie in anticipation with Hilbert had it must be confessed completely forgotten about Hilbert's message that morning telling her that he would be free tonight to see her.

Nan Worried

"Hello, Nan!" Come along. I'm going in too." came a cheery voice over her shoulder. It was Tracy Brenhaer with his carefree good looks and wide smile. She never could understand why Hilbert so cordially hated him. Before she knew it Tracy was escorting her down the aisle and so all-absorbing was the picture and program that two hours had passed when she suddenly remembered about Hilbert coming to see her tonight. Her heart stopped beating at the thought that he had been at her home and she not there. Not only that but sitting here at a movie with Tracy!

To make matters worse there would be no one at home when he called, her parents being away for the evening. She groaned at the thought of having to confess to him that she had been with Tracy Brenhaer of all people! She flew home, switched on the lights and flung herself into a chair giving herself up to gloomy, contrite thoughts having to do with blighted hopes and a broken engagement.

She wondered dismally if he would cast her off without giving her a chance to explain. His eyes were dark and worshipful but there was the way his jaw jutted so strong and prideful above a mouth set rock. She brushed back a strand of hair with a nervous hand and gazed up at the moon, despairingly.

Meanwhile Hilbert had started out for Nanella's half an hour earlier than usual. A smart tan sedan attracted his attention by its steady honking. "Hop in, Hilbert and I'll drive you where you are going!" Paula Finch, whom strangely Nanella did not like at all, held the door open invitingly. "Or have you time for a little spin?" smilingly.

He hesitated, remembering Nanella. True, she would not be expecting him quite yet. No harm in a little drive first, he decided, climbing in beside Paula, who laughed down his faint protests. She headed out upon a highway that led into the country and then speeded up. The weather was unseasonably balmy, and a full moon bathed the landscape in a silvery splendor.

So completely had Hilbert surrendered himself to the swift motion of the car to the beauty of the night and to keeping up his end of a gaily battering conversation that when the sedan slid to a protesting stop and refused to budge another inch it was somewhat of a shock to him to find that it was after 9 o'clock. He was suddenly aghast with horror at the picture of Nanella sitting there at home wearily wondering why he didn't come while he was miles [illegible] with Paula Finch. And [illegible] found out about [illegible] with Paula! By the time he had scrawled and stumbled across wet, soggy fields to a farm house half a mile away, and then to two others before he found a phone and by the time the service men arrived and he finally stood in front of Nanella's home, it was after 10 o'clock.

There was a light in the living room. Should he ring? "I know I deserve to have her break the engagement," conscience-stricken, "but if she will only forgive me this time it will never happen again" he vowed fervently. He lingered out there in the street miserably wondering if she would consent to see him at all. She had a soft little mouth, but he had seen it set into sudden surprising firmness at times. Well.

When Nanella opened the door to his ring he did not rush in eagerly as usual and envelop her in the customary embrace. Instead a shadow of constraint hung between them when they looked into each other's eyes. "I'm not coming in," he began stiffly. "It's late."

Both Fearful

"Yes, it is," in an almost voiceless tone. "but—" The stark, strained look on his face seemed to her a stern and forbidding one. A little expression of fear crossed her face. Hilbert, seeing it, was sure she looked at him accusingly. He drew a deep, wretched breath and squared his shoulders.

"Nanella, you can't imagine how I hate to speak about—about this evening—"

Nanella hated it just as much, so she exclaimed eagerly imploringly "Oh, Hilbert, don't do it then—I mean, don't let's speak about—about this evening—"

"All right, darling!" in pleased amazement, "not one word!" At which the relief of each was so great that the delayed embrace went into immediate effect.

"I never, never, imagined a man could be so noble, so forgiving, so considerate!" breathed Nanella blissfully, as she at last closed the door softly upon Hilbert's retreating form. "To think of him phoning me specially that he was coming here, tonight, and then when he doesn't find me home, is not one bit angry! Didn't even ask me to explain, precious old darling!"

"That's the kind of a sweet heart to have! She's one in a million!" ran Hilbert's thoughts adoringly on the way home. "So lovable and broad-minded about my not showing up this evening, didn't ask one question. Wouldn't even let me humiliate myself by apologizing! Sweetest little angel!"

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

(Copyright, 1930)

Experts of the Department of Agriculture have proved that by milking cows three times a day, instead of twice, the milk production is increased 21.2 per cent.

This sort of thing is all very well in its way; but some future Legge will have a perfectly awful time getting the cows back to normal.

Six months ago, Dukhobor Doakes was just another poor mystery story writer slinking through alleys and taking cast-off plots wherever he could find them. Today he is worth billions, thanks to contracts with various municipalities to supply mystery stories for policemen so they may keep in tip-top condition by satisfying their suppressed desires to solve crime murders.

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—

The girl I love says she likes me, but cannot love me because there is someone else. Would you please give me some advice?

Ans.

My advice to you, Master Spencer, is that when asking busy people for advice you be a little more specific about just what kind of advice you need. Honesty is the best policy, and unless you have a goal in life you will never get to it.

Father Pitt's Problems

Police, Politics, Parents, Patents and Punchot Are Just a Few

Back from his vacation, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark promises to investigate the garages to which the police tow illegally parked cars, and, if he finds evidence that cars are pillaged, to revoke the towing and storage concessions. We shall see what we shall see. Many of these so-called "official" garages are owned or controlled by politicians.

Magistrate John J. O'Connor's wrath was kindled yesterday, and excusably, by a youthful prisoner's remark that he did not live at his parents' home because they were too old-fashioned. There was no explanation of what he meant by "old-fashioned," but probably everybody understood it to mean that they did not have a tolerant attitude towards the vices to which some of our fast-stepping youths are addicted. If to disapprove of these things stamps a parent as an "old fogy," most parents will have to be so classified.

*The Commissioner of Patents at Washington yes-*terday gave out a list of persons to whom patents had been issued, and among them were a dozen or more residents of Pittsburgh and nearby towns. Almost every week a list of new inventions by Pittsburghers is given out. It is a remarkable and gratifying commentary on the ingenuity and enthusiasm of the employes of our manufacturing plants—for the inventors come chiefly from their ranks. Not wholly, however. It is worth nothing that in yesterday's list of new inventions there was a post-pulling device patented by two residents of Unity Township, Westmoreland County—farmers, perhaps—and a flying machine, invented by a resident of the city. That indicates the range and diversity of the inventions.

*Evidence given at the Republican rally at Wil-*liams Grove, Pa., at which Gifford Pinchot and State Chairman Edward Martin both spoke, that the "organization" intends to support Pinchot loyally notwithstanding its opposition to him in the primary, is calculated to dampen the hopes of John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal candidate. It would not be surprising, nevertheless, if Hemphill should receive the largest vote ever cast for a Democratic candidate for governor. He probably will get many thousands of votes in Pittsburgh. His opposition to prohibition will attract voters, notwithstanding that the Governor is powerless to repeal federal law.

*The announcement that the University of Pitts-*burgh will grant credit to candidates for degrees for work done in the study of Hebrew in the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association on Bellefield avenue is a reminder that Hebrew has again become a live language, spoken by thousands in Palestine in their daily intercourse. At one time it seemed destined to join Latin and ancient Greek as a dead language. Even in New Testament times Hebrew had largely passed out of use in Palestine, Jesus spoke Aramaic, not Hebrew. The revival of Hebrew as a living tongue is one of the striking phenomena of modern times.

*There is satisfaction in the thought that the bound-*aries recommended for the so-called "Pittsburgh Metropolitan District" will, if accepted by the Census Bureau, give the district a population of 2,500,000 and place Pittsburgh among the world's largest cities. There is unquestionably prestige in size. But there will be greater satisfaction in fulfillment of the Metropolitan Plan under which Allegheny County will become the city of Pittsburgh in name as well as in fact.

The wounding of the Carrick boy yesterday by a man whose house he is alleged to have been attempting to rob is a sad affair. If a man finds a burglar in his home, he is justified in shooting him. But when the man is not taken by surprise, but lies in wait; when he knows that the burglar is only a boy and that his pilfering consists in stealing food from ice boxes—if the man knows all these things and nevertheless deliberately shoots the boy as the latter, surprised, is running away—well, in spite of the boy's wrongdoing, the general opinion is likely to be that he has been dealt with too harshly.

Pittsburgh has a case like that described by Wilde in "The Ballad of Reading Gaol"—a case of killing one that was loved—except that in the Pittsburgh case it was the woman that did the killing, and not the man. And now that he is dead she says her love has never faltered and that she wants to be released from jail long enough to attend the funeral Monday. How fortunate that we do not all have such violent topsy-turvy emotions!

Completion of the Perry Highway improvement between Pittsburgh and Mercer is the most gratifying road accomplishment in this district in recent years. It reduces by 11 miles the distance between Pittsburgh and Mercer. Let us hope that that portion of the highway which runs between Mercer and Meadville via Sheakleyville will also be paved soon.

*It is a pity that Moses and the Ten Command-*ments, so worthy of reverence, should have figured as they did in the new County Office Building squabble. There was not, it is to be feared, much reverence in the way the carving, simply called "Moses" for the sake of brevity, was discussed. By the way, there is a very interesting carving of Moses in the First Baptist Church—a replica of a work by Michelangelo in which the great Hebrew lawgiver is represented as having horns.

Pittsburgh police yesterday took from his bed and carried off to prison a McKees Rocks man accused of striking a woman with his automobile and then continuing on his journey without stopping to assist her or even to inquire how seriously she had been injured. The police did right in not wasting time or politeness in the case. A hit-run driver is a criminal, and when such an accusation is made it would be over-doing courtesy to summon the accused to court as one would be summoned if guilty merely of some minor violation of the automobile regulations.

*Complaint was made at a Public Service Commis-*sion hearing here that the water supplied to certain towns in the Kiskiminetas valley is hard and has a taste; The same complaint could be made about much of the water taken from the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers in the Pittsburgh region. It is due to the pollution of the streams with the acid drainage water from coal mines, steel mills, tanneries, chemical works and pulp and paper plants. Pittsburgh's water is made safe for domestic consumption by filtration and chemical processes, but it is not as soft and pure as it should be for use in laundries and the boilers of steam engines.

Stop Dreaming That Santa Claus Dream

By Nelson Harding

If we should write a song, the theme
Would be "Don't Dream That Santa Dream"
Of Wall Street Santa Claus' with stocks
That always rise to fill our socks—

That down the ticker chimneys leap
With paper profits while we sleep;
But wake and work and don't believe
That EVERY night is Christmas Eve.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

It is just as possible to suppose that mutations making for fleshiness occurring among the salt plant's genes were preserved because of their utility and thus fixed in the hereditary constitution.

And so with the dark-skinned tropical races of man. Pigment is very necessary where the sun's rays are intense to protect the tissues from overdosing with ultra-violet rays.

H. G. Wells

There are some very fair people who never tan; they burn and peel and suffer a great deal in low altitudes. In the tropics this protection is so essential that those who happened to have a hereditary constitution making for dark skin survived better than those of lighter color.

It is so essential that any further mutations toward dark skin were seized upon by natural selection. This is in itself just as good an explanation as that the actual tanning effect is cumulatively handed on by heredity.

Only further evidence can decide between them, and, as a matter of fact, the constancy of Negroes' skin color in such high latitude as that of New York or Chicago is sufficient proof that full sunburning is not necessary to keep the color deep.

Similarly with the pointer dogs. The instinct of pausing a moment at the scent of game is found in the wolf and is not uncommonly seen in many breeds of dogs, some individuals showing it more markedly than others.

By breeding each generation from those animals in which the trait was best developed man could as easily have built up the breed of pointers by selection of suitable variations as he did the breed of bulldogs or pouter pigeons.

An ideal first developed in detail by Professor Mark Baldwin must not be overlooked. He pointed out that individual modifications, although not inherited, might co-operate with inherited mutations in helping the course of evolution.

Suppose that the conditions of an organism's life are changed, whether through a change in outer conditions such as climate, or, in animals, to a mutation in instinct, forcing the creature to new modes of living.

The new conditions modify the structure of the organism in each generation, so that it manages to survive—a sheep, for example, taken to a colder climate grows longer wool. But if a mutation crops up which alters structure in the same direction, this will be selected—the sheep might mutate so as to produce still longer hair under the same degree of cold, and this would adapt it still better to the new conditions.

Modifications will often enable the species to hang on, so to speak, until the right mutation turns up.

Let us consider in more detail what happens in the case of heavily furred animals. There is a direct individual relationship between temperature and thickness of coat. It is no good establishing fox farms in too mild a climate; the fur is short and sparse, the pelts of little value.

Now exposure of most mammals to warm conditions, while it brings about an increase in thickness of the outer skin or epidermis, diminishes the length of the hairs and also the thickness of the lower layer of the skin, or dermis.

Cold has the opposite effect—thick dermis and luxuriant hair, but thin epidermis. This admirably adaptive modification depends on the existence of the machinery of temperature regulation, combined with the fact that the hairs' growing roots project far down into the dermis.

In the heat, the blood vessels nearer the surface are opened up to cool the animal, and so the growing zone of the epidermis, just above these capillaries, is more richly nourished.

In the cold the surface vessels are narrowed; more blood flows in the lower layers, and the epidermis is on short rations while the dermis and the hair roots are richly supplied.

But besides such differences due to modifications, there are differences due to heredity. The musk-ox is always and everywhere is a shaggy beast, while the tropical buffaloes are always spare of hair and the Somaliland sand-rat Heterocephalus, like some breeds of fancy terriers, is all but hairless.

THE GLOZEL MYSTERY

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most extraordinary controversies in the history of science was precipitated, not long ago, by the spectacular discovery of a great cache of singular objects of alleged antiquity. In a field near Glozel, a tiny hamlet some 15 miles from Vichy, a cow one day slipped into an unsuspected hole. A young boy, Fradin by name, on investigating, discovered that the hole led into an oval pit full of striking-looking objects—bricks, tablets, vases. The discovery attracted the attention of one Dr. Albert Morlet, a surgeon of Vichy and an amateur archeologist. Excavations at Glozel brought to light many more buried objects, which were described by Dr. Morlet in a great number of articles in the famous French magazine, the Mercure de France.

Dr. Morlet has acquired many objects of great interest, but the great majority of them are now stored in a small building called the Music de Glozel or Glozel Museum. The museum may be visited at an admittance cost of two francs (a few cents in American money). On shelves around the walls and in very primitive glass cases standing on the floor are displayed a most fascinating and heterogeneous collection of strange objects.

Here are vases, tablets, engraved stones, ornaments, pendants, harpoons. The clay tablets are marked with graven signs giving the appearance of alphabetical symbols. Some 136 characters have been distinguished, representing every letter of the alphabet except the letter B.

A short time after the discoveries were made, suspicion arose that the whole affair was a colossal hoax. Scientists began to array themselves on one side or the other; and a terrific controversy ensued. The bitterness of the argument almost surpasses belief. France was torn asunder by the issue; it soon spread to other countries. Scientific reputations were tarnished; the whole matter became a choice joke for the French comic papers. But the thing has passed beyond that stage now, and many distinguished scientists are now ranked as pro-Glozelians.

It is exceedingly difficult to realize how a hoax, on such a huge scale as this, could have been perpetrated without discovery. Who could have manufactured all these strange objects? Where and when could they have been made? Already some five thousand objects have been excavated. No such find, in abundance comparable to this, and in such a small area had been discovered hitherto. The entire population of Glozel is 29. It seems inconceivable that this great number of objects could have been fabricated without discovery, quick and sure. Already the controversy has been going on with growing violence for six years; yet no evidence has come to light pointing to the author or fabricator of the alleged fakes.

An international commission was appointed at the meeting of the International Anthropological Congress at Amsterdam to investigate Glozel. The findings of the commission were unanimous that the articles are for the most part of recent manufacture, planted in the ground by some party or parties unknown. Dr. David Riesman of the University of Pennsylvania evidently fully shares the views of this commission. And yet, six months after the commission's visit to Glozel, Dr. Morlet called together a committee of 12 men, including Reinach among other distinguished names; and this committee pronounced unanimously in favor of Glozel! One of these men, Dr. Foat, a London scientist, says: "If the finds of Glozel are not authentic, it is equally necessary to consider as false all that I have seen in museums between London and Constantinople."

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Labor Day Games

The New York Reds have promised to make their Labor Day games in Union Square very exciting. They lost the Decoration Day meet to their uniformed playmates after a hotly contested series of little holocausts.

"Bugs" Baer

At that time some of their best players were on the bench.

The smart ones stayed right on the bench. The more athletic engaged the police in bean bag, sprinting and short-winded tugs-of-war.

When the police play bean bag they put the bag on your bean.

When they play tug-of-war they use you for the rope.

In scrimmages you're the football. When the mounted cops start polo you're the divot and they forget to replace you.

However, there has been a new set of games evolved from the news of the summer. They are much fairer and easier on the arches.

Climbing the flagpole for distance and endurance will start the elimination tournament. After all the contestants are up the stick the winner saws the pole in half.

Tree-sitting in the old poison oak starts at dawn and continues until the players get ripe and fall off. The technique of perching in the weeping willow has been perfected until a good tree squatter can remain in a tree so long he can sell himself for a Christmas ornament.

The rocking chair tournament is the star feature of the intramural games. The bench posers are in great shape and promise to win many points from the weight guessers.

The direction pointers and the athletes who read newspapers over strangers' shoulders have trained faithfully for the games.

But the biggest laurels to be gathered will be in miniature golf. This contest will be combined with the collegiate huddle and the village choir will scrimmage until exhausted.

The authorized gendarmes will stand in two jolly rows and the miniature golfers will run the thumping gauntlet. The man with the most lumps on his head will be appointed official florist for the next daisy chain at Vassar.

When a Red kicks a policeman in the shins he is merely reviving the sports of childhood.

And when a policeman whacks a Red over the skull that is only the tomboy in him.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Nothing is quite so impressive to me as office workers geared to modern push button efficiency. In contrast to my own harum scarum method of handling my job, they are quicksilver moving about on smooth glass. Small wonder I don't get anywhere.

Recently I decided to restore order out of chaos by installing high-powered office equipment in a room of my apartment—a ponderous desk, swivel chair, hand set telephone, a reference library at my elbow and push button fumididdies. In my conceit it was to be a "study."

I even thought up a sign for my door—"The Master Is Thinking"—to keep Mickey Neilans and the like away. In a few weeks it has become as exclusive as the Grand Central waiting room. This morning two nit wits spent an hour holding my best cane at arm's length to jump through.

Only yesterday an editor whom I desire to impress dropped in unannounced. At the moment I was on my back on the floor with legs in the air trying to balance a frightened puppy on soles of my house slippers like an acrobat did at the Palace the other week.

The visitor discussed inconsequentials, coughed politely behind his hand and departed somewhat in confusion. I wouldn't click with him anyway. Gazing up at him from the floor I noticed he wore both suspenders and a belt. Anyone that precise would cry over split infinitives.

In other offices visitors telephone for an appointment. Even then they have to cool heels awhile in an outer office. But when they visit me they are likely—in fact they have—to come on in the bathroom when I am in midst of a shower.

What I lack is dignity. Many people have an idea this racket is some sort of clowning. They expect me to leap from my desk, touch them, cry: "You're it!" and go whooping through the house. Or swing from a chandelier by my toes. You'd twitch, too.

* * *

A cultural touch in my "study" is a huge revolving globe of the world. I don't need it, but Floyd Gibbons has one. It hadn't been installed a week before the gang gathered afternoons to spin it and lay bets it would come up Africa, India or where not. You heard shouts of "Come on Jugo-Slavia!" or "Two bits on Norway to show!" Hunch over a typewriter and try to please an exacting public with that going on. And see if you don't get the jitties.

* * *

Once I got my dander up and decided to stop foolishness during working Hours. "See here, fellows," I declared with a look as cool as a pawn-broker's heart, if any. "This is where I have to work and this monkey business has got to stop!" Then cuttingly and with a glare: "I have to earn a living!" It looked as though I won a victory. They sneaked off, a little shame-faced, one at a time. But in a half hour they came parading through the room wearing my wife's hats and, to the tune "The Farmer Rings the Bell," sang: "He has to earn a living! He has to earn a living! And must have perfect quiet!" That gives you a sketchy idea of what I am up against.

* * *

There is nothing to do with such rough necks except shriek for a cop or slam down the typewriter and go out and get tight with them. Maybe I would, too, if I didn't headache so easily.

* * *

I can't imagine what executives such as Charles M. Schwab or Gerald Swope do in such emergencies, but it isn't likely they have that sort of goofy friends. There's the door bell now buzzing like this—zip de zip zip—zip! zip!

* * *

Maybe leaving off spats or brushing my hair differently would inspire a little respect. I've got to do something or take up another trade. They are driving me nuts.

* * *

But everything is going to be all right in the autumn!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There's no feat harder, between humans, than loving them and leaving 'em—BE! "Leaving them be"—to work out their own destiny.

Easy enough to love, but how hard to keep your hands off after we do! Doesn't matter who it is—sweetheart, husband, wife, son, daughter or friend—it's always the same. We'll give them anything we have. Make any sacrifice for them. Do anything—SAVE THE ONE ESSENTIAL THING OF MINDING OUR OWN BUSINESS AND LETTING THEM MIND THEIRS.

Usually we even refuse to concede that they have a business apart from ours. We feel that if they love us they should share all our interests, agree with all our notions, and follow all our advice. And if they refuse—if they insist upon having interests which we cannot share, or doing things of which we cannot approve, then we are not only hurt. WE'RE MAD! We feel that such independence is a deliberate betrayal of love and that we have been PERSONALLY INSULTED.

Of course that attitude isn't love at all. It's nothing but irritated egotism. We aren't, while in such a mood, loving that other life not longing to serve it. We're merely longing to boss it and thereby inflate our own sense of importance. Real LOVE doesn't try to dominate. It doesn't get insulted and take its doll rags n' go home if the loved one insists upon Being Himself. For Real Love recognizes the sacred and inalienable right of that other spirit to face life for itself and, if need be, make its own mistakes.

For souls are solitary and no love, however great, can make them otherwise. And the most beautiful part of Real Love is that mysterious communion between two solitudes. It is infinitely more precious than the nose-rubbing for which we so selfishly clamor.

"Men are spirits clad in veils,
"Man by man was never seen—
"All our striving somehow fails
"To lift that which lies between."

Don't try to lift the veil that lies between you and the spirit of your beloved. Cherish that mystery! Respect that solitude! Realize, always, that you are foreign to each other and keep that foreignness alluring and exciting, as you would the thought of strange adventures. For love will remain the most amazing and rare of all adventures if you can have the wisdom and control to love yet leave them—BE!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A woman says to the housewife, "Say, I want a job awful bad, and I'll guarantee to be the best worker you ever had."

"Sorry," she says, "but I do all the work in my house."

"So much the better, that's exactly the kind of a household I always wanted to work in. Gimme the job," she yells.

She got the job.

Time Is a Tree

Time is a tree
Sweet flowering
The whole year round,
From spring to spring;
Its blossoms are
For you, for me
To pluck from time,
The flowering tree.

So bright and fair
Always it gleams,
It seems to bear
Not blooms, but dreams;
And even as
Its gifts we take
Each changes to
A form we make.

Time is a tree;
Night, day, its flowers
It gives us, dark
Or shining hours.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You think of yourself as obscure in your village or city neighborhood.

If so, you believe that what you do or do not do has very little influence upon those around you.

Consequently you have grown careless in speech and in actions.

But it is hardly possible that you are without some certain influence.

No matter what your station some folks are guided more or less by you.

Therefore your example is important.

You may think this is entirely your own affair, but your opinion is wrong.

If what you say and do affects only yourself you might be justified in your attitude, but the bearing it has upon others places a responsibility upon you.

What sort of example are you to the boys and girls of the neighborhood?

Could they follow you with profit to themselves?

Would your conversation and general attitude to questions of the day be beneficial to the young folk growing up around you?

How about the children in your own family—they must meet the world?

If your own principles and conduct are not right, will theirs be any better?

None lives for himself alone, so order your life with this in mind. You have a place to fill—how are you filling it?
